Extension Of Social Security Put 1st in House

Council Today Maps Widening of Scope; Doughton Sidetracks Taxes to Speed Vote

By Robert C. Allbright.

A liberalized social security program yesterday was placed near the top of the Administration's legislative agenda as the Social Security Board's advisory council was called into session tomorrow to shape final recommendations.

A new block of amendments, extending social security act benefits to new groups of excluded workers, but barring immediate inclusion of 6,000,000 farmers and domestic workers, is virtually ready for White House scrutiny.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, meanwhile put social security act changes ahead of tax legislation on his committee docket. Doughton said amendment of the act will be "one of the first things considered."

They Hasten Date

At its meeting here tomorrow, the advisory council is expected to recommend against immediate inclusion of the large army of farmers, casual workers and domestic servants now outside the act, due to the lack of a practical tax collection formula.

With Social Security Board approval, the council is expected to favor moving up the date for starting old-age insurance annuity payments from 1942 to 1940.

Other liberalizing recommendations understood to have been virtually agreed upon by both the board and the council, including amendments sent to Congress last session but not enacted, include:

Old-age insurance provision for aged wives of annuitants, and benefits for aged widows and dependent children of annuitants.

Extension of old-age insurance benefits to approximately 2,000,000 employes in private nonprofit, charitable and educational institutions.

Extension of the act to 300,000 seamen and other workers on American vessels.

Extension of benefits to 300,000 employes of National banks and State bank members of the Federal Reserve System.

3-Way Attack Expected

Apparently no change is now contemplated in old-age assistance provisions for a $15 Federal contribution toward $30-a-month State pensions for needy old persons over 65, of whom 1,750,000 now are receiving pensions.

The Administration's new program will be immediately subjected to a three-way attack, from Townsendites and general welfare bill supporters seeking more liberal pensions; from advocates of the Vandenberg's "pay-as-you-go" plan; and from adherents of the Lodge plan to pay $60 old-age assistance benefits ($40 from the Federal Government and $20 from the States).

Although plans to include farmers, casual workers and domestic

Police Hunt Fails For Mary Brown Kidnapers' Shack

Searches by Maryland State and Prince Georges County police yesterday failed to locate the shack in which Mary Brown, 18-year-old Oxon Hill (Md.) girl was thought to have been secluded after her kidnaping last week.

A slight relapse and rise in fever suffered by the girl prevented a proposed questioning by State's Attorney Alan Bowie, Uolice Superintendent Arthur W. Hepburn and Maj. Elmer F. Munshower, of the State police.

Hepburn said last night that police would question Elwood Day, 15-year-old Camp Springs (Md.) youth held for assault at the Marlboro Jail, for possible connection with the Brown case. Day has been held since Tuesday night. Coben, his elder sister, Mrs. Edith Fellner, was assaulted with a piece of wood.

Girl's Slashed Body Thrown From Car

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 7 (AP).—The slashed body of an auburn-haired girl was found today at an isolated spot off "Lovers' Lane" in the hills above Oakland.

Police said the girl was Leona Vlught, 19, operator of a beauty parlor. Her body bore a stab wound in the chest and three small cuts on the throat. It apparently had been thrown from an automobile.

$205 Will Aid 2 Families to A New Life

The J's Need Milk For Children; Mr. K Must Have Operation

The Washington Post Christmas Fund this year will once again be devoted to the District's neediest families selected from the "unemployed employables"—decent families, deserving, honest, willing to work—but desperately in need of a helping hand. Each day, between now and Christmas, stories of these families—selected with the co-operation of member agencies of the District of Columbia Council of Social Agencies—will be printed. Read these stories. And then decide if you can help. Any amount, however small, is more than welcome.

FAMILY J consists of Mr. and Mrs. J and four baby girls, ranging from 6 months to 5 years.

Three of the children are under the care of a medical clinic.

Family J.....	$100
Family K.....	105
Total needed	$205

Doctor's recommendations of a quart of milk a day and a small amount of other special food for the four children cannot be followed by the J Family because the present family income amounts to just $48 a month—sufficient only to meet the most important needs of rent, fuel, plain food and a meager amount of clothing.

All Sleep in One Room

Because the J Family own practically no furniture at all, all four of them are sleeping in one room on the lower floor of the small house they occupy. The second floor's two rooms—which would permit the family greater privacy and be conducive to better health—is unoccupied.

Two three-quarter beds, a small table, a rug, a chest of drawers and a chair of two will solve the J Family's house furnishing problem. To purchase these—and to supply the special diet needed by the children for the next four months—necessitates an expenditure of $100.

Out of a Job

MR. AND MRS. K are the mother and father of three boys.

The boys are Michael and Jack and Henry, aged 13, 11 and 9.

Although, in 1933, Mr. K found himself out of a job for the first time in his life he has, for the past five difficult years, kept his courage high and managed to support his family without recourse to charity. Before the depression period he was a sign painter, able to command regular work at good wages. Since then he has kept his family together with what odd jobs he could find.

Needs an Operation

A few weeks ago, Mr. K began to show irritability and nervousness, in a small degree. This was such an unusual characteristic in him that Mrs. K became worried and prevailed upon him to have a medical examination. The doctor's verdict was that Mr. K was suffering from a stomach ailment that would require a major surgical operation and at least six weeks recuperation following it.

The agency in charge of the case is certain that, once well again, this man will quickly take his place as a competent, reliable bread-winner. In the meantime, $105 is needed to care for his family during the period of his hospitalization and convalescence.

'Beauty Lobby' Fraud Inquiry Involves 'International Figures'

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 7.—Assistant United States Attorney William Power Maloney tonight said "startling developments" were imminent in the case of William P. Buckner, 31-year-old promoter accused of manipulating Philippine railway bonds and lobbying in Washington with lavish parties abetted by Broadway chorines.

Developments of the day included the raising of Buckner's bail from $2,000 to $5,000 and a statement by James J. Caffrey, regional administrator of the Securities and Exchange Commission, that President Quezon of the Philippines would aid in prosecuting the charge of using the mails to defraud.

"This case," Maloney said, "is much larger than we thought it was. I expect to have an important announcement tomorrow."

Maloney also disclosed plans to question John Stewart Hyde, British actor, when he arrives on the liner Washington Friday. Maloney said he expected from Hyde an account of Buckner's soirees in fashionable London circles.

Buckner was arrested on his return from abroad last week.

The prosecutor also said "several international figures" might be drawn into the case.

Caffrey said Quezon had promised to return to the United States Felipe Buencamino, Philippine legislator, who is alleged to have solicited money to sponsor legislation for the redemption of the railway bonds.

Caffrey said the man was Felipe Buencamino, a member of the

Oyster Fleet 'Captured' in Closed Area

Three Patrol Boats Seize Captians of 22 Craft as Situation Gets 'Out of Control'

By Edward Ryan,
A Staff Correspondent.

Chesapeake Beach, Md., Dec. 7.—A fleet of 22 oyster boats, whose defiant captains had insisted on taking oysters from a closed bed a mile and a half off this resort, was "captured" late today by three patrol boats of the Maryland Conservation Commission.

The patrol boats ordered the alleged poachers to sail for Annapolis, where they faced arrest on charges of taking oysters in a forbidden area. Ten of the oystermen had been arrested previously on a similar charge and were awaiting a trial.

The "Hip-Boot Boys"

The oyster-boat captains were mostly from Crisfield and other points along the Eastern Shore, hardy felows known as the "hip-boot boys." Their boats bore such names as the Mary Sue and the Lady Eleanor.

The area off here, a bar named Old Rock, was planted with seed oysters about two years ago and had not been opened for dredging and tonging.

The boats began to appear on the bar about two weeks ago. On November 29 Capt. John Smith, skipper of the patrol boat Pocomo, arrested ten of the boat captains and took them to Annapolis. After a hearing, and after being released on bond, they returned to the closed area.

In the last few days, another patrol boat, the Herring Bay, commanded by Capt. William P. Marshal, has been attempting to drive the oyster boats away from the forbidden area.

At noon today, Capt. Marshal notified the conservation commission in Baltimore that the men insisted on defying him and that the situation "was out of control."

No Resistance Offered

Two other patrol boats were sent to his aid, the Pocomo and the flagship McLane, the latter commanded by Capt. Amos Creighton. All three were armed with machine guns. When they appeared and ordered the oyster boats to proceed to Annapolis, none of the boat captains resisted.

Meanwhile, a score of oystermen in lower Chesapeake Bay, near Crisfield, were openly dredging in closed areas around Great Rock and Ditch Bank and in Tangier Sound.

Capt. John A. Evans, of Smith's Island, an inspector for the conservation commission, went to Crisfield and swore out warrants for 18 of the poachers.

The oystermen have been complaining that, with Christmas and possibly ice conditions approaching, they were in desperate financial

Japan Tells U. S., Britain to Forget The 'Open Door'

Tokyo (Thursday), Dec. 8 (U.P.).—Japan today informed the United States and Great Britain they should accept as inevitable the revision of the open door policy in China, the usually well-informed newspaper Asahi statd.

The American and British Ambassadors, Joseph C. Grew and Sir Robert Craigie, attended a conference with Foreign Minister Arita, at the latter's invitation.

The United States, Britain and France have protested to Japan against closing China's great waterways to their ships, asserting free commerce was guaranteed by the nine-power treaty affirming the open door principle.

'Blonde Borgia' Goes Pleading to Chair

MRS. ANNA MARIE HAHN AND SON, OSCAR

'Help Me,' Anna Hahn Implores Witnesses; Poison Murderess Dies in Midst of Prayer; 'Zero Hour' Appeal to Federal Court Fails

By the Associated Press.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 7.—In the midst of a prayer, Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, 32, died tonight in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary for one of the four murders of which she was accused.

Her attorneys lost a desperate "zero hour" Federal Court appeal and when her time came she slowly stood up and marched from her cell with one of her counsel and her three matrons.

As she marched through the death house corridor 12 convicted men awaiting the same fate moved to the front of their cells and stood in silent attention.

"Good-by, all of you, and God bless you," she called out.

Mrs. Hahn, clad in blue pajamas with a brown top, moaned and pleaded as she stumbled to the door of the execution chamber and collapsed. She was picked up and placed bodily in the chair by two guards and two matrons.

She cried, "Mr. Woodard (the Warden), don't do this to me. Think

Housing Loans Rise as WPA Rolls Decline

McDonald Reports Greatest Construction Increase in Year

Mortgage insuring operations of the Federal Housing Administration last month showed a higher percentage of gain over 1937 than any month since the housing act was amended last February, Stewart MacDonald, FHA administrator, announced yesterday.

With this added indication of revived construction activity came a report showing that WPA enrollment had declined 79,251 since November 5. Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, said the enrollment on December 3 stood at 3,183,418, as compared to 3,216,506 for the week ended November 26, a drop of 33,088 in a week.

Another busines development was an assertion by Secretary of Commerce Roper that businesmen in most of the leading cities forecast Christmas sales in excess of those of last year.

125 Per Cent Increase

The FHA report said that small home mortgages selected for appraisal during November totaled $84,140,515, compared with $37,299,389 for November, 1937, an increase of 125 per cent. The November total, reflecting a normal seasonal tendency, was less than that of October, when mortgages selected for appraisal amounted to $97,467,205.

In the WPA report, 31 States, New York City and the District of Columbia were shown to have declining rolls. In the District the drop was 66 enrollees.

$17 a Week Office Worker Pay Approved

Board Sets Hearing For Jan. 9; Hours Put at 30 to 44

The District Minimum Wage Board yesterday approved a $17 basic weekly wage for office workers offered last week by the wage conference.

They immediately set for January 9 a public hearing at which any person may appear to argue for or against the recommended wages for the workers. In case there are no serious objections raised at that time the wage will be ordered effective within 60 days.

It was estimated that more than 4,500 women and minors would be affected.

The $17 weekly wage applies to a standard work week of from 30 to 44 hours. In previous orders the work week was defined up to 48 hours with the lone exception of laundry workers.

The board approved a 50-cent wage for each hour worked overtime. On this basis, the office worker employed up to 48 hours will receive a $19 weekly wage.

Under the recommendation beginners in offices will be guaranteed $14 a week for the first six months of employment, after which time they will receive the regular wage.

Maids employed in offices will be paid $14.50, the same wage set in a previous order. Only one beginner per 10 persons may be employed in any one office, according to the recommendations.

The wage approved by the wage conference does not affect District or Federal office workers.

Falls Church Girl Refuses to Drink; 2 Men Beat Her

Because she refused to drink and to take a ride with them, a 20-year-old Falls Church (Va.) girl was hurled across the hood of an automobile and beaten by two men last night, she told Third Precinct police.

As the girl, Mary F. McDonald, was relating details of the attack to officers at Emergency Hospital, police arrested for questioning a former Metropolitan policeman and another man who were being held at the Third Precinct Station.

Miss McDonald, whose home is Falls Church but who has been rooming at 2014 G street northwest, told police the men approached her as she was walking near the George Washington University campus. She said she had never seen them before, but that they asked her if she didn't want a drink, and then if she wouldn't take a ride.

She said "no" no both invitations, she said. They picked her up, hurled her across the hood of their auto and beat her with their fists, she said.

Lawyer Sues Ickes For $750,000 Libel Damages

John D. Glass, lawyer of Tyler, Tex., sued Secretary Ickes in District Court yesterday for $750,000 for libel. A press release from the Interior Department, Glass charged, was issued with malice and contained false and defamatory statements.

Glass was formerly a chief investigator for the Federal Petroleum Agency. He said he gave up the job in September, 1937, to resume private law practice.

His complaint, filed by Attorney C. L. Dawson, charged that November 23, 1938, Ickes issued to the press a memorandum which "advised and warned all oil operators to investigate the plaintiff and falsely and maliciously made false and defamatory statements to the effect that the plaintiff had been prevented and barred from practicing before the Federal Tender Board."

Italy Masses Troops on Tunisia Line

250,000 Blackshirts Face French Soldiers On Border; Fascists Have Air Advantage

By the United Press.

Tunis, Dec. 7.—Marshal Italo Balbo, Governor Italian Libya, tonight was reported to have moved troop reinforcements and motorized artillery to the outposts of Tripolitania facing France's "desert Maginot line" on the Tunisian frontier.

Military secrecy amounting to virtual censorship prevailed and military zones on both sides of the border were closed as the French colony of Tunisia seethed with native Arab and Berber resentment against Fascist territorial demands, although the Arabs also desire to shake off French rule.

French authorities here took elaborate police precautions to prevent new outbreaks of anti-Italian demonstrations.

Balbo was said to have ordered heavy reinforcement of Italian military posts at Nalut, Sinauet and Gadames and it was estimated that nearly 250,000 Italian and French troops are facing each other across the border.

Italy, with both tanks and motorized artillery, has her famous desert cavalry, the Mehari tribesmen on swift camels, several battalions of Askari infantry trained in Eritrea and hardened in the Ethiopian campaign.

Facing these Italian forces are some of the best battalions of France's famous Foreign Legion and several divisions of colonial infantry seasoned by long campaigns in Morocco against the Riffs.

Tunisia Well-Developed

At the southernmost pointed tip of Tunisia the French have reinforced their positions opposite Gadames, while in the north colonial troops and Foreign Legionnaires are at full strength along the entire new "Desert Maginot Line" extending from Gabes. The line of fortifications, despite its name, does not resemble the $400,000,000 Maginot Line along the Franco-German frontier because there are no permanent steel and concrete fortifications, but there are a succession of concrete pill boxes and gun placements extending on either side of the Ksour Mountains.

French authorities said Tunisia's well-developed agriculture and industry gave the French army an important advantage over Balbo's forces, which look back on hundreds of miles of sandy waste.

The French army, in excess of 100,000 men, could live off the land, but it was contended that Balbo's forces must carry all their food and water to the border.

Italy Has Air Advantage

Airplanes undoubtedly would play an important and perhaps decisive role in any conflict along the Tunisia-Libyan border and, in this manner of warfare, Italy would have a decided advantage because of the proximity of Sicily and extensive air fields in Libya.

[More than 1,000 Tunisian railroad workers marched from the central station and smeared the Italian consulate with red, white and blue—the colors of France, the Associated Press said.

[The demonstration was brought under control by troops and police. —Editor's note.]

Hull Arrives in Lima to Find Nazis Busy Making Friends

By the Associated Press.

Lima, Peru, Dec. 7.—Secretary of State Hull arrived in Lima for the eighth Pan-American Conference today and immediately was confronted by a German propaganda campaign urging the values of totalitarianism over democracy.

The Secretary said he had come to take part in the conference in the hope of advancing in this hemisphere "an international order based upon peace, confidence and a consideration for the welfare of all its peoples."

He was officially welcomed at Callao by Laurence A. Steinhardt, United States Ambassador to Peru, and high Peruvian officials.

From there he drove quickly to Lima, 8 miles from the seaport, and set to work with a round of private conferences in preparation for the conference of 21 American republics opening Friday.

German journalists and representatives of the German propaganda ministry already were on the ground, however, meeting delegates and, where the opportunity afforded, stressing that South American nations need strong one-man rule to prevent political turmoil.

One of Hull's first conferences was with Dr. Jose Maria Cantilo, foreign minister of Argentina, regarded as one of the foremost opponents of a formal defensive alliance for the Americas.

Last night Cantilo said formal plans were not necessary, since it was well understood American nations would stand together in event of actual invasion.

In Rio de Janeiro, however, Oswald Aranha, foreign minister of Brazil, was quoted by the newspaper

Britain Refuses To Give Colonies Back to Hitler

U.S. Again Tells Nazis To Respect Property Rights of Nationals; Roosevelt, Hull Confer

The United States has acted again to block application of anti-Jewish decrees to American citizens in Germany, it was revealed yesterday as President Roosevelt held another protracted conference on the tangled affairs in Europe.

Acting Secretary of State Welles disclosed that the American embassy had raised with the foreign office in Berlin the subject of exemption of American citizens from provisions of Monday's governmental orders seizing control of the remaining assets of Jews in Germany.

Sees Three Ambassadors

Under standing instructions, the embassy notified Germany this country assumed that rights of American citizens would be fully protected and American-owned property be exempt from the decrees. No reply to the communication had been received when the Acting Secretary disclosed it had been sent.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt again called into conference Welles and the three ambassadors who have been reporting to him on conditions in Europe, Hugh R. Wilson, envoy to Berlin ;William Phillips, holding the Rome post, and William C. Bullitt, on leave from his Paris assignment. For more than two hours the talk continued, and while none of the five officials would tell anything of its trend it was believed the German persecutions of minorities had a most prominent place in general discussion of the troubled situation throughout Europe.

Wilson to Stay Indefinitely

These developments came amid a feeling here that Germany definitely has made more difficult the resumption of normal diplomatic relations between herself and the United States. With Ambassador Wilson called home for report and consultation, followed by his temporary assignment to the State Department here, there has been apparent no inclination to set a date for his return to Berlin. Likewise, Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff was summoned back to Berlin to report on the attitude here toward the Nazi activities.

The German decrees of Monday are considered to have made still more difficult the task of this and other countries trying to provide a practical and humane solution for the problem created by the German refugees. Germany's apparent determination to drive the Jews from her land practically penniless, it is felt here, vastly complicates the work of the intergovernmental committee seeking to find a haven for the refugees.

3,000 Seek to Enter U. S.

Naples, Dec. 7 (AP).—More than 3,000 Jewish refugees, three-fourths of whom fled from Austria after its annexation by Germany, are beseeching the American consulate here for admittance to the United States.

Foreign Jews must leave Italy within the next three months, but under the present immigration quota it would take six years before all those who have applied could be given authorization to enter the United States. Of the 4,200 applicants, visas have been issued to 420, leaving 3,780 on the waiting list.

Government Not Even Discussing It, Says Dominions Secretary; Wins Commons Vote

By Frank R. Kelley.
Special Cable to The Post.

London, Dec. 7.—The British government today answered Reichsfuehrer Hitler's demands for the return of Germany's colonies with a blunt, unmistakable "no."

Speaking in the House of Commons, Malcolm MacDonald, colonial and dominions secretary, served notice that the British government was not even discussing or considering the surrender of its colonies or mandates, and that colonies are "not now an issue in practical politics."

MacDonald's statement was construed as a direct rebuff for Premier Moussolini, the other partner in the Rome-Berlin axis, in whose country a violent campaign has broken out for cession by France of Tunis, Corsica, Nice and Savoy.

Reaction From Munich

MacDonald's answer to Hitler and the tone of the debate in Commons reflected the bitterness of the English opposition to the Nazi persecution of the Jews.

Opposition to the return of colonies also derives from second thoughts about the victory of Hitler and Mussolini at Munich. The British believe that the dictators want colonies for the triple purpose of breeding huge "black armies," creating naval bases which would menace the lifelines of the British Empire and extending their systems of closed autonomy.

Immediately after the Munich "peace with honor," but before the programs began, Britain was willing to talk with Hitler about his dream of a new empire.

MacDonald's statement immediately placed a large question mark against Prime Minister Chamberlain's program of "appeasement," which he intends to pursue in Rome when he talks with Mussolini in January.

Vote Is 253 to 127

MacDonald's declaration, which Commons indorsed by 253 to 127, was prompted by a motion introduced by Philip Noel-Baker, a Laborite, who urged that colonies or mandates should not be redistributed without the consent of the inhabitants and that, as part of a general settlement, the League of Nations' mandate system should be extended to all colonies, including the British, which were not ripe for self-government.

MacDonald supported the first part of Noel-Baker's motion but condemned the second, and urged approval of an amendment offered by Col. C. E. Ponsonby, a Conservative. The vote was taken on this amendment, which stated that changes in the status of colonies, protectorates or mandates could only be considered in relation to the wishes and interests of the inhabitants.

MacDonald said:

"I do not believe that there is today any section of opinion in this country which is disposed to hand over to any other country the care of any of the territories or people for whose government we are responsible, either as a colonial or as a mandatory power."

Colonies "Not an Issue"

With cheers echoing in the House, he went on:

"That view has been expressed this afternoon in every part of the House and it is a view which is shared by his maisty's government. We are not discussing this matter, we are not considering it. It is not now an issue in practical politics.

"If we were ever to come to a discussion of this question, there are certain things which would have to be borne in mind. In the first place this country is not the only country concerned. Britain is not the only country which assumed additional territorial responsibility

Miss Perkins Again Faces Impeachment

Rep. Thomas Threatens Ouster in Dies Probe Of Bridges Case

By Sidney Olson.

A second threat of impeachment of Secretary of Labor Perkins was made yesterday in proceedings before the Dies Committee investigating un-American activities.

The threat topped a stern warning by Stephen F. Chadwick, national commander of the American Legion, a witness yesterday, that:

"The conduct of her office (Secretary Perkins') will be made the subject of representations to Congress by the Legion unless the Bridges and other cases are settled speedily."

Affidavit Offered

These developments came after the committee had heard extracts from an affidavit sworn to by John L. Leach, of Los Angeles, on December 8, 1937, asserting that Harry Bridges, West Coast director of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, is not only a Communist but was elected in 1936 a member of the Communist Party's national central committee.

Bridges is the center of the long-standing controversy. Legionnaires and many others have demanded his deportation for several years, while late last month Secretary Perkins pleaded that the department must await a Supreme Court decision in the Strecker case before it could logically proceed against Bridges, who has often denied he is a Communist.

Aroused by the developments, Representative Thomas (Republican), of New Jersey, shouted:

"I'm convinced that for some unknown reason Harry Bridges is the blond-haired boy of the Labor Department, and I'm sick of it. Unless there is quick action, I'm going to take the necessary steps in the next Congress."

He then told reporters he meant impeachment proceedings.

The Leach affidavit was presented to the committee by Capt. James Keegan, chief of detectives, Portland, Oreg., who appeared as a witness.

In one paragraph Leach said:

"I further state that, in June of 1936, I was a regular and official delegate of the Communist Party to its ninth annual convention held in the Manhattan Opera House in New York City and that as such delegate I discussed with my codelegates of California the nomination of Harry Bridges as a member of the central committee of the Communist Party, U. S. A., was successful in seeing his name put in nomination and later elected to said central committee . . .

"I further state that Harry Bridges was known within the party to me and to other leading forces by the title of Comrade Rossi."

Came at Own Expense

Chairman Dies explained to reporters that Capt. Keegan, as well as John E. Ferguson, another witness from Portland, had come to Washington to testify of their own accord; that he had notified them the committee did not have sufficient funds to bring them here, and that the committee did not guarantee to put them on the stand until their testimony had first been heard in executive session. This was done yesterday. Ferguson, Dies said, was still a member of the Pacific Coast Marine Firemen, Oilers, Watertenders and Wipers Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, and the A. F. of L. had paid his expenses here.

The threat by Thomas to institute impeachment proceedings against Secretary Perkins was the second to come from the committee recently. On September 9, Dies said in a Texas interview that the Secretary might face impeachment "if she does not enforce the law under which Harry Bridges is clearly deportable."

Miss Perkins' defense has rested on the fact that a Government appeal from an adverse lower court decision on deportation proceedings against Joseph Strecker, Arkansas restaurant man, an Austrian immigrant, is still before the Supreme Court. Strecker admitted former membership in the Communist Party, but the Circuit Court in New Orleans, reversing some decisions in other courts, held that this alone was insufficient to warrant deportation. It noted there had been no showing that the Communist Party in this country advocates the overthrow of the Government by force and violence, which is the legal basis for deportation.

Chadwick cited the legion's convention resolution excoriating delay in the Bridges' deportation, asresting that Labor Department officials had "blocked" passage of new immigration laws, requesting a Congressional investigation of "the failure of these officials to comply with existing immigration laws" and demanding that steps be taken to "correct this unwarranted failure of duty."

'Crippling Tax Policy' Called Recovery Bar

Senators Told Revision Would Make More Employment

By the United Press.

Leo M. Cherne, of New York, executive secretary of the Tax Institute of America, told a Senate Finance sub-committee yesterday that "removal of crippling Federal tax policies" would cause 74 per cent of the Nation's industries to increase employment.

He suggested that recovery could be stimulated by providing Federal tax credits and deductions to employers for profit-sharing plans, capital expenditures and plant expansion, investments in new enterprises, purchases of new property, dividends on employe-owned stock, and for increasing employment.

Importance of revising the tax laws was emphasized in replies to 3,200 questionnaires sent by his organization to employers of 6,000,000 persons, he said. He added that 82.5 per cent replied they would expand their businesses, and 74 per cent would increase employment if granted concessions.

Industrialist Fails to Agree

Cherne said that 72 per cent reported that they had been "definitely handicapped" by the controversial undistributed profits tax, and that 50 per cent preferred a flat 18 per cent corporate rate to that levy.

He appeared after a group of store owners and industrialists testified that they favored revision of Federal tax structures but failed to agree over merits of profit-sharing.

T. M. Beavers, vice president of the Peoples Drug Co., said, "Profit-sharing is like kissing your wife in the morning. It improves domestic relations. But I doubt that it would be very effective if you had a Government agent standing over you to see that you do it."

"I'm surprised, commented Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, "that they haven't thought of that."

H. J. Tilly, Philadelphia department store owner, criticized Federal tax and spending policies as "hurting—killing business," and suggested payment of better wages in lieu of profit-sharing plans.

"I do not believe profit-sharing possible," he said. "If it were, it would have been generally adopted by this time by industry and business as a whole. Nothing appeals to the employe so much as a fat envelope."

Wilkie Scores TVA Objection To Arbitrating

'Legalistic' Issues Raised in Sale Dispute, Utility Leader Asserts

By the Associated Press.

Wendell Willkie, utility leader, accused Tennessee Valley Authority last night of raising "legalistic" objections to his proposal for arbitration of a fierce power dispute.

Willkie had suggested that the securities commission be called in as arbiter to break a deadlock in negotiations between himself and TVA for sale of Tennessee Electric Power Co., to TVA and local power agencies.

(Tennessee Electric Power is a subsidiary of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, of which Willkie is president.)

TVA Fears Litigation

A flat rejection of the arbitration offer was announced yesterday by J. A. Krug, youthful power planning engineer of TVA, when he appeared before a Congressional committee investigating the authority's affairs.

Krug characterized the proposal as "entirely unworkable," of "dubious legality" and "studded with jokers." Arbitration would lead to years of litigation, he said, and no decision could be reached "in time to meet the requirements of local public agencies."

Willkie said the objections were "without merit." He said Government efforts to force utilities to sell their properties below true value are preventing a utilities building boom "running into billions of dollars."

Black Is Quoted

During the day, the Congressional committee received evidence from Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, that Hugo Black, then Senator but now Supreme Court justice, had once expressed the opinion that TVA directors were guilty of a "plain, palpable violation" of the TVA act.

Black, in a letter, had contended that the law required TVA to locate its headquarters in Alabama. Instead they were established at Knoxville, Tenn.

The committee also heard Krug testify that annual power revenues of $20,000,000 would be garnered from the ten dams of TVA, on the basis of existing rates. After subtracting direct and allocated power costs, he said, a $3,000,000 balance would be available toward offsetting navigation and flood control costs.

15,000,000 Making Arms, Magnates Told

Manufacturers Hear Derby Attack Non-Productiveness

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 7.—World wide war hysteria is causing annual expenditures of $15,000,000,000 and employment of 15,000,000 workers for non-productive armaments, H. L. Derby, president of American Cyanamid & Chemical Corporation, told the convention of National Association of Manufacturers today.

"While their (foreign arming nations) own nationals are busying themselves with these pursuits, they have turned to the United States to furnish essential materials," he said, adding that a return to "world sanity" would mean that "about 8,000,000 workers will be released largely for the production of industrial products."

Derby argued that such a condition would inaugurate international trade war and that United States international trade agreements should be based on recognition of that principle. Criticizing the Hull type of reciprocal agreement which extends benefits to non-signatory countries, he said.

"The theory that 'it is better to give than to receive' cannot be employed in this international situation to the benefit of American workers, American farmers, and American business men."

Doubts Third Term

Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, a convention speaker, brought prolonged laughter when he said:

"There is real doubt that President Roosevelt could be elected should he asked to be returned to the White House for an additional four years."

Dr. Gallup said the public is the final arbiter of relationships between industry, Government and society.

"Voters in the upper and middle income groups," he said, "are becoming alarmed as they view the tax consequences of the Government's spending program.

"In this connection, however, it should be noted that the country is overwhelmingly in favor of an increased army, navy and airforce. Hence spending for National defense should be less subject to the public's criticism than other forms of Government spending."

Eden Speaks Friday

The first day's session of the "Congress of American Industry," reported a record attendance. Officials attributed part of the interest to the scheduled appearance Friday night of Anthony Eden, former foreign minister of England.

Charles R. Hook, president of the association urged industry to admit its past "mistakes" and seek to cooperate with Government, labor, agriculture, and the consuming public, "to make American click."

Other speakers similarly urged co-operation.

W. Gibson Carey, jr., president of Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co., urged that American industry develop better relations with Latin-America, the 20 republics of which, he said offer this country the best opportunity for the development.

Rose Wilder Lane, novelist, another speaker, said that "any man who tries to take this free people back to the planned economy of ing George III is a reactionary."

H. V. Kaltenborn, news commentator, declared the United States has more to fear from fascism than from communism.

He said that "communism since its beginning has never conquered a single country," but that "fascism has already conquered seven, and is in a fair way to conquer several others.

Raymond Moley, magazine editor, advised business to be optimistic, but never again "complacent." He said 1940 would be a bad year for "amateur statesman" an advised the Republican Party to be "a little wary of well-intentioned but ignorant young hopefuls."

Don Francisco, president of Lord & Thomas, a national advertising agency, urged business to adopt program of co-operation. He urged industry to tell its story in a way understandable to the average American, to convince him that the "American system of private enterprise is not inimical to his interest."

Congress Could Cut Budget $500,000,000 18 Homefolks Didn't Object, Brynes Says

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), S. C., said tonight that Senators and Representatives have little time to consider national problems, "because their time is absorbed acting as superintendents of employment agencies and as glorified secretaries of chambers of commerce."

SEN. BYRNES

In an address prepared for the New York Southern Society, he said that if members were prohibited from making representations to officials on loans, granting of project funds or appointment of officials, "Congress could reduce appropriations for the next fiscal year by $500,000,000."

The Garner-for-President boom hit the Capitol yesterday. From the office of Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, came a statement saying:

"Garner is my No. 1 candidate for President in 1940. He is the outstanding man available today in either party."

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Iowa State canvassing board today awarded re-election to United States Senator Guy M. Gillette (Democrat), by a 2,805 vote margin over former Senator L. J. Dickson, Republican.

Dickinson filed injunctions in 23 counties indicating he may contest the election in the Senate.

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP).—Congressmen and business leaders touring Florida as guests of the State Chamber of Commerce stopped off here tonight for a Spanish fiesta and a banquet.

Earlier today they visited Clewiston, in the rich sugar cane region, and other points in the Everglades' section and the lake and ridge districts.

Supporters of Representative Martin (Republican), of Massachusetts, declared yesterday they had enough pledges of votes to elect him House Republican leader on the first ballot.

They said 109 of the 169 Republicans in the new House had assured Martin of their votes. Some said the pledges exceeded 125.

Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, ill since last week with influenza, went to his office yesterday to devote a few hours to his mail.

Dr. George W. Calver, Capitol physician, said the condition of former Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, of California, was much improved, after an attack of indigestion.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7 (AP).—Pennsylvania's Supreme Court today cleared the way for a long-delayed grand jury investigation of campaign charges against Governor George H. Earle and 13 associates.

It threw out an appeal of Attorney General Guy K. Bard from a Dauphin County (Harrisburg) court decision that allowed District Attorney Carl B. Shelley, a Republican, to conduct the grand jury investigation.

servants under the act await formal recommendations of the advisory council, tax collection, bookkeeping and other barriers are understood to have convinced influential members of the board that the proposal is impractical in the immediate future. The council failed to agree at its last meeting on a stamp tax collection system similar to some used abroad.

Tax Action Delayed

Senator Norris (independent), of Nebraska, commented yesterday it would be "next to impossible" to expect farmers and housewife employers of domestic servants to keep pay roll and tax records.

In placing social security act amendments at the top of the Ways and Means Committee docket, Chairman Doughton declined to discuss the nature of the changes. He said he thought action on the social security program must necessarily precede formulation of a new tax program.

"It is not my purpose to do anything about tax legislation until Congress returns," Doughton told The Post. "The Treasury and the Joint Internal Revenue Committee have been studying the tax problem but have made no recommendations. Certainly I would not be inclined to open the question until I hear from the President or the Secretary of the Treasury. We can't do anything about it until the legislative program is known anyway."

Doughton says he expects to name a new tax sub-committee after Congress returns, but has not yet determined its personnel. He said Congressional tax action may depend in large measure on the extent and cost of the national defense program.

FPC Appoints D. W. Robinson General Counsel

Acting Chairman Clyde L. Seavey of the Federal Power Commission last night announced the election of D. W. Robinson, of Columbia, S. C., as general counsel for the agency, effective January 1.

Robinson, a Harvard Law School graduate and former faculty member of the University of South Carolina, will fill the vacancy created by the resignation several months ago of Oswald Ryan, now with the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

As counsel for Greenwood County, S. C., Robinson gained wide publicity when he won the so-called Duke Power Co. litigation involving construction of a public power project.

He later came to Washington, where he is counsel for the Public Works Administration's power division.

Chief Says FCC Won't Be Ended

Chairman Frank R. McNinch of the Federal Communications Commission yesterday issued a formal statement denying a story which appeared in The Post stating that Thomas G. Corcoran, New Deal adviser, was drafting legislation to abolish the FCC and to substitute a three-man agency.

While the report persisted in authoritative circles, McNinch said "it is utterly without foundation. This misinformation must have come from a source desirous of sabotaging the commission's work and seeking to discredit the functional reorganization which is bringing about a much more effective administration of the communications act," he added.

S. E. Christmas Lane Will Open Dec. 12

The Southeast Business Men's Association will sponsor a parade December 12 in connection with the formal opening of Christmas Lane on Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Prizes will be awarded for the best floats in the parade, the best marching unit and the best band. Applications for entry in the parade are being accepted by Mrs. F. M. Brinkley at 705 Eighth street southeast.

Oyster Publicity Drive Advocated To Aid Md. Trade

College Park, Md., Dec. 7 (AP).—A publicity campaign to acquaint consumers with the health-giving properties of oysters was recommended today by Dr. R. V. Truitt, director of the Chesapeake Biological Laboratory.

The campaign, he said, would aid in increasing the consumption of oysters and restoring the industry to the status it held in 1883, when Maryland produced 15,000,000 bushels, about 5 pints per person.

"Today, with a total production, country wide, of barely 12,000,000 bushels . . . A smaller quantity than Maryland alone produced in 1883, the per capita consumption is four-tenths of a pint," Dr. Truitt said, in explaining the major cause for the depression in the industry.

An added tax of 2 cents per bushel would bring about $40,000 annually for a sales development program, he added, "which sum is considered to be the minimum necessary."

Ballot in Mail, Voter Dies and Is Disqualified

Stockton, Calif. (AP).—Albert D. Bach, 30, marked an absentee ballot for the November 8 election, then died four days before the voting. Unable to find any law covering the case, officials put the question of counting Bach's ballot up to the district attorney. His ruling: Dead men can't vote.

$300 Fines Urged to Deter Jay Walkers

Public Hearing Set For Dec. 29 on Pedestrian Controls

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Washington pedestrians will face prosecution for disobeying the signals of traffic policemen and for crossing streets anywhere except at designated crosswalks, according to two proposed regulations announced yesterday by the Commissioners.

The suggested rules, drafted by Assistant Corporation Counsel E. W. Thomas and M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of traffic, will be discussed at a public hearing scheduled for December 29.

It was also reported yesterday that the District traffic fatality toll rose to 82 for the year with the death of Raymon Bryant, colored, 40, in Gallinger Hospital. Bryant was injured November 24 when his car crashed into a pole on Livington road southeast. Washington is 12 behind its fatality record for this time last year.

Up to Public

In announcing the proposed pedestrian regulations, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen emphasized that they "in no way reflect the sentiments of the Commissioners." He said the suggested laws were drafted merely for consideration.

"We want the general public to vote on whether they want pedestrian control," Hazen said.

The first proposal reads:

"No pedestrian shall disobey the signal of any police officer directing traffic at intersections or crosswalks. No pedestrian shall enter or cross a roadway at intersections where traffic is controlled by a traffic control device against the signal given unless directed to do so by a police officer. Police officers shall have full power to regulate traffic."

The other suggested rule is directed at pedestrians crossing streets other than at crossings. It reads:

$300 Fines Provided

A footnote to this proposed rule read:

"In the event that this regulation is adopted, it will be necessary to mark cross walks between the curb and street car loading platforms."

If convicted under provisions of the two suggested regulations, pedestrians will face a maximum fine of $300—as provided for in the District traffic act.

"Observance of san safety rules is a small price to pay if human lives are to be saved as a result," said Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer. "There must be something wrong somewhere if approximately 70 per cent of all our traffic fatalities are pedestrians."

Meanwhile yesterday, two Washingtonians were injured seriously in an accident near Lanham, Md. Brought to Casualty Hospital, Merle Miller, 25, of 1223 M street northwest, was treated for severe lacerations and a companion, Herman Pettingill, 35, of 3539 Alton place northwest, was admitted with a possibly fractured skull.

1,000 Lions Here To Greet World Leader Tonight

More than 1,000 Lions in the Washington area tonight will get together at the Mayflower Hotel to honor Walter F. Dexter, of Sacramento, Calif., president of the International Association of Lions Clubs, on an official visit to the District.

Dr. Dexter, state superintendent of public instruction in California, is the first educational leader to be elected president of Lions International.

He is in Washington on a visit to District 22 of the Lions, comprising Washington, Maryland and Delaware. Lions from the 42 clubs in District 22 will give a banquet at 6 p. m. and follow it with a meeting.

Justice Laws To Sit in Detroit

Justice Laws next week will observe for the District Court the functioning of the new Federal pretrial conferences in Detroit and Boston.

The conferences were authorized in new rules recently promulgated by the Supreme Court and it is believed that much time will be saved for lawyers and judges when the conferences are widely used.

Attorney Lawrence Koenigsberger will accompany Justice Laws to Detroit, where the justice will sit in several cases with Circuit Judge Joseph A. Moynihan. Justices Luhring and O'Donoghue are the other members of a special committee to study pretrial conferences for District Court.

Government Chemist Reveals Easy Way To Make Christmas Trees Fireproof

Cut tree butt at angle so ammonium sulphate solution will have access to fresh wood

This tree has taken up half of required solution; is only half resistant to fire

The same tree after taking up all the solution will not flame; will only char

Letting Them Absorb Ammonium Sulphate Solution Is His Method; Another Mixture Will Keep Them Green and Fragrant

The tragedy that results rom fires in Christmas trees can be avoided by a simple method developed by Martin Leatherman, an associate chemist in the United States Agriculture Department.

The method is this: first, cut the trunk at an angle, or in a V shape. Then weigh the tree and divide the weight by 4. This will give the weight of ammonium sulphate needed. Dissolve the ammonium sulphate in water, using one and a half pints of water for each pound of ammonium sulphate and place the solution in a glass jar, tin pail or earthen crock.

A narrow-mouth container is preferable, as it lessens evaporation. set the tree in the solution in a cool place and leave it to absorb the solution. When full absorption is obtained, the danger of combustibility is at a minimum.

"It should be strongly emphasized that the degree of fire resistance depends on the amount of the solution taken up by the tree," Leatherman said. "If the tree has been cut for too long it will not absorb the solution," he added.

Leatherman also advises treating inflammable decorations around the tree.

Trees brought in from the neighboring countryside are more moist and less likely to take fire, while trees brought here from long distances have dried out and are more quickly inflammable, he pointed out.

To keep a Christmas tree fragrant and green, fix it in a wide-mouth bottle or crock holding about a gallon. Mix five grams of citric acid and six grams of malic acid or pectin in three quarts of water. Add 15 grams of calcium carbonate to the acid solution and pour the whole solution into the crock. As the tree uses up the solution, add water. Hemlock, however, will not respond to this treatment.

Gosling to Discuss New Curriculum

Reconstruction of curriculum of senior high schools will be discussed at 3:45 p. m. today by Dr. Thomas W. Gosling, assistant superintendent of schools, at the second District Teachers' Institute in the McKinley High School auditorium, Second and T streets northeast.

More than 2,000 teachers are expected to attend the institute. The Board of Education recently appointed committees to map curriculum revision for lower grade and junior grade high schools.

Dr. Gosling will speak to teachers in colored schools at 3:45 p. m. tomorrow in the Armstrong High School auditorium, First and O streets northwest.

Firemen 'Rescue' Teacher Locked In School Here

Finding herself locked inside Curtis School, Miss Mary Pope, 2006 Columbia road northwest, a teacher, called the fire department yesterday afternoon and was "saved."

Miss Pope had been working late and when she started to leave found all doors and even the school yard gates outside had been locked.

She phoned the fire department. A machine from Truck Company No. 5 arrived and firemen quickly placed ladders on each side of the 12-foot fence. Miss Pope climbed over, thanked them and went home.

Throngs Attend Funeral of Soo, On Leong Head

Chinese Officials Join In Tribute to First 'Mayor' of Chinatown

Everybody knew Charlie Soo—or, at least, that was the impression yesterday as throngs of mourners gathered at funeral services in Calvary Baptist Church.

Charlie—Charles Lee Soo, 69—was president of the On Leong Tong, Chinese merchant organization, and was the original "mayor" of Washington's Chinatown. He died Saturday in Sibley Hospital.

Dignitaries from the Chinese Embassy joined the humblest of Chinatown merchants in sending Soo on the long journey to the land of his ancestors. Upwards of 2,000 persons, of all classes, creeds and races, sought entrance to the church.

Those who were unable to gain admittance, waited outside to watch the colorful funeral procession leave Congressional Cemetery. For nearly an hour traffic in the vicinity of Eighth and H streets northwest—in the heart of new Chinatown—was at a standstill. Police reserves were called to handle the crowds.

Dr. William S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Church, was assisted by the Rev. C. C. Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, in conducting the rites. Dr. Hung delivered the sermon in Chinese and repeated it in English.

Hundreds of floral tributes banked the alter. Four bands, two American and two Chinese, escorted the body to the cemetery.

The 20-piece military band of Myer Goldman headed the procession, playing "Onward, Christian Soldiers." Two members of the tong carried a large, flower-bordered picture of Soo.

An open car loaded with floral wreaths followed the picture bearers, and a dozen Chinese youngsters marched with banners inscribed in Chinese.

Directly in front of the hearse walked two-score tong members, each carrying a tall shaft bedecked with flowers. More than 100 cars formed the procession to the cemetery.

Soo came here 55 years ago. For more than 30 years he had been a dominating power in activities of the On Leong Tong. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nora Soo, an American, and five children, Raymond, Bernard, Charles, Edwards and Mrs. Margaret Mack.

Nazis, in Naples, Join Italian Cry, 'Long Live Tunisia'

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Dec. 7.—Fascists paraded today at Naples, Florence and Perugia to shouts of "Long Live Italian Tunisia!"—continuing clamorous demonstrations of so-called "solidarity with oppressed brothers" in French territory.

At Naples, 1,000 visiting members of Germany's "Strength Through Joy" organization joined the demonstration. The Germans, just arrived from Genoa, marched with Fascist students to the German consulate where they cheered for Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini. Classes had been suspended at the University of Naples.

Several hundred Italian students also marched to the French consulate where strong police guards turned them back.

They waved flags and mingled acclaim for Il Duce with cries for Tunisia, Corsica and Djibouti—French North African protectorate. Mediterranean Island department and Red Sea port of French Somaliland, respectively.

Britain Won't Give Up Colonies, MacDonald Announces

British

after the war. Other countries would be involved and the question would have to be examined by all these countries involved together."

He pointed out that the interests and desires of the native and European populations also would have to be taken into account.

Warns Against Mandates

MacDonald said extending of the mandate system, if it applied to those colonies which were not ready for self-government, would affect Gibraltar, Malta, Aden and Singapore. These, he said, constituted a "full string of absolutely vital, strategic points."

MacDonald expressed the government's willingness to consider "any proposal which might be brought forward for the equal distribution of raw materials." He asserted that even now "there is practically no restriction at all of access for anybody to the raw materials."

In some quarters MacDonald's declaration on colonies was considered ambiguous. Later in the debate Leopold Amery, Conservative, pressed him to go further and commit the government to a "closed door" policy on colonies for all time. Cries of "Answer!" "Answer!" came from all parts of the House, but MacDonald remained silent.

The belief persisted that the government was willing to talk with Hitler on colonies some day, but only if he "behaves himself" and agrees to a general settlement in return.

Chamberlain Sees Pirow

It also was believed that if the British ever reopened the subject, they would attempt to prevent Hitler from using the newly-acquired raw materials for military purposes.

MacDonald cited the recently concluded Anglo-American trade pact as evidence of Britain's readiness to break down the imperial preference system.

Noel-Baker declared Hitler's racial heories proved that the government and party in control of Germany were "unfit to rule subject people."

Chamberlain received Oswald Pirow, South Africa's minister of defense, for half an hour. Pirow gave Chamberlain an account of his tour of Europe, including his interviews with Hitler and Mussolini.

It is understood Pirow told Chamberlain that Hitler had spurned the so-called "Pirow plan" for the creation of a new German colony on the west coast of equatorial Africa, to be composed of a bit of the Anglo-French Cameroons, a slice of Portuguese Angola and part of the Belgian Congo.

straits. Restrictions placed on them by the conservation commission, they have said, have been "ruining" them.

The oyster market has been poor this year, and the oystermen have had difficulty in disposing of their catch. This has been cited by the Conservation Commission as a good reason for continuing the restricted areas and giving the oysters a chance to grow and multiply.

Captains of 120 dredgers in Chesapeake Bay had complained that low prices and poor supplies had caused their worst season, and many had demanded that reserved areas be opened.

Captain Assails Action

Wilbur Marsh, of Crisfield, dredger captain and one of the 18 named in the writs, said:

"The conservation department has been closing different rocks each year for the past eight years. They have been planting six or seven thousand oysters on them until now we have practically no bottoms to work on."

"For instance, Great Rock, where we were arrested today—the first time in my life—is a rock containing 500 acres. They planted 6,000 bushels on 50 acres in 1935 and closed the entire rock . . .

Face Imprisonment

"We decided that he (Judge Robert F. Duer, commission chairman) had control long enough and we opened it ourselves today.

"We found oysters practically all over the rock. They were natural growth oysters, not oysters that had been planted by the commission. I caught 150 bushels."

I convicted on the charges of taking oysters from a reserved area, the oystermen face fines of $100 to $200 or jail terms from 30 days to 6 months. Their cargoes may be confiscated and their boats may be impounded as security for the fine.

France's Hero Gets Nazi Salute

Paris, Dec. 7.—France's unkpown soldier received the Hitler salute from German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop this morning.

Afterwards Ribbentrop laid a wreath tied with ribbons decorated with a huge Nazi Swastika on the tomb under the Arc de Triomphe.

The NEW STYLE comes to the low-price field!

HERE is something more than just style for style's sake . . . here is brilliant new design with a reason! It started with a radiator and fan placed low for better cooling, greater engine quietness and smoothness. This led to shaping steel in flowing lines and sweeping curves entirely new to low-cost cars.

It gives the low-price field one of 1939's style leaders, the DE LUXE FORD V-8!

To style add the smooth power of the V-8 engine and the comfort of level, Center-Poise riding and you know why the 1939 De Luxe Ford V-8 "keynotes" its class in performance as well as in functional beauty—why it looks and acts like a costlier car.

See this car and drive it—today! It will tell you, in its own way, where it stands among America's low-cost cars!

Nazi Pact Spurs Leftist Fight to Oust Daladier

Premier Faces Loss of Parliament Majority; Labor Troubles Subside

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Dec. 7.—Premier Daladier, worried by dissension within his party and confronted by a Chamber of Deputies almost evenly split on his foreign and domestic policies, sought tonight to whip together a majority by which to govern France.

Conclusion of the good neighbor pact between France and Germany yesterday and subsequent French-German talks gave Daladier a sorely needed bargaining point for support of conservatives in the opening of Parliament tomorrow.

Rightiests had long insisted that France needed an understanding with Germany to be free to set her economic house in order.

Strikes Are Subsiding

The new pact with Germany, however, served to increase the leftist opposition to Daladier shown by strikes against his economic decree laws.

[Labor troubles were subsiding, however, and late today striking crews of French Line steamships voted overwhelmingly to return to work, ending a walkout which tied up numerous transatlantic liners, the United Press reported from Le Havre.—Editor's note.]

The government had dealt a blow to the Le Havre tieup by partly replacing the crew of the French liner Paris with navy men. The Paris sailed from Le Havre last night, picked up passengers today at Cherbourg and departed for New York.

The liner Normandie remained temporarily out of service under government orders.

Metal Workers to Return

A strike among metal workers in the Valenciennes region of northern France ended today when union delegates of 1,500 who had remained on strike out of the original 25,000 strikers voted to return to work tomorrow. Fourteen strike leaders were sentenced to prison terms of from ten days to a year.

The Senate appeared almost unanimous for Daladier, but in the lower house Socialists and Communists planned a bitter fight.

Rightists in Line

The Communist and Socialist left appeared certain, almost without exception, to vote against the government on questions raised in the Chamber of Deputies. The chamber right thus far has been tolerant of Daladier.

Provided Daladier holds the leadership of his party to its present fairly conservative line, there was little doubt that the right would continue to support his government as the only alternative of the People's Front, thus giving Daladier a fighting chance for perhaps a 120-vote majority.

However, the Radical-Socialist parliamentary group handed the premier what some called "a severe defeat" today by voting 40 to 9 against bringing a rightest-supported electoral reform before the impending session.

Bonnet, Ribbentrop Talk

Person close to the foreign ministry said the main subjects today were economic.

These sources indicated the problem of possible German support for unofficial Italian demands for French territory had been shelved.

Von Ribbentrop was said to have implied yesterday that Germany would not support Italian demands, at least not until they had been formulated officially. The German diplomat will leave tomorrow for Berlin.

Missing Russians Case Involves Paris Ex-Minister

Paris, Dec. 7 (AP).—Presiding Judge Albert Delegorgue demanded today that Marx Dormoy, former French cabinet minister, testify at the White Russian "missing generals" trial.

Dormoy, a Socialist leader, was interior minister in Leon Blum's government when Gen. Eugene de Miller, head of the White Russian war veterans, and Gen. Nicholas Skobline disappeared September 22, 1937, and Skobline's wife was charged with complicity with her husband to kidnap De Miller.

Witnesses at the trial of Mme. Skobline testified the government delayed a raid on a house rented by the Soviet embassy in connection with the case, and that police under Dormoy were discouraged from investigating too closely.

High Austrian Nazi Ousted From Party

Vienna (Thursday), Dec. 8 (AP).—Joseph Buerckel, Reichsfuehrer Hitler's deputy in Austria, has expelled Franz Winkler, former Austrian vice chancellor, from the Nazi party, this morning's papers announced.

The disciplinary action was taken because Winkler was involved in corruption in connection with Austria's biggest bread factory. Max Fuehrer, director of the factory, was arrested a few days ago.

O Globo as saying Brazil believed a defensive agreement would be valuable, though she feels capable of defending herself.

Brazil pushed for collective security at the Buenos Aires conference in 1936 and would do so at Lima, he was quoted as saying.

Upon his arrival at Callao, Hull issued a statement in which he said no effort should be spared in safeguarding the American Hemisphere's system of "order based on peace." He said he expected the Lima conference to contribute greatly to this end.

Rebels Continue Coast Raids, Plan Land Offensive

Hendaye, France, Dec. 7 (AP).—Spanish insurgent airplanes struck at government coastal points today in a continuation of extensive raids while an insurgent land offensive was reported under preparation.

Five insurgent planes bombed the port of Alicante, government dispatches said, damaging the British freighter Lake Geneva and killing several civilians.

(In government Spain it was reported that 4,018 persons had been killed and 6,174 wounded in Catalonia in air raids since the start of the war.)

U. S. Agent Quizzes Miss Hepburn In Smuggling Case

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Katherine Hepburn, motion picture actress, has been questioned by the United States attorney's office in connection with the smuggling case in which Albert N. Chaperau and Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer, are under indictment.

Assistant United States Attorney Joseph L. Delaney, who has been presenting additional evidence to the Federal grand jury, declined to comment today on Miss Hepburn's questioning, which took place during the last three days.

Jack Benny, Jack Pearl, George Burns and Wallace Ford also have been questioned and the grand jury was reported ready to call others in an effort to learn more about Chaperau, self-styled attache of the Nicaraguan consul general.

Zoning Board Denies Appeal To Build 2-Story Home Annex

The Board of Zoning Adjustment denied yesterday a variance in the zoning regulations to Mrs. Madeline M. Savage, wife of Sergt. William J. Savage, of the Eleventh Precinct, to permit completion of a rear two-story addition to her home at 1402 Massachusetts avenue southeast.

The board stated the addition was "90 per cent completed" and had affected adversely the light and air of neighboring homes. The original permit was granted last year by the District Commissioners upon "erroneous information submitted by the appellant," the board stated.

In another action the board denied a variance to the Combined Congregations of the Orthodox Jewish Synagogues of the District of Columbia to permit construction of a ritual baptizing house, or "Mickveh," in the rear of 2916 Eighth street northwest.

The board approved four cases. These were: Appeal by Joseph Walker for a one-story addition to rear of building at 1224 S street northwest. Appeal of John G. Weigel for permission to change a nonconforming use from a glass service and radiator repair shop to a dry cleaning agency at 401 K street northeast. Appeal of Elizabeth Essex for permission to change a nonconforming use from a warehouse to a public storage garage with gasoline service at 1741 Johnson avenue northwest. In the appeal by Arthur Ramsey to use buildings 2107-09-11 S street northwest for room and boarding house, the board approved the use of 2107 and 2109, but denied the use of 2111 for that purpose.

Two Milwaukee Doctors Testify In A.M.A. Inquiry

Drs. J. E. Rueth and A. L. Curtin, of Milwaukee's medical center, placed before an extraordinary grand jury yesterday the story of their unit's adversities at the hands of the American Medical Association.

The grand jury is concluding the eighth week of investigation into charges of Group Health Association, Inc., that the A. M. A. and the District Medical Society violated the Sherman antitrust act.

Dr. Curtin, a surgeon, and Dr. Rueth, an internal medicine expert, were among five medical center physicians expelled by the Milwaukee medical society.

Both doctors will speak at a meeting tonight of the Citizens Committee for Medical Freedom. Plans for a permanent organization of the committee will be discussed at the dinner meeting, to be held in Wesley Hall.

Providence Cuts Deaths In Traffic to 11 in '38

Providence, R. I., Dec. 7 (AP).—Providence, with aproximately 250,000 residents, has had only 11 traffic deaths this year, against 41 in 1937.

The principal factor in the reduction was the speed limit of 25 miles an hour, enforced without exception.

Newspaperman Holmes Joins Praise; Senator Calls Him Noble Warrior

A labor leader, a lawmaker and newspaperman — John L. Lewis, Senator George W. Norris and George R. Holmes—joined in eulogizing Paul Y. Anderson yesterday at Gawler's funeral chapel. Afterward the body of the 45-year-old star reporter, who died Tuesday, was started for Knoxville, his birthplace.

Lewis, an old and close friend of Anderson, praised his courage, his sincerity and his brilliance, and said that through his passion for truth, his impatience with conditions as they are, he had exhausted his nervous system and paid the penalty that brilliance demanded.

"A Noble Warrior"

Holmes, who had worked with Anderson on many of the big news events of two decades, said that Anderson's own record would stand as his greatest tribute.

"He was a great reporter," said Holmes, "a fine companion and a loyal friend."

Senator Norris, whom Anderson had always hoped would speak at his bier, described the reporter as a "noble warrior" in the battle to uplift humanity, a courageous and wise crusader whose unswerving goal was a square deal for the poor and the oppressed.

Early, Black, Hopkins Attend

Among the mourners at the services, besides Mrs. Anderson, were Stephen H. Early, secretary to President Roosevelt; Associate Justice Hugo Black, Harry L. Hopkins, several members of the Senate and House, and over 100 newspapermen.

Pallbearers were William C. Murphy, Leon Henderson, Robert S. Allen, Donald R. Richberg, Ben H. Lambe and Alexander F. Jones.

Congressmen May Visit Remote Islands

Honolulu, T. H. (AP).—Samuel W. King, Hawaii's delegate to Congress, wants a party of Congressmen to visit the five equatorial Islands which the United States has recently settled because of their importance to transpacific air routes. He suggests the trip be made next summer.

The so-called "line islands" are Howland and Baker, just north of the equator, and Jarvis, Enderbury and Canton, just south. They are now occupied by Hawaiian youths who are making weather observations.

of my boy. Can't you think of my baby."

Dies While Praying

Seated in the chair, the accused poison slayer of four men spread out her arms to the witnesses and mumbled, "isn't there anybody who will help me?—Is nobody going to help me?"

She beckoned, "Father, come close," to the chaplain, Father John Sullivan.

He intoned with her the Lord's Prayer.

In the midst of the recital, the current was applied. Her voice was stilled as the current arched her body.

Dead At 8:15

Dr. George W. Keil, prison physician, pronounced her dead at 8:15 p. m.

Mrs. Hahn's last words of the prayer were: . . . and deliver . . ."

She never finished the rest of the sentence: ". . . from evil."

The current was turned off at 8:10 p. m. Dr. Keil applied a stethoscope. Dr. George Heer did likewise. Dr. George Woodward, prison psychiatrist, also checked. Dr. Keil checked again, and finally pronounced her dead, first woman executed in Ohio's electric chair.

Concerned for Chaplain

Father Sullivan said that as he gripped the hand of Mrs. Hahn while she sat in the chair the woman whispered to him:

"Be careful, Father! You'll be killed!"

A Columbus undertaking concern claimed the body, but reported it had no orders as to its disposition. Mrs. Hahn's husband, Philip, a Cincinnati telegrapher, said in Cincinnati he was not sure about it.

Mrs. Hahn's 12-year-old son, Oscar, who is Philip Hahn's stepson, attempted to visit her at the last moment before she was taken to the execution room, but was refused. He had been with her most of the day.

He went to the prison chapel and remained there during the execution.

The specific crime for which Mrs. Hahn was put to death was the poisoning of Jacob Wagner, 78, gardener in Cincinnati's German settlement.

Prosecutors accused her of slaying three other old Germans and crippling another in a mass "murder for profit" scheme to gain the men's small fortunes, poisoning them as she ministered during illnesses.

She coveted their money to recoup losses in horse-race betting, the State charged.

All Appeals Rejected

Besides the death of Wagner, the prosecution introduced evidence seeking to link Mrs. Hahn with the deaths under similar circumstances of three other elderly Germans, Albert Palmer, George Gsellman, and George Obendoerfer.

Mrs. Hahn was indicted in Wagner's and Gsellman's deaths August 16, 1937, convicted November 6, 1937, of Wagner's slaying, and entered Ohio Penitentiary a year ago December 1.

All Ohio courts and the United States Supreme Court turned down her appeals for a new trial. Gov. Davey, in refusing to intervene, termed Mrs. Hahn a "cold-blooded" killer.

Poison Found in Purse

Scientists' findings pointed the way for her conviction. The jury of 11 housewives and one man, after a month's trial, said a poison-saturated pocketbook taken from Mrs. Hahn the day of her arrest clinched their belief in her guilt.

A toxicologist testified he found poison crystals in the purse.

A chemist said enough poison to kill 17 persons was detected in remnants of a supper found in Gsellman's attic room.

A Denver chemist testified Obendoerfer died of the same metallic poison in Colorado Springs, and the State showed Obendoerfer and Mrs. Hahn had traveled together to the mountain resort.

"Zero Hour" Plea Fails

Sidney Brant, one of the attorneys who tried vainly up until an hour before Mrs. Hahn's death to save her by an appeal to the Federal District Court, finally was the one to summon her for the death march.

Refused by the United States and State Supreme Courts, the Hahn attorneys made a dramatic bid today before the Federal District Court in Columbus. They contended, on grounds which Judge Mell G. Underwood refused, that Hamilton County (Cincinnati) Common Pleas Court did not have jurisdiction at the original trial.

Her attorney, Joseph H. Hoodin, said after the court's decision, "I thank the court for its consideration."

Warden Weeps

Mrs. Hahn's attorneys then went to her cell for a last visit, accompanied by Warden Woodard. With tears streaming from his eyes, Woodard went to his office 20 minutes later.

A chaplain took her son to the prison chapel.

Buckner is accused of raising funds among a protective bondholders' committee on a promise to have the Philippine government redeem the bonds.

To do this, it was charged, he gave parties in official Washington and made a trip to Manila. Maloney said the railroad bonds jumped from 11 to 81 when Buckner cabled a false report from Manila. He is also accused of profiting on the rising market.

Apparently unperturbed, Buckner said:

"This doesn't amount to much. It doesn't worry me, because my business deals were on the level."

He is free on bail pending grand jury action.

1 in 15 Persons Is Allergic to Certain Substances

One person out of 15 is sensitive to some food or substance to a sufficient extent to cause a bodily disorder, according to Dr. Theodore Beckwith, professor of bacteriology, University of California, at Los Angeles.

This is the minimum figure, he said, since some tests, the tuberculin test in particular, shows that between 40 and 50 per cent of the population possess some degree of sensitivity.

On the basis of the minimum figure, he says, the allergic disorders constitute one of the largest groups of chronic diseases in medical practice, since upward of 10,000,000 persons are affected. Persons may be sensitive not only to foods and drugs but to animals, plants, dusts and even to cold and heat.

A Shrinking Tax Base

Every time a piece of property is taken over by the Government, Corporation Counsel Seal told the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, the District loses a source of revenue. Unlike most other cities, Washington cannot extend its limits. So a large part of the city's development means loss of revenue along with increased expenditures.

From the long-range point of view that is the most serious local tax problem. In 1936 the Jacobs committee found that 54.6 per cent of the District's total land area is exempt from taxes. More than half of that nontaxable property belongs to the Federal Government. Other large areas are occupied by schools, churches, cemeteries, hospitals and embassies.

All cities have a large number of tax-exempt institutions. Only in Washington, however, does the Federal Government take more than 25 per cent of the total municipal area out of the taxable column. Moreover, the average city is able to expand its area to include new suburban developments as nontaxable agencies expand their holdings. Washington can only appeal to Congress to recognize the anomalous position in which it is placed by reason of the fact that its greatest industry—government—pays no taxes.

This situation would be less serious, of course, if Congress would approve a local income tax. But if Congress refuses to tax the salaries of Government employes for the benefit of the community in which they live, the long-time outlook for municipal revenue will be very gloomy. Obviously the Nation's Capital will not be able to support itself if it is increasingly deprived of the sources of revenue on which other local governments chiefly depend.

Mr. Seal believes that the problem might be less perplexing if Washington were permitted to levy its own taxes and spend its own money. But that is questionable. Congress might be even less willing to permit a local agency to tax Federal Government salaries than it is to tax them itself. And if Congress were no longer in direct control, further trimming of the Federal payment to the District could be expected on the ground that complete fiscal responsibility should go along with local management.

The chief hope of the District, from the viewpoint of revenue, seems to lie in bringing Congress to a recognition of the shrinking taxable area and increasing municipal obligations. That should result in both a modernized tax system and more aid from the Government now obtaining municipal service for less than its fair share of the cost.

Re-employment Plans

Mayor LaGuardia has undertaken to find new jobs for 700 former employes of the Sixth Avenue Elevated Line recently bought by New York City for the purpose of demolition.

Probably most people would agree that the municipality has a moral obligation to assist these displaced workers, some of whom have been in the service of the defunct company for a long time. Likewise it seems only fitting for various business and civic organizations, many of whose members will benefit directly or indirectly by the removal of an unsightly obsolete structure, to further the mayor's re-employment plans.

However, this sympathetic and co-operative attitude, rather taken for granted in this instance because of special circumstances, is a comparatively recent development. A sense of communal responsibility for the welfare of workers who are the victims of economic and social changes has been greatly strengthened as a result of the experiences of years of depression.

In more prosperous days, when employment was comparatively easy to find, the public was inclined to minimize or even ignore individual hardships resulting from business failures, technological improvements, and other changes leading to the disappearance of old industries. At the present time, however, we are impressed with the importance of making more systematic provision for those who through no fault of their own lose their positions.

Social insurance and pensions for the aged have emphasized the need of greater security for the working classes. But these are forms of assistance which fail to meet the needs of able-bodied workers in the position of the former employes of a discontinued elevated line. They want opportunities to work at regular occupations suited to their capacity. Of course that is true for all classes of the able-bodied unemployed. But the fact that Mayor LaGuardia is prepared to assume responsibility for placing a particular group thrown out of work because of action taken by the city is encouraging. It strengthens hope that through co-operative efforts suitable employment may, in the future, be found for a good many displaced workers who for lack of aid and guidance become public charges or fall back upon work relief.

Indecisive Decision

The Supreme Court decision handed down Monday in the case of the Consolidated Edison Co. involves two major issues. The first is whether the national labor relations act is applicable to a company not primarily engaged in interstate commerce. The second issue is the right of the NLRB to abrogate a collective bargaining contract.

The majority opinion, delivered by Chief Justice Hughes, points out that the company supplies power to three great interstate railroads and other enterprises extending far beyond State lines. Its operation is, therefore, a matter of Federal concern. Justices Reed and Black, who dissented in part, agreed with the majority opinion on this point, while Justices Butler and McReynolds maintained that the NLRB has no jurisdiction over the company.

Although the decision appears to mark a further liberalization of the Court's interpretation of the interstate commerce clause, there are a number of significant qualifying reservations. The majority opinion is careful to point out that future individual cases will determine whether any particular action in the conduct of intrastate enterprises affects interstate commerce "in such a close and intimate fashion as to be subject to Federal control."

In view of this warning, this particular decision seemingly constitutes no precedent for regarding all companies whose operations remotely affect interstate commerce as subject to Federal jurisdiction. There is also a strong suggestion that if the company's interstate activities were of less importance, it would not be subject to the provisions of the labor relations act.

The passage of a New York State law modeled along the lines of the Federal act is not regarded as ground for Federal refusal to intervene in the present instance. Again, however, there is a hint that if the State had intervened the need for the exercise of Federal authority might have been obviated.

In the second issue the decision is that the NLRB had no power to abrogate contracts entered into with an A. F. of L. union which the company was accused of favoring. But this does not necessarily imply that the NLRB is without power to invalidate union contracts.

In the case under consideration there was evidence showing the existence of discrimination and coercive practices. As a result the NLRB order to reinstate six employes, with back pay, was confirmed. And although the Court denied the right of the NLRB to abrogate contracts with the A. F. of L. union it coincidently stressed that the union, representing about 80 per cent of the company's employes, had not been given notice of the intention to set aside its contract. "We think," the majority opinion says, "that the brotherhood and its locals, having valuable and beneficial interests in the contracts, were entitled to notice and hearing before they could be set aside."

After examining the text of the three divergent opinions objective critics will be more than ever convinced that the national labor relations act is in need of legislative as well as judicial clarification and that the NLRB must take steps to systematize its method of procedure. The decision in this particular case constitutes only a partial defeat for the NLRB and an uncertain victory for the A. F. of L. union which has made an agreement with the Edison company. The door still remains open for an election to determine what organization is truly representative of the employes.

The Wheat Problem

Prior to the opening of the international wheat conference, held in London last July, Secretary Wallace issued a warning that the United States might be compelled to subsidize its wheat exports if denied a "fair share" of world outlets. This warning had no effect, as the conference adjourned without making any recommendations for handling the huge crops of last year. As a result our official threat to subsidize wheat exports has been translated into action, despite Secretary Wallace's frank admission that the practice is uneconomic and invites retaliation.

The only excuse that can be offered for resort to policies that we heartily condemn when practiced by others is that it provides a means of exerting pressure for a general agreement. So long as the United States was excluded from world wheat markets, because of short crops, the Government was unable to persuade other exporting countries of the folly of competitive dumping of this commodity. Now that we are again in a position to export, and prepared to spend a large sum to subsidize sales abroad, it is more probable that some international agreement will be devised to regularize and stabilize the world wheat trade.

There will soon be opportunity of discovering whether that is the case. Ambassador Kennedy, chairman of the International Wheat Advisory Committee, has summoned members to a conference in January. Since the last meeting the situation has grown more acute and failure to reach an accord this time would undoubtedly aggravate the existing demoralization in world wheat markets.

It is an understatement to say that the danger of a dumping war among wheat-producing countries is greater than at any time in recent years. Such a war is already in progress. The task before the scheduled conference is to devise plans that will call a halt to hostilities.

The F. P. A.

This week marks the twentieth anniversary of an experiment in public enlightenment the usefulness and importance of which has grown steadily with the years.

When the Foreign Policy Association was founded, shortly after the armistice, it had only 141 members. That number has increased to 17,000. But this gratifying rise in the membership total only partially reflects the outstanding success achieved by the organization as a disseminator of accurate, unbiased and authoritative facts on world affairs.

Through its weekly bulletins, its fortnightly reports, its "headline" books and, last but not least, the open-minded forum discussions held under the auspices of F. P. A. branches throughout the country, the association has reached a very wide audience. Through these activities the F. P. A. has played an extremely useful role in making Americans better informed about world developments and the impact of those developments upon our own lives and fortunes.

In many countries government-fostered propaganda and rigorous censorship have served to keep even highly intelligent people in ignorance of what has been happening in the world around them. This is not the case in the United States. It is fair to say that no people are now as a whole better informed on world affairs than is the case with citizens of the United States. And in the development of this healthy and encouraging state of affairs the Foreign Policy Association has rendered yeoman service.

At the beginning of its twenty-first year, the role of the F. P. A. as a disseminator of honest information is more important than ever. Its founders, officers and members are to be congratulated for having rendered a truly patriotic and democratic service with rare thoroughness and skill.

Of Ministers' Sons

There is an old tradition that the minister's son is rather likely to turn out to be a pretty wild and irresponsible fellow—the sort you might expect to see shooting up a frontier saloon, or running a three-card monte game on a Mississippi River steamboat, or scribbling verses in a garret for the price of a pint, or barking for the Tattooed Venus on a carnival midway.

Just how this tradition originated is not quite clear. It may have been based on a theory that children are able to stand just so much respectability and no more; that the rigors of a clerical upbringing, involving, perforce, the necessity of setting a good example to other little boys, are calculated to produce in the end something quite opposite.

Anyhow, the tradition appears to be all wet, not to say dripping. A good deal of statistical material can be marshaled to show that ministers' sons have a much better chance of glory than the sons of lay-folk. At any rate, ministers' sons are represented far out of proportion to their numbers in such compendiums of distinction as Who's Who and the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The first publication of the newly organized Sons and Daughters of the Clergy, whose headquarters are in the Hotel Barclay, New York, lists some 75 names of famous "parsonage progeny" of the past and present. Among literary figures we find, for instance, Addison, Jane Austen, Coleridge, Goldsmith, Hazlitt, Holmes, Lowell, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Tennyson, Pearl Buck and Countee Cullen. Among scientists there are Agassiz, Millikan, Osler; among inventors, Morse and the Wright brothers; among scholars and educators, Gildersleeve, Bancroft, Furness and Hutchins; among painters and sculptors, Reynolds, Van Gogh, Barnard; among architects, Sir Christopher Wren and Ralph Adams Cram; among statesmen, Burr, Cleveland, Peter Stuyvesant, Woodrow Wilson, Charles Evans Hughes, President Douglas Hyde of Eire; among actors, Otis Skinner, Paul Robeson, Dame Sybil Thorndyke; among philosophers, Emerson, Swedenborg, Nietzsche; among journalists, Luce, Lorimer, Dorothy Thompson; among empire builders, Cecil Rhodes.

These, of course, are by no means all the names on the list and the list itself is admittedly incomplete. Supplementary lists are promised in forthcoming issues.

It is all very impressive, certainly. But it is only fair to point out that a Society of Sons and Daughters of Laymen, if one existed, could also produce an impressive list. It might include, among many hundred others, such names as St. Francis, Shakespeare, Dante, William the Conqueror, Joe Di Maggio, George Washington, Admiral Dewey, Napoleon, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Michael Angelo, Copernicus, Descartes, Chaucer, Pius XI and most other Popes, prelates and clerics of the Roman rite.

The Sales Tax

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your recent editorials on the District's tax problem, especially "The Local Tax Dilemma," deserve the commendation of all fair-minded people.

I should like to stress a few points which seem to have been overlooked or disregarded by advocates of a sales tax, who profess allegiance to taxation based on ability to pay. They have made no real concessions in suggesting exemptions on certain commodities. They intended to raise about $5,000,000 by a sales tax. So long as they offset commodity exemptions by increases in tax rates under the sales levy to raise the same $5,000,000 by a sales tax, they are merely performing sleight-of-hand tricks. The cold facts are that they want to raise the necessary revenue by a sales tax rather than a graduated income tax.

In connection with the proposed sales tax it is important to note that no system of commodity exemptions can be an equitable substitute for exemptions under the income tax allowed the taxpayer based on the size of his family. Under a sales tax, an income of $1,500 (or any other amount) in the hands of a single person is virtually identical with the same dollar income in the hands of a married man, with a wife and 1 (or more) dependents. Actually, all of us know there is a world of differences as to tax-paying ability. The income tax recognizes these differences. What can sales tax advocates offer in this connection, except vague mouthings as to tax-consciousness?

The point made in the above paragraph is not a minor defect to be cured by rewording the provisions of a sales tax bill. It is inherent in any tax based on the necessity to consume.

The Real German People

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Hitler's present efforts to use pressure on English elections gives the democracies plenty of excuse for appealing, in their turn, to the real German people. Through our spokesmen, we can let the German people know we are with them at heart, and can trust them, as a free, uncensored people. Let us speak clearly and boldly to them.

We can also let them know we will have no more to do with their present masters, who, by the very act of censoring them strictly, prove they are not their true representatives. It might prove well, indeed, to sever relations permanently with the present misrepresentatives of the German people. This would not be war on our part; and Hitler could never afford to risk overthrow by driving the Germans into war against us in order to uphold their present serfdom. Hitler knows well enough how far not to go!

This procedure has caused rulers to be overthrown before, and it can do so as easily again. One must have very little faith, indeed, in democracy to believe that the great free peoples of the earth, in all their present wealth, can be utterly powerless to regain the hearts of the German and Italian people, due to this fascism, this Old Man of the Sea! The democracies have the wherewithal to make such an overwhelming bid to the fascist-ridden peoples as must make the overthrow of fascism sure and certain—and very soon in coming. Plenty of discouraged democratic hearts in fascist lands will find new strength and hope and courage in seeing us bid directly to their peoples to take adventures in the name of freedom. JAMES C. FIELDS.

America And Aggressor Nations

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a famous speech prophesying quarantine of aggressors, the President showed clearly enough that American interests demand the establishment of orderly and peaceful processes of international action rather than the enthronement of war as the customary basis of international relations. American interests coincide with the claims of humanity. But after pointing out the common path of American interests and of humanity, our President reneged when his speech displeased isolationists. He continued the policy of economic aid to the aggressors, without further effort to demonstrate to the American people the true interests of the country.

The attitude of the public toward Italy in 1935 shows how easily the powerful and persuasive influence of the President could lead the American people when self-interest and the claims of humanity coincide. The President, on occasions, has shown bold leadership. He has backed Secretary Hull in his insistent and persistent campaign to lower trade barriers. But the President has funked his job as leader on the major questions of international policy.

His Secretary of State frequently repeats pious platitudes about the beneficence of peace and international justice, but neither he nor the President departs from abstractions and generalities. They have failed completely in their duty of defining for the American people in concrete terms the material interests of the country in international peace, and in their duty of persistent advocacy of a concrete program of withdrawing American aid from aggressors and of hampering attacks on the peace of the world.

So even after the Japanese have taken all the Chinese ports, and they alone are in a position to benefit by shipments of American munitions, the President continues to allow the Japanese to buy armaments here when he could stop it by a stroke of his pen. After 18 months of expanding aggression, he has not called upon Congress to stop shipments of war materials to Japan. He has not even denounced the commercial treaty with Japan.

Now in his Thanksgiving proclamation, the President's leadership has sunk to the mockery of asking us to pray for the unfortunates who are maimed and homeless because his American policy has given economic aid to barbarous conquest. It passes understanding how either the President or his pacifist and isolationist allies can pray for the Chinese, the Spaniards, the Czechs, the Jews, or any of the maltreated foreign groups when their isolationist policy—that is, their acts as distinguished from expressions of pious principles and hopes—has encouraged and supported the aggressors.

Send Diplomats Away

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The way to deal with Hitler and the Jewish question is to send the German diplomatic and consular representatives back to Germany on the grounds that nothing they say is believable, that nothing they or their nation promises even by most solemn treaty has any validity and that the life and culture of Germany and of the United States afford no common basis of intercourse or association; to return to Germany all Germans; to investigate all naturalized Germans and revoke the naturalization of all those whose life and acts do not demonstrate that they have ceased to be German and return those to Germany who have not become really American; to confiscate the property of all such by measures similar to those in force in Germany and to administer such property or the proceeds of its sale for the benefit of an equal number of refugee German Jews admitted to take the place of the deported Germans.

Hitler is surprised at this country's meddling in the internal affairs of Germany. Doubtless that sensitive soul's feeling would be hurt that any country would think that a Jew—even a German Jew—was preferable to a citizen of Nazi Germany, but except for such citizens all the rest of the world would understand perfectly and such citizens can be dismissed as people of little knowledge, less understanding and even less of all other desirable qualities. Hitler could not possibly complain of this country's following German precedent and such action might enable him and his countrymen to see themselves as others see them.

More Traffic Police

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If discussion of pedestrian traffic control has not been finally exhausted, I hope you will let me suggest that a couple of uniformed traffic policemen permanently located at what are considered dangerous crossings would be an experiment worth trying. Objection to this merely because it is a spy system would be made. By reckless speeders, of course. For if there is anything an unlawful autoist specially dislikes it is being spied on, and this seems to be about the only means by which to make him be good.

After a week or more of this supervision by policemen in plainclothes, provided insatiate speeders too anxious to get somewhere were held in check without fear or favor, one plainclothes guardian at each dangerous crossing would be enough. With this check in constant operation, it would at all times be possible for pedestrians to cross over decently and in order.

As far as controlling the pedestrian is concerned it is impossible. The reason why prohibition got a bad name and failed was owing to the fact that the footsteps of the pedestrian could not be regulated by law.

A Protest

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am forced to comment on the very unfair presentation of the news item concerning the G. H. A. appearing in The Post of December 2. I have always respected The Post as a fair narrator of the news and for this reason the story referred to was all the more discouraging.

The headline of the article in question was definitely misleading; and knowing the cursory reading habits of a large proportion of the public, your subsequent indifferent relation of the actual facts could not undo the erroneous impression it most surely conveyed. Until discrimination against the G. H. A. by Washington hospitals has ceased, headlines such as appeared in Friday's Post are decidedly out of order.

DX Man

THE FIRST RADIO I ever saw was a complicated system of tubes, dials, wires and batteries that seemed to have something to do with a noise coming from a tin horn. The set was being operated by a gray-haired neighbor, who twisted the controls with the final air of a man who's got the atom harnessed and knows just what he's going to do with it. I felt impressed and vaguely uneasy.

After a while I said, "Mr. Smudgeon, aren't they going to play the music that the man said they would?"

"They just played it," Mr. Smudgeon told me scornfully. "This is a radio, son, not a talking machine. You can't pick up the record and put it back on. That was Pittsburgh."

Well, I hadn't heard anything except a loud, crackling noise, but I knew there must have been music if Mr. Smudgeon said so. And Pittsburgh! Gosh, that was a long way for noise to come through the air. Must be 500 miles, anyway. Maybe more.

"Come back again some night when the reception is better," the old man told me. "There's a lot of static tonight." He wiped his spectacles thoughtfully. "You know," he said, "I bet that some time almost everyone will have one of these machines."

That was my first experience with the new invention, radio. I got so interested that I read some articles in a boys' magazine and even tried to wade through a technical book that I found at the public library. It was no use, though, the whole thing remained just as mysterious and uncanny as it had seemed that first night.

But after about a year of trying to understand condensers and frequencies a great thing happened. I was given a two-tube radio as a Christmas gift. Here was my chance to get a feeling of personal power. Maybe I never would be able to know why the thing worked, but I could certainly twist a couple of dials.

Thus began my career as a DX-man. I'd picked that term up from the columns of the Boston Globe. The distance fans were always writing in to ask what station had been broadcasting a described program at a given time. They hadn't been able to get the station identification but they knew the approximate wave-length. So some other fan who'd heard the program more clearly would write back that the doubtful station was Los Angeles—or Seattle. In this manner life was made hideous for the friends and family of the boastful DX-men.

A gaunt, sleepy-eyed crew they were, the DX-men. They went about their daytime jobs like men in a dream, spent from sitting up night after night, ears glued to headphones, energies spurred by the always-present hope of pulling in the Coast.

And I, at the age of 12, was one of them. Spelling and arithmetic held little interest for a lad who had prowled noiselessly downstairs at 4 o'clock in the morning and picked up a test broadcast from KOA, Denver, Colo. I felt so good about that feat that as soon as it was light I went out and rode my bicycle up and down deserted Main street. At high speed, too.

About this time a keen rivalry sprang up between me and another youthful radiomaniac, a boy whom I always called Sparks. He always called me Sparks, for that matter, but don't let that confuse you.

Sparks had only a one-tube set, but it was just as powerful as mine. He had the advantage of having his radio on a table beside his bed, where he could turn to it in the small, cold hours when the Western stations came in most strongly. That was how, a few days after I had heard Denver, he spoiled my triumph by pulling in KFI at Los Angeles. He got verification, too. That is, he wrote the station what he had heard and they sent back a card saying, in effect, "That was certainly us."

The duel between Sparks and me lasted for more than a year. At the end of that time we each had picked up about 150 different stations, had the walls of our rooms plastered with verification cards and had our parents wondering what the younger generation was coming to. Either of us could tell you the power, wave-length and distance of any station in the country. Using our town as a hub, we'd worked out all the distances with a compass and a large map. Very scientific, but neither of us yet knew what went on inside the little magic boxes over which we'd spent so much time.

A few years later, most of my friends became orchestra-conscious. They'd sit around a radio for hours, listening to one famed jazz band after another. One night, feeling a revival of my old-time enthusiasm, I wanted to see whether I could pick up any distance on this glistening limousine of a radio. But could I try? Certainly not. Cab Calloway was due to broadcast some hot licks or something.

Believe me, I learned then the hard lot of the pioneer in any field. Here I'd spent years of sleepless nights helping develop this marvel of modern science, creating a demand for radios that could get distance. And now, as a reward, I had to give way to a pack of jazz-hounds who only wanted to have their jungle-songs served up without static.

Mr. Garner's Poker Game

By Mark Sullivan

He Holds Strong Cards

VICE PRESIDENT Garner has a friend who is a Washington newspaperman, Mr. Bascom Timmons, of the Houston (Tex.) Chronicle. Mr. Timmons recently reported on the state of mind of the Vice President about coalition in the coming Congress between Republicans and conservative Democrats.

SULLIVAN

About coalition, Mr. Garner takes the same position that Calvin Coolidge took about sin. He's opposed to it. "John Nance Garner will lend no encouragement to any efforts at coalition . . . of Republicans and conservative Democrats against the Administration."

Mr. Garner's reason is, as often, largely political:

"He is a party man and his party still has an overwhelming Senate majority and a House majority . . . Under these circumstances Mr. Garner thinks that wherever the legislative ball is carried within the next two years, his party should carry it. And his efforts upon his return to Washington are all expected to be in that direction. Learned as he is in political science, he knows that whatever political benefits might accrue to anyone through a legislative coalition would accrue to the Republicans."

WELL, the Vice President's views are clear. No Republican-conservative Democratic coalition for him. But before Mr. Garner has any need to worry about that, he must first give thought to another kind of coalition. This other coalition is one which Mr. Garner undoubtedly favors and will try hard to bring about.

What Mr. Garner needs to be anxious about, and to work hard for, is a coalition between two men—a coalition between John Nance Garner and Franklin Delano Roosevelt. If Mr. Garner can bring this personal coalition about, then he won't need to worry about any party coalition in Congress. In that case, Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner will agree on a program for Congress and the united Democratic majority will support it.

But if Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner can't agree on a program, if they can't achieve a personal coalition, in that case there will be a different story. In that case the Democrats will split and the conservative wing of it will take a position more or less coinciding with that of the Republicans. That if it happens, will be a Republican-conservative Democratic coalition in Congress, whether Mr. Garner wants it or not.

FOR MR. GARNER and Mr. Roosevelt to agree will need a lot of coalescing. In the past Congress they have been far apart. Mr. Garner doesn't like a big Government debt—and Mr. Roosevelt makes it bigger and bigger. Mr. Garner didn't like tampering with the Supreme Court — and Mr. Roosevelt attempted it. Mr. Garner does not like the sit-down strike—and Mr. Roosevelt did nothing to discourage it. Mr. Garner thinks Congress is a branch of Government equal to and co-ordinate with the Presidency — and Mr. Roosevelt treated Congress, and the Democratic Party leaders in Congress, including Mr. Garner, as if their business was to rubber-stamp what Mr. Roosevelt wanted done. In sum, Mr. Garner is the head and symbol of the traditional Democratic Party—and Mr. Roosevelt is the head and symbol of the New Deal.

In the recent Congress Mr. Roosevelt didn't feel he needed to pay much attention to Mr. Garner and the Democrats whom Mr. Garner symbolizes. But recent events have changed the picture. Everybody knows that Mr. Roosevelt's failure in his attempt to "purge" Democrats similar to Mr. Garner was a sign of popular support for the Garner type of Democrat. Everybody knows that Mr. Garner is now in a position to meet Mr. Roosevelt as an equal, perhaps a little more than an equal. Everybody knows the two must either get together—or go through the coming Congress and into the 1940 Presidential election with a divided party doomed to defeat.

AS MR. GARNER and Mr. Roosevelt maneuver toward each other for a personal coalition, the process has some resemblance to the game of poker. Mr. Garner has some strong cards, especially the need for party unity to avoid party defeat. Mr. Roosevelt also has some strong cards—his personal popularity and the implied threat that unless the Democratic Party goes his way he does not care whether it is beaten or not. Washington feels that in the game of poker, Mr. Garner can accomplish more with a given number of cards than any other man in public life. Indeed legend says that Mr. Garner with a pair of deuces can sometimes beat an opponent with a pair of ten-spots.

If Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner agree on a reasonably conservative Congressional program, the Democratic Party will unite behind it. But if Mr. Roosevelt insists on more New Deal legislation, the Democratic Party will assuredly divide, and the conservative wing will as a matter of course be found in what will amount to coalition with the Republicans.

Japanese Call War With Russia Inevitable

Tokyo Will Be Aggressor, They Reason, So Can Pick Own Time—Held Likely When China's Fall Releases Army

By Relman Morin
Correspondence of the Associated Press.

Tokyo.—The second Russo-Japanese war is only a question of time—Tokyo time—qualified observers here believe today.

Only recently armies of the two nations were facing each other across the southwestern tip of the Siberian border, guns were booming, airplanes were flying, bayonets were bloody. Then suddenly diplomats patched up the trouble and quiet returned.

But it is a foregone conclusion in Tokyo that this is merely the calm before the storm.

Most Japanese believe that war with Russia is inevitable. They thought it had come in the summer of 1937, when opposing patrols came to grips on the Amur River. They thought surely it would come, a month later, when the China "incident" was gathering momentum.

But they did not see the recent Changkufeng incident as the start of the expected conflict.

Tokyo to Be Aggressor

The reason is this:

Japanese believe that Japan must take the initiative if there is to be a war. They do not think Russia will ever attack. Hence, they are confident that Japan can and will pick her own time to start it.

It is not convenient now to enter the lists against the Soviets. There is too much unfinished business in China.

So shrewd, one-legged Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japan's ambassador to Moscow, was given instructions to talk peace. Through him Japan took the initiative in patching up the trouble. Shigemitsu offered concessions.

As the Japanese expected, Russia accepted them.

This tended to confirm the theory here that Russia doesn't want war. It also substantiated the belief, generally held in Tokyo, that Russian troops on the border acted independently of Moscow in starting and continuing the clash.

But it will start spluttering again in the not-too-distant future, the Japanese believe. They accept the proposition coldly, without emotion. They are resigned to it, and at the same time perfectly confident that the victory they scored in 1904 will be repeated, this time on a much larger scale.

Japanese Self-Hypnotists

Why this war?

Japan has political, strategic, but mainly economic reasons for believing it must come.

Japan and Russia occupy opposite poles of political theory. Japan is a capitalistic country, more so in some ways, than any other in the world. For Japanese capitalism is encysted in a family system, and a condition of vested rights that goes back through centuries.

Consequently, the ruling class, which includes big business, the army, and the privileged cliques, abhors the very word "communism" with a violence that transcends hatred, and reaches the pinnacle of fury.

That's one reason. And, since the Japanese is a creature of ideas, amazingly malleable, completely given to self-hypnosis, it may be the most important.

The strategic side revolves around one name—Vladivostok.

Nobody knows what instruments of destruction and terror Russia has concentrated around her great Far Eastern port. The Japanese tell tall tales of super-airplanes, super-submarines, super-guns capable of reaching all the way to Tokyo. And they believe them.

"Buffer State" Complex

Besides, the Japanese have a "buffer state" complex. For years, their military experts preached the necessity of having buffer state between Russian territory and Japan. Korea came into Japanese hands. Then Japan had to have a buffer between Korea and Russia. So there is Manchukuo. Inner Mongolia is now on the way to becoming a buffer for Manchukuo.

But these successive ramparts run northwest of Japan proper. The Japanese want still another chunk of land due north of the main islands. Then, at least for the time being, they will feel fairly safe from the dangers of a Russian onslaught.

Japanese business, eyeing the maritime province, Lake Baikal, and the northern half of Saghalien, adds the final touch to the picture.

In those areas are oil, precious metals, iron, coal, and timber. In the seas that wash their coasts are some of the richest fishing grounds in the world.

Japan already has a finger in this luscious pie. Through an arrangement with the Soviets—which produces almost as many "incidents" per year as the Siberian border—she is working some of the oil fields.

Likewise, her fishing fleets go into Russian waters every season. Before they leave port, however, there is always a long squabble over visas and permits. Japanese fishing interests perennially complain that Russia won't live up to treaties and trade agreements, and deliberately tries to sabotage the annual catch.

The Storm Is Gathering

The Japanese foreign office accuses Russia of "insincerity," and the word "atrocities"—in the theoretical sense—is sprinkled all over Japanese newspapers. This is an annual nuisance to Japan. She would like to end it, once and for all.

The storm is gathering.

In Tokyo today, you frequently hear it said that the million or more Japanese troops, now fighting in China, won't be home for a long, long time. The reports have it that these men are ticketed for Siberia, as soon as the China fighting passes from an active stage, and as soon as Japanese finance is able to bear the burden.

In other words, if this holds true, Japan will go directly from war with China to war with Russia.

From an economic-military standpoint, there seems to be a good deal of logic in the theory. Japan already is mobilized. The perilous preliminary period of getting huge bodies of men under arms would not appear, because the men already are under arms. So, too, with the task of gearing Japanese industry and finance to war.

The machinery Japan set in motion against China would simply be turned against Russia. Having started the juggernaut, Japan needs only to change its direction.

This may be the real implication in the words first spoken by Gen. Baron Sadao Araki, minister of education, and later reiterated by Lieut. Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, minister of war:

"Japan must be prepared to fight for 10 or even 20 years, if necessary."

National Museum Draws Fine Line In New Eel

National Museum scientists yesterday were excited over the discovery of a new fish, one of the world's queerest and rarest, a 7-inch eel which is no bigger around than wrapping twine at the head and the size of fine thread at the tail.

Dr. Paul Bartsch, of the National Museum staff, found the odd specimen in the open sea off the coast of Cuba.

Dr. L. E. Schultz, curator of fishes, would like to dissect the creature, especially to learn the functions of a pair of minute bone tubes opening just back of the head, but the specimen is far too important intact.

When caught the Cuban eel was gray in color and almost transparent. Superficially it resembles the genus of "snipe eels," found in sea depths over most of the earth, but it lacks the characteristic jaws of this genus.

Lawyer Pleads With Missing Son To Communicate

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Dec. 7.—Joseph G. Myerson, attorney whose son, Robert, disappeared from Harvard University December 1, today issued the following statement:

"I have not yet heard from my son, but I have every confidence that he is all right and that he will succeed in his plan to establish himself without my help. Jobs are not easy to get, but Robert is a boy who will stick it out and not permit himself to become discouraged. The school authorities inform me that his grades were satisfactory. While he failed to achieve the high standard he had set for himself, this undoubtedly was due to the after effects of a recent illnses.

"I am confident that he will soon realize that, although we are sure he is all right, his continued silence will naturally give his family some concern and that he will accordingly communicate with me. It is not my desire that the boy be apprehended or interfered with."

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

On The Way To Lima

THE PRELIMINARY reports about the Pan-American Conference, which is to be opened at Lima, in Peru, on Friday, have perhaps given the impression that the United States has adopted a novel, undefined, but grandiose, scheme involving new and complicated commitments, some sort of ideological crusade for "democracy" and an unlimited expenditure on armaments. This is unfortunate. For while the event will deflate this impression, the immediate effect is to confuse public opinion here and in South America and to create unnecessary difficulties.

LIPPMANN

The fact of the matter is that there has been no enlargement of American foreign policy. On the contrary, American commitments in the outer world are today more restricted than they have been at any time in the past 40 years. It was in 1898, just about 40 years ago, that the United States emerged from its traditional isolation in this hemisphere to play the part of a world power, first in Asia and then in Europe. The victory of Admiral Dewey in Manila Bay made the United States an Asiatic power; the Chinese policy of John Hay established the United States as a power on the Asiatic mainland. The American intervention of 1917, which decided the outcome of the World War, made the United States a power in European affairs, and for a decade after the war, though the United States had refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles or to join the League of Nations, we took a leading part in the liquidation of the treaty and in the postwar reconstruction.

THE PERIOD from 1898 to about 1931, from the Spanish-American War to Secretary Stimson's effort to restrain Japan in Manchuria, covers our career as a power with national commitments outside the Western Hemisphere. The period since 1932 has seen the reduction of our commitments; that is to say, of the commitments we mean to defend with arms, to their original limits, to what they were throughout the nineteenth century. Thus we have granted independence to the Philippines, and as regards China we have demonstrated by our acts that we do not regard the integrity of China or the open door in Asia as a fighting matter. We have liquidated our position as an Asiatic power, and we are back where we were before 1898. We have also withdrawn from Europe, and have no commitments in Europe either by treaty or by policy.

WHAT REMAINS is the original and indestructible core of all American policy: The defense of the security of the United States against invasion and against intimidation. What we call the Monroe Doctrine is simply the means by which the United States maintain its security. For Americans have always realized that if this hemisphere were opened to European imperialism, as Africa, the Balkans, and the Near East have been open, we should have as our near neighbors formidable and quarrelsome great powers. We should then be entangled in their quarrels, we put the width of the two great oceans between ourselves and the warlike states of Europe and Asia.

On this conception of American security all the essential principles of American foreign policy rest. Because the two oceans are our protection we have a great Navy and we do not have a great Army. Because we face two oceans we built the Panama Canal to connect them. For if we did not have the canal, we should have to have two navies instead of one navy. Only if the passage of the canal is secure can we be secure at the same time in both oceans. Therefore, we are vitally and immediately interested in the attitude of all the countries that are within striking distance of the canal; that is to say, in the attitude of Central America, of the Caribbean Islands, and of the countries on the north coast of South America, Colombia, Venezuela, Ecuador, Peru, Brazil, and in British, French, and Dutch Guiana.

SINCE THESE countries are so placed that a hostile attitude could endanger the safety of the canal, we cultivate their friendship and at the same time insist upon their independence of Europe and Asia. This is the region of our most fundamental interest, and no doubt must exist in any one's mind that this interest will always be defended vigilantly and resolutely.

For the same reason, because our security is in two oceans it has always been and must always be a cardinal principle of American foreign policy to prevent the formation of naval alliances between Asiatic and European powers. In 1922 we compelled Great Britain and Japan to dissolve their alliance, though nothing is more improbable in all the world than a war between the United States and Great Britain.

Today we see a pact, which may be or might become an alliance between Japan on one side and the Rome-Berlin axis on the other. It is not an occasion for hysterical alarm. But it is not a matter that prudent statesmanship can disregard. To prevent this pact from crystallizing unfavorably to ourselves, we shall, by developing the Navy and its strategic bases and our association with the Latin-American countries, make the conception of a two-ocean alliance impracticable.

INSOFAR as there is any confusion about our purposes at Lima, the confusion arises from speculative notions that we wish to draw the Latin-American countries into some sort of general defensive alliance, and that we wish to extend our military power beyond the strategic approaches to the Canal. These notions ought to be abandoned if they are entertained and dissipated if they are not.

The project of a general alliance, whatever the form it takes, would add nothing to our security and might very well impair it. To put the matter quite plainly, the danger point in South America is Brazil. This is the country in which disguised conquest by penetration is most tempting and most feasible. As a safeguard against this danger a general Pan-American treaty would have no value. For the near American neighbors of Brazil, particularly the Argentine Republic, will make no promises that would be impressive and relevant; and, on the other hand, if trouble which had its origin in Europe broke out in Brazil, the interest of the Argentine would be at least as great as our own in acting against the danger. It will be wise, therefore, to avoid asking for promises, which are at such a discount in the world today, and to rely on performance actuated by vital national interests.

VAGUE IDEALS and insufficient force, rhetorical policy and armed insufficiency have been at the root of all the disappointments and humiliations of the democratic nations. The effective answer to agitation against the United States in South America is to make very clear our own purpose and to demonstrate our capacity to carry out those purposes. If our ambitions are understood and trusted, if our authority is sufficient and is respected, we shall have done what is essential and we shall have the sound foundation of peace in this hemisphere.

Mackay's Will Leaves Share to Daughter Ellin

Mineola, N. Y., Dec. 7 (AP).—Clarence H. Mackay named his daughter Ellin, whose marriage more than a decade ago to song writer Irvin Berlin caused a three-year estrangement, as an heiress in his will, filed for probate today.

The communications magnate, who died November 12, bequeathed his widow, the former Anna Case, of the Metropolitan Opera, $50,000 cash, $2,000,000 in securities, virtually all of the furnishings of his town house and lifetime use of some of his rarest tapestries.

Mrs. Berlin was named to share the residuary estate equally with his two other children, Mrs. Katherine O'Brien Hawkins and J. W. Mackay.

He left nothing to charity, explaining, "I have donated liberally and desire that my beneficiaries and legatees be free to do likewise without special suggestion from me."

The size of the estate was not disclosed.

Holmes, Christine Horn, Doris Gene Isbell, Jackie Lanier, Frances Miller, Bunny Morris, Ferne Olmquist, Patsy Palmer, Phyllis Palmer, Elise Pickney, Helen Riordan, Dolly Schuettler, all Washington girls.

Archbishop Curley To Conduct Mass At Catholic U.

The feast of the immaculate conception will be celebrated in Catholic Churches today. It is a holy day of obligation.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, will be celebrant at services of Solemn Pontifical Mass at Catholic University's observance of its Patronal Feast. The Rev. Dr. Aloysius K. Ziegler, of the university, will deliver the sermon at the service, to begin at 10:30 a. m. in the shrine. Archbishop Curley is Chancellor of the university.

Classes will be adjourned for the day.

Philatelists to Get Prompt Deliveries

Stamp collectors purchasing stamps through the Post Office Department's philatelic agency will be accorded prompt deliveries if they will mark their requests "Christmas orders," it was announced yesterday.

First-day sales for the 24-cent Benjamin Harrison and 25-cent William McKinley stamps, placed on sale December 2, amounted to $37,344.43, while sales for November through the philatelic agency amounted to $196,579.01.

Hamilton Hotel Hearing Slated Today by NLRB

The National Labor Relations Board will consider today the petition for certification as bargaining organization for Hamilton Hotel employes filed by the local joint executive board of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International Alliance and the Bartenders International League of America.

The hotel management has refused to negotiate with the joint board, but has expressed willingness to bargain with representatives of the various specialized groups of its employes as in the past.

Salesman—Can I show you something unusual in a new car?

Maharajah—I don't know, but I can show you something unusual in one.

Salesman—From what I've read I assume so. You require a large car, of course.

Maharajah—Anything, so long as it has all the features of a truck.

Maharajah—With those two 350-pound brothers traveling with me, I can't be seen.

Salesman—Do they really weigh that much?

Maharajah—Yes, I'm the baby of the family. I weigh only 280.

Salesman—You say your brothers always travel in your auto?

Maharajah—Always. And five other members of my family or retinue.

Salesman—It sounds to me like a Mardi Gras float. Why do you load up the car so?

Maharajah—To keep hitch-hikers out of India.

Salesman—Who drives the car?

Maharajah—I've never been able to find out. The car's so congested.

Salesman—What's this stuff I hear about your car traveling only over elephant trails?

Maharajah—Well, to be frank, any trail we go over is an elephant trail after we've been over it.

Salesman—Of course, I'm anxious to make a sale, but just why do you travel by auto instead of by elephant?

Maharajah—I've tried all kinds of elephants, but they don't stand up under a load like an American touring car.

Salesman—Is that so?

Maharajah—Yes, indeed. Why, the last elephant I used had to be taken in every 1,000 miles for a general overhauling. And there is no market for asecond-hand elephant.

Salesman—How is the used-elephant market over in India?

Maharajah—Very bad. The dealers are loaded up with 'em.

Salesman—By the way, what speed do you require?

Maharajah—Oh, if I can get 90 miles an hour over rough country, I'll be satisfied.

Salesman—I'll say you will!

The Basic Issue

By Barnet Nover

Mr. Pirow Is Pessimistic

WHEN NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN returned from Munich nine weeks ago, he told a waiting crowd: "It think it is peace for our time." Now, Oswald Pirow, South Africa's minister of defense, takes the exactly opposite view that Europe, without wanting it, may slide into war by next spring.

NOVER

It may be that Mr. Pirow is as over-pessimistic today as Mr. Chamberlain clearly was over-optimistic last September. But having just completed a voyage of political exploration that took him to Berlin, Rome, Brussels, Lisbon, the Hague, Burgos and Paris and brought him into intimate contact with outstanding European leaders, Mr. Pirow must have some reason for speaking as gloomily as he does.

"The tragedy of the situation," he said, "is that with the settlement of the Czecho-Slovak issue there is no principle at stake which would cause a war, let alone make it inevitable. The drift to war is caused purely by psychological factors."

THIS IS wholly unfortunate but doubtless true. Presumably no issue exists as between the four European powers that participated in the Munich settlement that in any sense requires the arbitrament of war. On the contrary, there is logically no reason why, in view of the readiness and even eagerness which Great Britain and France have displayed and continue to display to live on terms of peace and amity with the totalitarian powers, peace could not be built on permanent foundations.

There is, however, a psychological barrier which inhibits such a hoped-for development at every turn. The four-power arrangement established at Munich was, in Franco-British intent at least, an arrangement made by equals. The further assumption—in Mr. Chamberlain's mind—was that with one-time inequalities removed, Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy could from now on collaborate as equals in the task of European appeasement.

It was on this basis that Messrs. Chamberlain and Daladier could argue that what they did at Munich was an act of magnanimity which seemingly costly in terms of immediate sacrifices, was certain to have fruitful consequences in the long run.

What they failed to take into account or chose to ignore was what was deemed magnanimity in London and Paris was not unreasonably regarded as weakness in Berlin and Rome.

IN OTHER WORDS, the assumption in the totalitarian dictatorships that arose from the Munich settlement was that Great Britain and France gave way because they had to. And they had to because they were impotent. Thus, whereas the totolitarian powers might, at one time, have been satisfied with equality, although this is problematical, they now gave every indication of pressing what seems a real advantage to achieve dominance in Europe and the world.

France and particularly Great Britain had enjoyed that dominance in the past. But for a long time it has been the opinion in important quarters in Berlin and Rome that this historic stage was over, that the time had come for other nations to assume the center of the world stage. That opinion has found confirmation in the persistent weakness displayed by the European democracies with Munich as the climax.

IT IS an axiom of physics that two objects cannot occupy the same place at the same time. If Germany and Italy are to continue their quest for dominance, sooner or later their expansionist efforts are bound to impinge on areas which their Munich partners are loath to relinquish and for which they may fight rather than relinquish.

What this boils down to is that Great Britain and France are, at this juncture, psychologically prepared to play the roles of equals with Germany and Italy, but are, as the French reaction to Italy's Tunisian agitation so clearly reveals, unwilling to see themselves rapidly relegated to the status of inferiors.

THE POSSIBILITY cannot be ruled out that this may happen. The world may again be in the midst of a cycle of change as profound as that which saw the decay of the great Spanish Empire and the rise of the British.

Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy and Imperial Japan regard themselves as nations on the make. Translated into the dynamics of conquest, this means that the will to peace on the part of the democratic powers, who want nothing more than to be left alone in their present possessions, will continue to be tested.

The problem is one of a body which wants to be immovable and a force which deems itself irresistible operating in an orbit where the two cannot be kept permanently apart. Sooner or later a collision may result, and when it does either the immovable body must cease being immovable or the irresistible force must cease being irresistible.

IF THIS analysis is true and the events of the past few years certainly bear it out, any settlement between the four partners of Munich is bound to be temporary at best.

For the moment Germany is content to consolidate her position in Central and Eastern Europe. She is not averse, therefore, to making a pact with France guaranteeing France's eastern frontier.

The pact with France may serve Germany in the future as the 1934 pact of nonaggression with Poland served her in the past. The Polish pact helped prevent the total encirclement of the Third Reich. The French pact can be useful to Germany in two ways. In the first place, it may mean a break in the moral isolation of the Reich produced by the anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic excesses of the last weeks. And, secondly, it may inhibit the formation of a new European coalition designed to keep the Third Reich within bounds.

At any rate, it is Italy's turn to test the immovability of he democratic coalition by raising claims whose satisfaction would imperil the security both of the French and the British empires. This time the sacrifices demanded of those powers are direct, immediate and vital. They are determined to resist those demands. But their power to do so has unquestionably been weakened.

In Paris it is hoped that Germany will now act as a restraining force against Italy. The hope may prove illusionary. The further weakening of France and Great Britain through satisfaction of Italy's Mediterranean ambitions would cause Hitler no loss of sleep. Such a development would make the going easier once the gains of Munich have been digested and the Third Reich is ready for further adventures.

Federal Taxes Urged for City Pay and Bonds

Capital Would Flow Back Into Business, Institute Told

Federal taxation of municipal bonds and salaries was approved yesterday by a municipal officer, Henry Parkman, jr., corporation counsel of Boston, in an address before the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers at the Mayflower.

Parkham added that any efforts to remove the tax-immunity now enjoyed by State and local governments should be accompanied by proposals for reciprocal State taxation of Federal bonds and salaries.

He declared that losses suffered by cities through Federal taxation of their bonds would be more than offset by better business resulting from diversion of private investment from municipal to industrial securities.

Opposes Retroactive Taxes

Declaring that "it appears probable" that the next session of Congress will consider legislation "to remove the immunity from Federal taxation on income from municipal bonds and salaries," the institute adopted a resolution urging "that the removal of such immunity should not impose retroactive taxes and that it should be accompanied by compensatory removal of immunity so that States and municipalities may have authority to tax Federal salaries, property and income from Federal securities."

Earlier, Barnet Hodes, who was re-elected president of the institute yesterday, appointed a special committee on civil liberties to formulate advisory opinions for municipalities on such questions as distribution of handbills, freedom of speech and labor.

Told to Defend Democracy

"The crucial issue in America today is the issue of defending democracy," asserted Hodes, who is corporation counsel of Chicago. "Regardless of political affiliation, all Americans ought to join in the fight to keep naziism, communism and fascism out of American life."

Before closing the annual meeting, the institute re-elected the following officers, besides Hodes: Vice president, Joseph W. Anderson, city attorney of Chattanooga; treasurer, Elwood H. Seal, Corporation Counsel of Washington, and executive director, John A. McIntire, of Washington.

Trustees for 1938-39 are Philip H. Hill, city solicitor of Charleston, W. Va.; Raymond J. Kelly, corporation counsel of Detroit; Harold P. Huls, city attorney of Pasadena; Walter J. Mattison, city attorney of Milwaukee, and Jerome I. Myers, city solicitor of Scranton.

Executive Branch Employes Total 118,188—a Record

Uncle Sam's executive branch employes in the District of Columbia reached 118,188 in October for an all-time employment high here.

Nationally, however, a small seasonal decline was shown in the same month. There were 869,885 workers in the executive branch in October, a decrease of 974 since September. The October payroll was $131,087,375 as compared to $131,931,961 for the previous month.

October set an employment record here, as did September, when the executive branch employes totaled 118,036. The war-time high was reached on November 11, 1918, when 117,760 persons were on the rolls.

Norman Davis Reappointed As Chairman of Red Cross

Admiral McIntire Is Named To Succeed Surgeon General Rossiter; Roll Call Shows Increase of 170,000

President Roosevelt yesterday reappointed Norman H. Davis as chairman of the American Red Cross.

Announcement of the one-year appointment was made by the central committee, presided over by Chief Justice Hughes, a vice president of the Red Cross. The President also appointed Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general, United States Navy, to fill the post made vacant by the retirement of Rear Admiral Perceval S. Rossiter.

Chairman Davis announced that the annual roll call for members which closed on Thanksgiving Day indicated a membership of 5,700,000, an increase of 170,000 over last year and a peak peacetime enrollment.

Re-elected to the central committee were Mrs. August Belmont, of New York, and Gustavus D. Pope, of Detroit, by the chapter delegates, and Miss Mabel T. Boardman, of Washington, and Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of Sewickley, Pa., by the board of incorporators.

Elected to the board of incorporators were Myron C. Taylor, of New York, chairman of the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees; Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Washington; Mr. Davis and Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, to fill vacancies created by the deaths of Newton D. Baker, Admiral Grayson and Willoughby G. Walling, of Chicago, and the resignation of Winthrop M. Crane, jr., of Dalton, Mass.

The Red Cross through its 3,716 chapters gave relief in 170 disasters in this country and its insular possessions during the year at an expenditure of $1,065,000, Davis said. Of the 91,000 families affected in the New England hurricane more than 18,000 had registered with the Red Cross for relief and rehabilitation, he said.

A sum of $200,000 was appropriated for relief in China in addition to the $600,000 from the public in contributions. The Red Cross sent 60,000 barrels of flour to Spain for impartial distribution to the population in both loyalist and nationalist areas this fall, the chairman reported.

12 Benefit Teas Here For Refugees Sunday

"Refugee Day" will be observed in Washington Sunday when 12 benefit teas will be held in the city, Mrs. Madge Lorwin, of 2212 I street northwest, chairman of the Washington Refugee Sunday committee, announced yesterday.

Proceeds of the teas will be turned over to the American Committee of the International Relief Association in New York City, Mrs. Lorwin said. Gunther Reimann, German author and refugee, will speak at one of the teas, to be held in the home of Mrs. Edith P. Henrichs, of 3412 Newark avenue northwest, for the League for Industrial Democracy.

Bank, Radio, Phone, Insurance Companies Not 'Service' Firms

By the Associated Press.

The Wage-Hour Administration took the stand yesterday that concerns such as banks, insurance companies, newspapers, radio stations and telephone companies must abide by the labor standards act.

Certain firms in such fields had claimed exemption from the minimum wage and maximum hour provisions. They had pointed out that Congress provided exemptions for retail and service establishments doing the bulk of their selling and servicing in intrastate commerce.

In an interpretive bulletin, the general counsel of the Wage-Hour Administration replied that in his opinion Congress meant by the words service establishments only such firms as hotels, restaurants, laundries, garages, barber shops, beauty parlors and funeral homes.

"Service establishments," he said, "are usually local in character and render a service to the ultimate consumer for direct consumption. The service is usually purchased in small quantities for private use rather than for industrial or business use."

The interpretation acknowledged that banks, radio stations, telephone companies, utilities and similar establishments perform a "service."

Difference Pointed Out

"It is nevertheless our opinion," he said, "that such enterprises are not, in the ordinary case, sufficiently similar in character to retail establishments to be considered service establishments' within the meaning of section 13 (A) (2)."

Paul Sifton, deputy wage-hour administrator, cautioned employers in a statement yesterday against "winking" at unrecorded overtime work by their employes.

"If an employe is in fact allowed to work overtime even though without express official authority," he said, "the hours so spent . . . must be taken into account."

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

New York, Dec. 8.

Even kings and queens are willing to make concessions to American curiosity and sentimentality. The report is current around Times Square that the "humanizing" process has begun, as a preliminary to King George's visit.

Lilybet
. . . not coming?

For the first time the sacred precincts of Buckingham Palace have been explored by vulgar eyes and camera lenses for the edification of Yankee hoipolloi.

* * * *

And just as there blossomed in 1924 portraits of the Prince of Wales in New York shop windows which made him look like Sir Galahad, so there are now arriving pictures of Queen Elizabeth in which she resembles Loretta Young.

So far it's undecided whether the two princesses will come—surely they won't deprive American childhood of a glimpse of them?

* * * *

When I visited the New York World Fair yesterday I noticed one striking difference from the San Francisco fair—out at Treasure Island they race you across the bay and around the grounds in a limousine with a motorcycle escort, but at Flushing they take you for a stroll around the grounds—if you come out by subway . . .

Maybe it's because Frisco has fewer casual visitors.

There's a picture called "Bombardment," by Phillip Guston, at the Whitney Museum which ought to be studied by statesmen and diplomats, especially the ones responsible for sending the bombers over Madrid, Canton, Barcelona and Shanghai.

A formation of German and Italian planes flies above a narrow street, and a bomb has just landed as women and children dive indoors for their lives . . . I hope newspapers print reproductions of it, and that readers clip it out and mail it to Tokyo, Berlin and Rome.

* * * *

The year's most caustic sentence is the New Yorker magazine's about Col. Lindbergh, apropos of his new domicile in Berlin:

"If he wants to experiment further with the artificial heart, his surroundings there should be ideal."

This is a little harsher than the dour colonel deserves, but you can't help wondering if he wears the decoration Goering gave him.

As I sauntered around the icy grounds of Grover Whalen's World Fair, I couldn't help marvel why the $150,000,000 worth of construction there was planned for demolition when the fair is over. Only one or two of the buildings are to be permanent; the rest will vanish with the winds of 1940.

With so many slums only 20 minutes away, a little better planning (and a few more millions) might have provided homes for 150,000 people. Maybe future expositions will be planned for permanent leftovers.

"—some young Charlie McCarthys?"

A young Democrat was spoofing a young Republican about the omission of young Kenneth Simpson from the G. O. P. inner command.

"The old boys are using you youngsters for Charlie McCarthys!" said the Democrat.

"Oh, yeah?" retorted the Republican. "Well, who'd get more votes for President, Charlie McCarthy or Eddie Bergen?"

Never has a Government inquiry gazed at so many charts in a brief space of time as Roosevelt the Second's Trust Busters.

Within the first 72 hours of the open hearings the NEC (monopoly) committee looked with more or less puzzlement on 100 big charts shifting constantly on the east wall of the Senate's white marble caucus room.

If you can follow the zig-zag lines you may be able to guess whither this committee's course is charted.

Two Destroyers To Be Launched At Newport News

Newport News, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—The Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. will launch two new destroyers, the Mustin and the Russell, at double ceremonies tomorrow as a part of the Government's program for increasing naval defenses.

Mrs Lloyd Mustin, wife of Lieut. Lloyd Mustin of the U. S. Naval Academy faculty, will smash the traditional bottle of champagne over the first ship's prow, and Mrs. Charles H. Marshall, of New York, will perform similar rites for the Russell.

The two destroyers were built at a contract price of $4,125,000 each.

Nice 'Coup' Puts 200 in Civil Service

Outgoing Governor Blankets 21 State Departments Under Merit System

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 7.—Governor Harry W. Nice executed an eleventh-hour political coup today by blanketing 200 job-holders in 21 State departments into the Civil Service and establishing them as permanent employes.

With but a month of his term remaining, the Governor tossed a small-sized bomb at the feet of Governor-elect Herbert R. O'Conor's incoming Democratic administration with an executive order bringing all but two State offices into the merit system.

The order was the first of its kind issued in 15 years and left only the State Unemployment Compensation System and the Maryland State Employment Service outside of Civil Service regulations.

Oormer Governor Albert C. Ritchie had issued, since the merit system law became effective January 1, 1921, 32 such executive orders "adopting" employes into the service. Governor Nice's order was the thirty-third.

The order covered the income and relief tax divisions of the State comptroller's office, appointed by Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr., a Democrat. Employes in those divisions total 112.

Principal Republican appointees benefiting under the order were Chief Engineer Nathan L. Smith, of the State roads commission, whose salary is $8,000 annually, and employes of the State loan commissioner's office, including Deputy Commissioner Harry Katz.

Prior to issuance of the order, all of the 200 employes were subject to dismissal, at will, by the head of their departments.

State offices on the list, in addition to those named, were:

State auditor, State board of hairdressers and beauty culturists, State department of education, department of mechanical engineering, alcoholic beverage division of the State comptroller's office, industrial accident commission, conservation commission, house of correction, insurance department, State librarian's office, Towson State Teachers' College, Maryland Penitentiary, public service commission, hall of records, Maryland Veterans Commission, State planning commission, Montrose School for Girls, Maryland Training school for Boys and the State roads commission.

PWA Approves City Hall Bids At Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Dec. 7.—The Public Works Administration today notified the city that it had approved all bids for Hagerstown's new city hall and that the project can proceed immediately.

The Lacchi Construction Co., Baltimore, was low bidder on the general contract. Its bid was $246,697. The removal of the 3,180-pound bell from the city hall tower was completed today and the razing of the 106-year-old building, site of the new city hall, will start immediately.

Meanwhile, Washington County moved to qualify for a PWA assisted school construction program to cost $130,000, when the board of education today advertised for bids for five contracts.

Work will be started before January 1 on an addition to one junior high school here to cost $40,000; an addition to the Boonsboro High School to cost $35,000; addition to Clearspring High School costing $25,000, new elementary school building at Downsville costing $25,000 and alterations to the present Williamsport High School building to cost $10,000.

A new high school building at Williamsport is now under construction.

Dedication Set Today For School Building

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 7.—Four local men paid varying fines in Circuit Court here yesterday afternoon a few hours after they had been indicted by a special Berkeley County grand jury on charges connected with operation of a horse race bookie establishment here November 26. All pleaded guilty when arraigned and paid fines as follows:

Gold Weller, $900 and costs; Charles Crabbe, $200 and costs; Thomas D. Copenhaver, $270 and costs; Edward L. Welty, $200 and costs.

The grand jury yesterday also returned an indictment against the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., charging that the company "did unlawfully transmit messages, tokens and information of and concerning the result of a horse race, to a pool rooom."

It is the first time that a special grand jury was called in this county to consider such charges.

In his charge to the grand jury yesterday Judge Decatur H. Rodgers emphasized its duty to indict if the evidence showed "commercial violation of the law."

Price's Daughter Breaks Ground For State Library

Richmond, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—Lillian Moir Price, 13-year-old daughter of Virginia's Governor, scraped a shovel nearly as large as herself across the stony ground of the Ford lot opposite Capitol Square today to "break ground" for the new $1,500,000 State library building.

A moment later, a giant power shovel bit its scoop into the faint impression Miss Price had made and the long sought, long talked about project was underway. Gov. Price and several other State notables participated in the brief ceremonies.

The new building, to be completed early in 1940, will house the State and law libraries, the Supreme Court and offices of the seven justices.

O'Conor, Bruce To Speak Tonight At Westminster

Westminster, Md., Dec. 7 (AP).—Governor-elect Herbert R. O'Conor will be the guest of honor Thursday night at a dinner and dance of the Westminster Democratic Club.

Others on the speaking list include Mrs. O'Conor, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee, Mrs. Mary Wilson, Joseph Scherbow, Clarence Miles, Joseph H. A. Rogan, William Curran, Representative William P. Cole, jr., Louis Azarael, Harry Korrell and Truman B. Cash, chairman of the Democratic State central committee.

Senator George Radcliffe also has said he would try to attend the dinner.

Boyd Assails 'Good Time' Law As Md. Convict Refuses Parole

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Dec. 7.—Parole Commissioner J. Cookman Boyd renewed criticism of the State's "good-time" and industrial laws today after a convict refused a parole on grounds he preferred to serve his term and go free without parole supervision.

The convict, William Wallace, is serving a ten-year term for attempted rape in Howard County. Wallace drew a life term in 1931, but his sentence was cut to ten years by former Gov. Albert C Ritchie.

When Wallace's application for freedom came before Boyd at hearings today, the commissioner announced it had been withdrawn when Wallace found his term would expire in March—reduced by terms of the "good-time" and industrial statutes.

"It is regrettable," Boyd announced, "that this man will therefore be released without supervision of any kind whatsover."

He added that the case illustrated his previous contentions that the good-time law should be amended to permit parole department supervision over convicts released through its benefits.

Boyd declined eight parole applications, recommended three and held two others for further consideration.

One of those held was filed by Milton K. Ausherman, of Frederick County, serving 14 years for second-degree murder. Ausherman is a trusty at the penitentiary.

Included among the declines was a plea from John Murray, of Hagerstown, serving ten years for arson. Boyd described Murray as a psycopathic case, a confirmed pyromanic, and said he would consider a plea to transfer him to an asylum.

O'Conor Hits Md. Courts' Fee System

Police Group Hears Governor-Elect Map Plan to Reorganize Magistrate Setup

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Dec. 7.—Governor-elect Herbert R. O'Conor carried his plans for reorganizing Maryland's magistrate system before leading law enforcement officers of the State today.

O'Conor, newly returned from a West Indies vacation, told the Maryland Police Association convention he would propose a constitutional amendment to eliminate the fee-method of compensating county magistrates.

"As long as a judge's compensation is based on the number of cases he tries," O'Conor said, "a powerful temptation is afforded him to increase his business.

"Such 'profit-motive' may be all right in the ordinary marts of commerce, but it is a disgrace to any judicial system. It cannot be tolerated in present-day Maryland.

"I propose that it be eliminated by constitutional amendment and I shall include it as a cardinal principle in the general reform of these lower courts which I shall inaugurate in my administration.

"Generally speaking, I favor the establishment of one or more central courts in each county for the trial of criminal and civil cases. The judges should operate full time in some places, dependent on the amount of legal business. All such justices should be compensated on a salary basis, adequate to the time devoted to their work. The present fee system should be abolished entirely. A modern system of dockets and accounting should be installed, with frequent inspections and reports from a central office, such as the State auditor. When necessary, clerks should be provided for the purpose of keeping the dockets and remitting fines and forfeitures. These clerks should be appointed on merit, and should be bonded for the protection of the State."

Officers elected by the Police Association were: Marcus H. Miles, chief of police, Sparrows Point, president; Frank R. Gatch, Baltimore Police Department, treasurer; George E. Carlson, sergeant major, Maryland State Police, secretary; J. Hanson Hooper, clerk of Peoples Court, Baltimore, first vice president; Nicholas C. Downs, Baltimore Police Department, third vice president; Joseph B. Nolte, Montgomery County police, fourth vice president, and William M. Connell, Cumberland Police Department, fifth vice president.

Dorsey Indorsed As Leaf Inspector

Prince Frederick, Md., Dec. 7 (AP). The Democratic Women's Club of Calvert County indorsed formally the candidacy of George W. Dorsey for appointment as State tobacco inspector.

The action was taken in adoption of a resolution asking Gov.-elect Herbert R. O'Cnnor to appoint Dorsey, a former Democratic member of the House of Delegates from Calvert County.

Dorsey was an unsuccessful candidate for clerk of the circuit court this year.

Md. Wardens Fire At Hunters' Auto, Jail Two Suspects

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 7.—Two hunters accused of violating the game laws, arrested after deputy game wardens fired several shots at their automobile to halt them, are held in the county jail pending a hearing in justice of peace court.

The hunters, who gave their names as Dory McBride and Raymond William Van Meter, both of Oldtown, are charged with having a spike buck under the age limit in their possession.

Out-Storage Apple Move Seen Heavy

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 7.—Henry W. Miller, jr., of Paw Paw, former president of the West Virginia Horticulture Society and vice president of one of the largest apple-producing companies of this section, today denied accuracy of a report recently printed in a trade paper which said movement of storage apples was slowed up, and as against such he sumbitted figures showing both that the into-storage movement of apples this year was less than usual, and the out-of-storage movement was higher.

His letter, made public here, said in part:

"The great Winchester Storage, largest apple storage in the country, reports a movement of 53,000 barrels in November against movement in the same period of 32,000 in 1937; 38,000 in 1936, 36,000 in 1935, and 41,000, in 1934. The management of this storage states that their movement is considerably ahead of normal. Another large Winchester storage reports 26 per cent of their entire tonnage moved in November.

"Martinsburg's big storage reports a movement of 104,336 bushels in November against 73,308 for the same month of 1937 which is a movement of 42 per cent heavier than last year.

"Berkeley Springs, W. Va., reports an unprecedented movement for November."

Winchester, Va., Dec. 7.—Barrels of apples totaling 103,054 have been moved from four Winchester storages during the past month.

T. J. Andrews To Head Va. Orchardists

Horticultural Society Elects Him President; Debates U. S., State Laws on Cull Apples

By the Associated Press.

Winchester, Va., Dec. 7.—Virginia's fruit growers debated at length today the question of Federal-State laws restricting the movement of cull apples to fresh fruit markets.

J. T. Henley, of Crozet, presented the arguments of those favoring the restriction, and Walker M. Bond, of Winchester, spoke for opponents. Thomas B. Pearce, of Columbia, S. C., presented the views of the markets. An open forum followed.

The Horticultural Society will vote on the matter.

The several hundred members attending the society's annual convention this morning elected T. J. Andrews, of Roanoke, as president to succeed Frank Wissler, of Mount Jackson, who has held the post for two years. Wissler was made a vice president.

Other vice presidents selected were Purcell McCue, of Greenwood; E. B. Bonham, of Chilhowie; H. Carrington Jordan, of Monroe; Peyton J. Marshall, of Winchester, and B. J. Wood, of Flint Hill.

The president and vice presidents will select a secretary-treasurer at an April meeting.

Senator Harry Byrd, an outstanding orchardist, at a banquet tonight discussed problems of fruit growers, including the matter of producing high quality apples and of meeting British competition.

The Senator expressed his confidence in the stability of the orchard industry when businesslike methods are used.

Heyward Play Will Star Ethel Waters; Disney Reverts to His Quaint Animals; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

OCCASIONALLY we find ourself wondering what has become of gifted players once practically ubiquitous on our leading stages, but now seldom seen. One so piquing our curiosity might have been Ethel Waters, generally credited with being the finest colored performer of her sex in the American theater—a singer of power and eloquence and a comedienne of note. We don't say that the melodious Waters was one of these, but she might have been.

BELL

Anyhow, the matter of where she has been these later months now becomes an item of secondary importance. A bulletin comes along from that eminent word-juggler, Dick Maney, of the Guthrie McClintic enterprises, announcing that Mr. McClintic is about to star Ethel Waters in a dramatization of Dorothy and DuBose Heyward's novel of "Mamba's Daughters." The New York opening is tentatively set for Tuesday night, January 3, in the Empire Theater.

This will be the Waters' first straight dramatic role. Heretofore, she has been featured in such upper-crust revues as "As Thousands Cheer," "At Home Abroad," Lew Leslie productions, Warner Brothers' screen revues and the like.

The Heywards will be principally recalled in the theater, of course, for their memorable "Porgy," a play of the South, which was one of the outstanding hits of the season of 1927-28, under the auspices of the Theater Guild. It ran on Broadway for 367 performances and later repeated its triumph in London. Subsequently, it was converted into his first "folk opera" by the late George Gershwin, under the slightly expanded title of "Porgy and Bess."

Jose Ferrer, lately seen in Mr. McClintic's "Missouri Legend;" Fredi Washington and Rosamond Johnson and his Negro singers will be in the cast of 45 players, supporting Miss Waters. With only three exceptions it will be an all-colored company.

Rosamond Johnson is the surviving member of the old team of Cole and Johnson, the only serious rivals the late Bert Williams and George Walker had in the field of musical comedy years back, before Williams came up as one of the greatest comedians of the modern stage after the death of his partner, to be costarred in many of the Ziegfeld "Follies" and comparable productions.

It is to be suspected that memories of the hit scored by the animals in his classic, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," was uppermost in Walt Disney's mind when he conceived his latest Technicolor "Silly Symphony," to be shown tomorrow under the title of "Farmyard Symphony," on the bill with "The Little Tough Guys in Society," at RKO-Keith's Theater. Beautiful doves and pigeons, wobbly little colts, lambs, calves, pigs, strutting roosters and waddling geese all are seen in typical and amusing antics in this new subject. Contrary to the usual Disney practice, these engaging "characters" are not humanized, but are drawn with as definite an eye to accuracy of appearance and movement as is possible in the field of animation. If they are one-tenth as good as the animals in "Snow White," they will be ten times better than most cartoon dumb beasts and fowl on the screen. That will be good enough.

There seems to be no end to the versatility of those 16 Earle Roxyettes. Already they have demonstrated their skill in executing intricate rhythmic routines on the tops of rolling globes, on stilts, on bicycles, on roller skates, with skipping-ropes, with drums and whatnot. When Harry Anger presents his "A Trip to Miami" revue on the Earle stage, beginning tomorrow—with Comedians Tom Howard and George Shelton as chief members of the party——they will reveal two additional novelty numbers.

The first will be a novel train routine, marking their departure for the South. The second and more difficult will be a precision, bouncing-ball number. These balls are about 30 inches in diameter and must preserve tempo and rhythm as one, in the hands of the 16 Roxyettes. Try it sometime and find out for yourself!

It is not precisely all work and no play for the members of the "Pins and Needles" company, currently appearing at the National. In appreciation of a rousing week of "social theater," Contemporary Stage is repaying the Labor Stage, Inc., ensemble with an evening of informal entertainment tonight. The I. L. G. W. U. Players will be guests of honor at a reception at 10 at The Bookshop, 916 Seventeenth street. That is, the other guests will begin to assemble at 10. The final curtain at the National is not down until 10:45, or thereabouts.

In conjunction with the Community Film Council of Chevy Chase, the State Theater in Bethesda, Md., on Saturday of this week, will inaugurate a series of special junior matinees, consisting of one feature picture and one hour of selected comedies and cartoons. These special performances will be presented at 1 and 3 p. m., each bill running approximately two hours.

The major purpose of this innovation is to afford programs for Saturday juvenile audiences that will depart from the established custom of presenting on the school-holiday afternoons the bills that have been booked primarily to satisfy the amusement tastes of the night's adult audiences. The initial bill, announced for this Saturday, may be cited as typical: a Merrie Melody cartoon, a Charlie Chase comedy, a "Krazy Kat" cartoon, "Sons of the Plains," a Technicolor featurette, starring the Mauch Twins, and as the feature, "Mother Carey's Chickens," with Fay Bainter, Ruby Keeler, Ann Shirley and Ralph Morgan.

This all rather harks back to the activities of the late Harriet Hawley Locher, as director of the public service and educational department of the Crandall Theaters, a decade and a half ago. It is still a splendid idea.

With "Angels With Dirty Faces" and "The Little Tough Guys in Society" both on view—at the Metropolitan and RKO-Keith's, respectively—there will be plenty of rowdy youngsters on local screens next week. In the former, they will be the original "Dead End" kids, Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Leo Gorcey, Gabriel Dell, Huntz Hall and Bernard Punsley; in the latter, Harris Berger, Hally Chester, Charles Duncan, David Gorcey and William Benedict. To the cyclone cellars, folks—women and children first!

Traveling out to Bethesda again, Gordon Hittenmark and Art Brown, popular radio personalities of WRC and WOL, will act as masters of ceremonies at the benefit performances sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of Leland Junior High School in the Boro Theater, tonight and tomorrow night.

A "Hollywood premiere" atmosphere will surround both evenings. Tonight's program will be featured by William Boyd in "In Old Mexico," supported by a specially assembled stage show. Tomorrow night's will be an all-comedy bill. Proceeds will go toward the purchase of a public address system for the school auditorium.

So along comes another pretty postage card from Collins and Peterson, remarking that they are opening Friday on the stage at Loew's Capitol Theater—as if we didn't know. What we didn't know was that they are regular readers of The Post, no matter where they are. I know it now, because they quoted a few lines from a recent column. Yeah, about that football game they attended in New York last Sabbath, when the Redskins got scalped.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Dec. 7.—December's just underway, and anyone would think that St. Nick was already crowding us off the front page—we're that excited. Actors are getting hot under the collar—even those on the "Wizard of Oz" set are getting hot under the collar—techni to you—because maybe they can't have any holiday at all.

HEDDA HOPPER

Alice Faye can hardly wait—she'll spend the holidays in gingham. In a lonely farmhouse in up-State New York you'll find her—or you won't—because she's 15 miles from the nearest village and hasn't told a soul how to reach her. Not even Tony, who'd give anything to exchange his next picture for skis.

Connie Bennett is bound for the Continent, where at least one package will probably be untied—that cumbersome bundle of marriage of hers.

Spencer Tracy is going to Scandinavia and everybody envies him. Those cold north countries where blondes really are blonde are the most civilized in the world. Believe me, I know, because Frank Lloyd just came back and told me.

George Brent wants to go to St. Moritz, but why, when just above the potato patch we have Sun Valley. The only difference is that you fall down in America, but it's all the same to the seat of your pants.

Claire Trevor says the cutest actors she's worked with since the quintuplets are the quadruplets in "Stage Coach." They're not very pretty, but they stick to her like burrs. John Carradine, for instance, plays a bad man, but between scenes he reads Shakespeare to Claire—whether she likes it or not. Tom Mitchell talks about his fire fighting, and Andy Devine gives baby talk—his expectant father act will soon be real. And all George Bancroft wanted to do was hear her voice. He sat scowling at the others, who apparently would rather talk themselves.

Andy showed us how to shrink a dollar bill—as if we really want to know! You ball it up and roll it around in your hand a couple of times—and when you unfold it, it's shrunk. Andy says he's scheming how to make 'em grow—without working.

If you haven't met Albert Morin, you don't want to. And if you have—never again! Morin is Hollywood's latest ribber, and he makes Vince Barnett look like a broken sacroiliac. Introduced to Lew Ayres as a French correspondent, Morin gave a detailed explanation of why Ayres would never be an actor.

But he almost went into exile when he started on Irvin Cobb at an author's dinner, and he got me the first day I ever went out as a journalist. He was egged on by Bob Leonard, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. I was never so mad in my life, and it made me no happier when Leonard said, "Never saw you keep your temper before . . . don't let it happen again!" And did I burn!

Meliza Korjus is getting her first taste of fame—and crying over it. Some of her fan letters are heartrending. She hasn't been here long enough to know that such are your daily diet. And if she gave everything she was asked for, her diet would soon be nil.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Dec. 7.

ALVA JOHNSTON, who attacked James Roosevelt in a magazine articles, has decided to forget the matter now that Jimmy relinquished his official job. Johnston confided that he had held back part of his original proof, saving it for rebuttal—in the event that Jimmy returned to a White House job . . . The Duke of Windsor now has a press agent in London, who engineered that Christmas invitation to a Welsh couple . . . Brenda Frazier didn't make the Junior Assembly because she had been photographed dunking doughnuts.

A FEW MONTHS AGO the front pages reported that an old lady who had been a regular patron of the Radio City Music Hall had bequeathed part of her fortune to an employe there, because he was nice to her . . . Some years earlier, this legatee and his wife were separated, when she became the beneficiary of a relative's estate . . . The couple now are reunited.

THE LIE-DETECTOR, whose efficacy was questioned by the New York courts in a recent decision, was tested last night by scientists at the Sheffield School at Yale University. It lectured at the Yale Law School . . . Ed Breslin, of District Attorney Foley's staff, is slated to succeed the late Magistrate Earl Smith . . . Although the FCC has decided to take no actions against the Columbia Broadcasting System because of the Orson Welles event, 30 resulting lawsuits still are pending.

NEWMAN LEVY, the attorney and movie scenarist, is treasuring a letter sent to him by the late Supreme Court Justice Cardozo. It concerned a poem he had written for a national magazine, in which he rhymed "Bozo" with "Cardozo" . . . The jurist saw the poem and wrote to the author: "Your use of my name will give me immortality—for a short time."

JANE PICKENS, who made her cafe debut at Jack Lynch's club in Philadelphia last week, will make her operatic debut December 14 at the Juilliard Graduate School . . . Dr. Cook is resuming his efforts to prove that he reached the North Pole. Books which make scathing comments about his claim are being submitted to his attorneys and the uncomplimentary chapters deleted.

ROBERT E. SHERWOOD invited his wife to see the movie, "Cowboy and the Lady" . . . "No, let's not go," Mrs. Sherwood replied. "I hear it's not so good" . . . "But Sam Behrman helped write the scenario," her husband protested . . . "So what?" countered Mrs. Sherwood. "Once there was another picture I didn't go to see, because I heard it wasn't good. That picture was 'Marco Polo.' And it was written by a man named Robert E. Sherwood."

BILL DEMPSEY, chief counsel for the Federal Communication Commission, is becoming the Darling of the Entertainers. In connection with his investigation of the monopoly aspects of agencies, Dempsey is preparing a 3-day show, bringing Hollywood's leading stars to Washington to testify . . . Another Latin cafe is ready to give up the ghost.

GEORGE BACKER, who becomes minority leader of the City Council today, will be the third millionaire among the council's labor coalition. The others are Baldwin and Straus . . . Andy Kerr probably will retire as coach for the Herald Tribune's charity football game. His Colgate and All-East coaching assignments, he feels, are enough.

MIKE RILEY, who co-authored "The Music Goes Round," was scheduled to open at the new Troc on West Fifty-second street . . . The opening has been postponed, and so he brought suit against the owners, demanding back salaries . . . As a result he soon may find himself the owner of a night club. For the suit was settled, giving Riley a 25 per cent interest in the cafe—that percentage to be increased proportionately, the longer that night club keeps postponing its debut.

Morgan Gets Third Role of Producer

Frank Morgan is to portray a Broadway producer for the third time when he starts work with Jeanette MacDonald in "Broadway Serenade." The actor was a musical comedy producer in "Sweethearts" and before that in "The Great Ziegfeld."

Little

"Wings of the Morning," in case you don't already know, is a picture that has everything. Unlike so many films that also seem to "have everything," this offering of the International Cinema Festival, which returned to our town yesterday morning at the Little, has its blessings neatly fitted into place.

There's John McCormack and naturally Ireland. There's Technicolor to show off some gorgeous scenery and there are Gypsies. Not only do the Gypsies bring color to the camera, they bring action to a story.

In the nineties Marie was a beautiful young Gypsy girl, who shocked the local nobility by marrying Lord Clontarf. Violently killed, Lord Clontarf is not able to save his young widow from the greedy hands of public opinion. Almost 50 years pass, when next we see Marie, an honored matriarch now determined that her shame shall be avenged. Her horse, "Wings of the Morning," must win the Derby.

Such a plot brings together all the ingredients of absorbing entertainment. There is the thrill of the race at Epsom, the crowds in the London streets and the romance of the great-granddaughter with a Clontarf relation.

Annabella is particularly lovely in Technicolor and Henry Fonda, who shares with her the romantic interludes, is as natural as ever. That John McCormack should sing "Killarney" and that Steve Donoghue should ride "Wings" to victory is inevitable. Irene Vanbrugh, now in her fiftieth year on the London stage, is a majestic matriarch and Helen Haye, that dependable actress of Shaftesbury Avenue and many a fine film, is the blind Lady Jenepher.

The Little has also revived "Who Killed Cock Robin," the Walt Disney cartoon, which was the joy of its season. "What Price Safety," one of the Crime Does Not Pay series, and the latest Pathe News complete this genuinely entertaining bill.

Four Scouts Hunt Junior Tarzan

Ever since the call went out for a junior Tarzan to appear in support of Johnny Weissmuller in the forthcoming jungle picture, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio has been flooded with applications from proud mothers and fathers, the accomplishments of whose offspring ranged from a modified brand of Swiss yodeling to a three-inch growth of hair on the chest.

Pulitzer Prize Play Tops New Theater Bills

"Our Town" Opens at National Monday; Other Programs.

The 1938 Pulitzer Prize play, "Our Town," by Thornton Wilder, will be the week's attraction at the National Theater beginning next Monday evening. The village doctor and the editor of the town's newspaper are the central figures in this story of everyday life in a New England hamlet. The unique treatment of substituting Frank Craven as stage-manager and confidential commentator, in place of the customary scenery, created much controversy while the play was at the Morosco Theater in New York, where it has only recently completed nearly a year's run. This is the third play of the Theater Guild-American Theater society subscription season. Besides Mr. Craven its cast will include Evelyn Varden, Thomas W. Rose, Helen Carew, James Spottswood, Dorothy McGuire and John Craven. There will be the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

"The Citadel," based on Dr. A. J. Cronin's international best-selling novel, will open today at Loew's Palace Theater. Robert Donat plays a physician who travels from the coal mines of Wales to society practice in London's Harlay street, where he slips into the easy ways of some of his colleagues, forgetting the true ethics of his profession. A faulty operation on his best friend and his wife's influence restore him to his earlier ideals. Dr. Cronin based the novel on his own medical experience, and the British studios of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, under Director King Vidor, have made it an unusually convincing film. Rosalind Russell plays the wife and Ralph Richardson, and Rex Harrison, noted here for their "legitimate" appearances, have other important roles in a cast which also includes Emlyn Williams and Penelope Dudley-Ward.

Faith Baldwin's magazine serial, "Comet Over Broadway," as picturized by the Warner Brothers, comes to the Earle Theater screen for the week commencing tomorrow. Kay Francis, Ian Hunter and John Litel are the leading players of this story, relating the rise of a small-town girl to Broadway fame. Melville Cooper, Donald Crisp, Sybil Jason and Ian Keith also are importanely assigned. On the Earle stage, Tom Howard and George Shelton will offer some of the cross-talk which has made them radio favorites. Other acts will include Evelyn Case, singer; Goodrich and Nelson, Dave Monahan, in "Pranks With Music," and the 16 Earle Roxeyettes. The Paramount News and added short subjects will round out the program.

A behind-the-scenes story of players striving for stardom, "Dramatic School," will open tomorrow at Loew's Capital for a week's engagement. Luise Rainer, seen recently in "The Great Waltz," and Paulette Goddard, seen not so recently in "Modern Times," are two of the leading players in this picture, which also boasts such favorites as Genevieve Tobin, Alan Marshall, Gale Sondergaard, Henry Stephenson and Virginia Grey. Robert Sinclair, who performed the same service for "The Women," directed. Headlining the Capitol's stage show will be Collins and Peterson, a dynamic duo of long-standing popularity. Returning by popular demand are the 24 Chester Hale Capitol Comets in new routines. Also on the bill will be the Six Philharmonies, harmonica swingsters; Bea Saxon, a vocalist, and Boy Foy, whose vein is juggling.

"The Little Tough Guys in Society" is the title of the new feature which will be at RKO-Keith's for the week beginning tomorrow. It relates the efforts of Mary Boland, playing a wealthy society matron, to keep her indolent son, played by Jackie Searl, from spending the rest of his life in bed. Besides the Little Tough Guys of the title, Mischa Auer, Edward Everett Horton, Helen Parish and Frankie Thomas also have roles in this film, directed by Erle Kenton.

Already an F street veteran of two weeks, "If I Were King" will open at the Columbia Theater tomorrow for a third. Ronald Colman plays the colorful Francois Villon in this screen version of the famous Justin Huntly McCarthy play. Basil Rathbone is the sly King Louis XI and Frances Dee and Ellen Drew are the leading ladies in a cast which also includes Henry Wilcoxon, Ralph Forbes, Sidney Toler and William Farnum.

James Cagney and Pat O'Brien are the co-stars of "Angels With Dirty Faces," which comes to the Metropolitan Theater today after a successful week at the Earle Theater. Directed by Michael Curtiz, it tells the story of two boys who begin life together in the slums; one becomes a top-flight gangster and the other a thoughtful priest. From their conflict, a gripping and exciting melodrama results.

"Professor Mamlock," Lenfilm screen version of the Friedrich Wolf drama, produced by the WPA Federal Theater a few seasons ago, opens a three-day run at the Rialto Theater tomorrow. Hailed as a startling indictment of Nazi terrorism, it follows the downfall of a Jewish scientist, depicting not only the cruelty and insults he suffered, but also the methods used by storm troopers in quelling opposition. There are English subtitles.

Today is the last for "Wings of the Morning" as the International Cinema Festival continues at the Little Theater with the following films: Tomorrow and Saturday "M," from pre-Hitler Germany, and the Will Rogers hit, "Life Begins at Forty." Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, "The Private Life of Henry VIII," the film which brought prominence to Charles Laughton. Next Wednesday and Thursday, Beniamino Gigli in "Forever Yours" and "Steel, Man's Servant."

The latest "March of Time," featuring "Uncle Sam—The God Neighbor," which tells of Secretary Hull's work in the State Department, will be included on the new bill at the Trans-Lux Theater which opens tomorrow. Besides the usual newsreels, a travelogue on Sweden and a Disney Cartoon, "Mickey's Parrot," also will be shown.

Sunya Slane will be the feature of "Follies of Pleasure," which will open its week at the Gayety Theater with the usual Sunday matinee performance. Other burlesquers will include Jack Diamon, Harry LeVan, Walt Sanford, Hazel Walker and Cornich and Dean. As an added attraction, the Gayety will offer Alma Bray, trapeze display artiste, who recently completed a six-month engagement at the Mirador Club in New York.

Orczy Story Is Screened At Belasco

'Spy of Napoleon' Has Barthelmess as Star; 'Slalom' a Hit

"SPY OF NAPOLEON." Unity Films picturization of the novel by Baroness Orczy, adapted to the screen by Fred V. Merrick, with musical score by W. L. Tryfel, co-starring Richard Barthelmess and Dolly Haas, with Frank Vosper, Francis L. Sullivan, Joyce Bland, C. Denier Warren, Henry Oscar, Marjorie Mars, Brian Buschell, Lyn Harding and Wilfred Caithness. Directed by Maurice Elvey. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon, Washington premiere, at the Belasco Theater.

"Spy of Napoleon" yesterday afternoon at the Belosco Theater fought a losing fight, both actually in the story, on the screen, and for its position as feature of the Belasco bill. Its struggle in the latter category was lost to "Slalom, ("Love on Skis"), a delightful adventure in the Swiss Alps which chucks espionage down the icy slides in favor of skis and a sly sense of humor.

Richard Barthelmess returns to our ken in this adaptation of a novel by that skilled "Pimpernel" creator, Baroness Orczy, an adaptation which your reviewer discovers was made in England in 1936. It might well have been made in the days of the silent films, for although it opens well and with a distinct promise of interest, it employs much of the technique of an earlier film era. The situations and handling are outmoded.

The Napoleon of the title is not the great man for whom the pastries were named. It is his brother's youngest son, Louis Napoleon, who, as his uncle had before him, made himself Emperor of the French. As Napoleon III he is hated by the aristocrats as "the parvenu." His life is always in danger and plots are daily discovered against him by the chief of police. Like all good rulers who danced in the early days of Strauss waltzes, he had a daughter whose mother was "of the people." To insure himself of a faithful spy, he has this daughter brought before him and marries her to Gerard, an aristocrat about to be executed for treason.

No sooner, however, is Gerard married to her than he is ostensibly shot as a spy; actually, as a reward for marrying the girl, he is sent off to Geneva. From this point on there is a confusion in plot and handling which would be useless to note here. Suffice it to say that the husband and wife meet and try to warn Napoleon III that the French allies will not fight. The war they had hoped to avert is forced on the Emperor, bringing death to the empirical dreams of Napoleon and Eugenie.

Mr. Barthelmess has aged since his "Broken Blossoms" performance and Dolly Hass, who was seen in this country some time ago in a later (and British) version of the same play is as effectual as her wooden role permits. The prize acting in the film was contributed by the late Frank Vosper, in the role of Louis Napoleon. He was thoughtful and credible, using his eyes and hands to fine advantage.

Altogether, if you go in the spirit of good, clean fun, you may get some amusement out of the film. Keeping in the spirit of good clean fun, you will surely get a great deal of enjoyment out of the ski adventure which accompanies it.

Friends United By 'Frankenstein'

An old saying has it that if you stand at the corner of Broadway and Forty-second street long enough, you will meet everyone in the world that you ever knew. The place has been transferred to Hollywood.

On the set of "Son of Frankenstein" Josephine Hutchinson met Emma Dunn, both medalists of the Broadway stage.

When Josephine Hutchinson was but an apprentice at her chosen profession, she sat at the feet of Emma Dunn, being coached by her in a play called "One More Day" at the Princess Theater. Now, ten years later, Miss Hutchinson shows how well she learned her craft from Miss Dunn by playing the lead in the Universal drama opposite Basil Rathbone, and in the company of such screen artists as Boris Karloff, the original "Frankenstein" monster, Lionel Atwill and Bela Lugosi. Emma Dunn is also a member of the cast, playing the part of a faithful old family retainer.

Fairfax Adopts New Hog Farm Ordinance

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va
Phone Falls Church 2088-M

The board of supervisors of Fairfax County yesterday adopted a revised county commercial hog farm ordinance, effective January 1.

The original ordinance, enacted December, 1934, required any person keeping 20 or more hogs for commercial purposes to secure a permit from the board, and required a public hearing on each permit. It also contained a provision which would have prohibited feeding of garbage on commercial hog farms and hauling of garabge over county roads. The old ordinance, however, lacked effective machinery for enforcement.

The new ordinance is substantially the same as the old in defining a commercial hog farm and permit requirements. However, it places enforcement of the law in the hands of the county health department and repeals the two prohibtive garbage sections.

None Now Required

The majority of old permits, which were issued for periods of three years, have expired and pending adoption of the revised ordinance none have been required.

When the new ordinance becomes effective, applications for permits will be filed with the county health department, whose officers will inspect the premises and report to the supervisors. If the hog farm is not classed as a nuisance or health menace the supervisors, after a public hearing may grant the permit. All costs of inspection must be borne by the applicant. If the opertor fails to secure a permit or contiues to operate the farm after a permit has been revoked the health officer is to prosecute.

Cox Heads Young Democrats

Everett Cox has been elected president of the Falls Church Young Democratic Club for the year.

Other officers elected Tuesday were: First vice president in charge of entertainment, Robert Rollins; second vice president in charge of publicity, Miss Anne Donovan; third vice president in charge of party activity, Lawrence E. Laing; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frances Parrott Coxen; financial secretary, Carlton Fothgeb; treasurer, M. Elbridge Church, and parliamentarian, John G. Turnbull.

The club expressed its appreciation to John A. McCauley, outgoing president, for his work during the past year in ridding the organization of debt. Robert Rollins was appointed to arrange for the annual New Year's dance.

Legion Women to Give Party

The Stephen P. McGroarty Unit, American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. John Bethune, president, last night decided to give a Christmas party at the United States Naval Hospital, and to co-opexate with The Washington Post in distributing Christmas baskets. The welfare committee estimated value of the unit's Thanksgiving backets at $27. A veteran's child is also being provided with milk daily.

The Junior Auxiliary reported that it will co-operate with the older group in the Christmas work. Plans were announced for a tea Sunday, December 11, at the home of Miss Glenn Newell on Washington street, from 3 to 6. Members are requested to bring toys and clothing for the Christmas baskets.

Vienna Collection Day

The Vienna Town Council at its December meeting voted to hold a monthly trash collection and clean-up day the first Saturday of each month.

On request of Ord Strayer, a member of the citizens committee appointed sometime ago to codify the town ordinances, the council agreed to consider the committee's report at its next meeting.

M. O. Bradford, one of the judges at the recent bond issue election, suggested to the council that the town charter be amended at the next meeting of the State Assembly to set up election rules for the town, independent of the county organization under which town elections are now held. This would provide a town registrar and separate set of books and other changes to conform to municipal requirements.

The council voted to appropriate $10 toward the community Christmas tree with $5 additional to the colored residents if they desired to plan a similar celebration.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Community Methodist Church of Aurora Heights will sponsor a benefit oyster and ham dinner tonight from 5 to 7 p. m. at the church.

Alexandria Engineer Assigns Numbers To 6,000 Houses in Annexed Territory

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Temple 3767
Delivery Service, phone Alex. 1400.

City Engineer E. G. McCartney yesterday announced that new numbers have been allocated to 6,000 houses in the newly annexed territory of Alexandria, and lists sent to the city postoffice, fire department, and the office of the commissioner of revenue. Names of occupants of the respective houses are also listed.

In the area of the city located east and south of the right of way of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad, numbering is as follows:

On streets running east and west, numbers commence with 100 at Union street, increasing at the rate of 100 numbers for each block going westward, even numbers on the south side of streets, odd numbers on the north. Any house or structures located between Union street and the Potomac River run from 0 to 99.

On streets running north and south numbers commence with 100 at King street, increasing at the rate of 100 for each block. Even numbers are on the west side and odd on the east side north of King street, while odd numbers apply to the west side and even to the east side of streets south of King.

West of the railroad, on streets running north and south, from King street and the line of King street extended westward, and approximately parallel to Washington avenue, the numbering commences at King street with 1.

On streets running east and west from Washington avenue, numbers commence with 1 at Washington avenue. Even numbers apply to the north side of the street east of Washington avenue, and to the south side of the street west of that thoroughfare.

Elks' Party Chairmen Named

Charles B. Jewell, sr., general chairman for the annual Christmas party for underprivileged children, sponsored by Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, B. P. O. Elks, in co-operation with the Parent-Teacher Association, has announced the following chairmen for the respective schools:

Mrs. Rose Champion, St. Mary's Parochial School; Mrs. Frank Harper and Mrs. Pauline Gorham, Washington School; Mrs. Paul Finke, Jefferson School; Mrs. Effie Johnson, Maury School, and Mrs. Colton Moore, Lee School.

Through co-operation of the Alexandria Amusement Co., the annual "toy matinee" will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. in the Ingomar Theater. Admission will be a toy to use in the party on Christmas Eve in Armory Hall. Approximately 600 children are expected to attend, and a gift is to be provided for each one, in addition to candy and fruit.

Donations are being received at the Elks Home or any firehouse in the city.

C. of C. to Fete School Heads

Pads of Fat Eliminated By Rolling

Exercise Important For Streamlining Of Your Hips

By Ida Jean Kain.

IN STREAMLINING the hips your exercise program must be comprehensive enough to deal with the various types of hip problems. This measurement may project itself out at the sides in pincushion bulges, settle into a desk chair spread, or take on a bustle effect. To be sure of working off the excess inches, you must have exercises that tone the musculature of the hips, thighs and buttocks.

Those fat pads along the sides of the hips may best be dislodged with rolling. Begin by lying flat on the back on the floor, stretched to full extension, and with the hands clasped back of the head for a buffer. Roll from side to side, pillowing the head on the crooked elbows.

Rolling gets you into condition for more strenuous exercise, and after a few days you will be ready to bump off your hips. This exercise is also performed lying on the back on the floor, but the arms should be held straight out at the sides and the knees bent with soles of feet on the floor. The feet are held together throughout the exercise. Try to keep the shoulders on the floor, raise the hips, twist at the waist, and bring the right hip and thigh down on the floor with a resounding bump, right on that fat pad. Raise the hips again, and bring the left hip and thigh down on the other side. The feet should be moved as little as possible, with the movement centered on the waist and hipline.

Takes Off Side Bulges

Those two exercises will take off the side bulges. Now for one that reduces a "spread." Continue the same position, lying on the floor, but clasp the hands back of the head again and extend the feet straight down. Hold the feet and legs together, raise them a few inches off the floor and move them in a circle, clockwise, bringing the knees up fairly close to the chest as the top of the circle is reached and the hips rolled over to the right side. The rolling movement necessary to describe the circle includes both sides and back of the hipline. Try to hold the shoulders fairly still.

The side-scissors is another general hip slimming measure that takes off the excess inches at a fast clip. Turn over on the side, one arm stretched up as a pillow for the head, the other hand on the floor to act as a brace, and legs straight down. Have the knees straight and swing the legs vigorously from the hips, reaching far back with each swing to discipline the gluteal muscles of the buttocks.

Both the side-scissors and the bumping exercise are fairly strenuous and you should begin gradually to increase the number of times you repeat them, being sure to perform the same number of times on each side.

Usually the hipline is the first measurement to show a gain and the last to slim down, but with this little set of exercises you can speed up the reduction of this portion of the figure and slim off as many inches as you please.

Veiled Toque Ideal For Rich Furs

The bigger and deeper the fur, the smaller the hat is the decision of Bettine, Titian-haired dancer appearing this week in Washington. Having just arrived in this country from London, Bettine comes well fortified with her favorite small coachman's hat models. She reports that the number one English style arbiter, the Duchess of Kent, favors the slightly brimmed little hat for her sables and furred coat collars. Bettine's own shining pushed-back coiffure is sketched, above, topped by flattering bonnets to go with her own mink or silver fox scarfs. Upper left, postillion-rolled brim, grosgrain edge ending in clouds of coin-dotted veiling. Below, sleek hatters' plush, rakish as a jockey's cap. It turns "sissy" with curled, gilded ostrich tips, and wealth of veiling which may be tied to suit any whim

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

'That's Me'

"Yes, I just told her where to get off. I didn't beat about the bush or anything. But then I'm just that way. If I have anything to say to people I just say it right out. Anyway, she had it coming. She started the whole thing . . . Yes, she certainly did! . . . And she was really the one that was to blame.

"You know it's a funny thing about me. I'm all right just as long as people treat me right . . . But just let anybody try to run over me and see what happens. Heaven knows I'm the easiest person in the world to get along with if other people will do the right thing. But I just don't believe in taking things off of people. If you don't stick up for yourself nobody else is going to do it. And they respect you more in the end for doing it.

"I've always had a quick temper. It runs in our family. . . . I fly off the handle, and all that—but I don't really stay mad and pout around like a lot of people. I just get it all over with and then I'm all right

"Yes, I guess I did talk pretty mean to her—but didn't she have it coming? . . . Even if I did talk a little strong, wasn't it better to say it to her face than to her back? . . . Anyway, I'm just that way. When I have anything to say I don't hold back. Besides, she oughtn't to have done what she did.

"The trouble with so many people is they won't play fair. They're always looking for a chance to stick you in the back . . . or to walk all over you. I used to take a lot off of people, but I found it didn't get you any place. Not that I don't always do right by everybody and all that—but what I mean is now I look a little more for No. 1.

"You know, it's a funny thing how selfish and overbearing so many people are. All for themselves. That's one reason I've learned to take up for my rights. There's so many people that'll just step all over you if you give 'em a chance . . . You know who they remind me of? . . . Hitler and Mussolini."

Add egg yolk mixed with egg whites, fold in together. Melt 1 tablespoon of butter slowly in skillet. Pour in omelet. Cook over low heat 10 to 12 minutes, or until omelet is light and golden brown on the bottom. Cut through middle lightly, fold in half, then turn onto a hot platter and serve. Portion for three.

Pecan Has Long American Lineage

The pecan is an aboriginal American. But in the wild state it didn't get far commercially. Only after the introduction of the cultivated varieties did its prestige grow. Now it soars steadily in popularity and rates second in national preference. The finest variety of the cultivated nuts sold in any quantity is the Schley, a long nut and a true papershell. The most widely grown and the most commonly met is the Stuart, a thicker nut of good quality, but it requires a sturdy nut cracker to get off the hard shell. Large quantities of the wild nuts are gathered and shelled in Texas, and these comprise most of the market's shelled pecans.

In Love With Divorcee Who Will Not Marry Him Unless He Leaves His Church, Barber Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I work as barber in a large barber shop here in the city, which employs several manicurists. One of them caught my attention almost immediately after I went there. Finally, one day while down in the basement changing coats, I kissed her. This I thought was rude but I couldn't resist the temptation. Anyhow, to my surprise, she wasn't angry. When I tried to apologize, she said she had wanted me to kiss her.

After that, we met every day in the basement on one excuse or another, and talked over our love for each other. During this time, she told me she had been married and was divorced, and that she was engaged to another man and was going to be married next spring. That is—she said she had been going to marry the other man, until she met me. However, my religion stands between us, and she says she could never marry me unless I gave up my church. This I know is true, as my religion does not recognize divorce.

But I love this girl very much, and I know it's the real thing, because I have gone with many other girls and never felt about any of them as I feel about her. I've tried to forget her but I can't. She is on my mind all the time. And to top it all off, she says she could never be happy married to the other fellow, with me on her mind. Here's my question: What shall I do? Please advise me, as I intend to follow your advice.
BEFUDDLED.

Creed and Character

DEAR BEFUDDLED: Unfortunately, I canot serve in the capacity of keeper of your conscience.

Only a consecrated spiritual adviser can share that responsibility with you. Such being the case, my advice to you is to search your own soul and find out, first of all, just what, just how much, your religion means to you. For the crux of your problem has to do with an inner conflict between emotional preference and what you vaguely feel to be your moral duty.

Supposing you have adhered, more or less faithfully, from earliest childhood until now, to a given pattern of orthodox religious belief and conduct, then it is very likely that you could not depart from that way of life, even for love of a woman, without doing real harm to your character and personality. And I think that the woman who professes to love you should recognize that fact, and bring no pressure to bear upon you to leave your church for her.

As a matter of fact, considering the circumstances of your initial romantic encounter with the person in question, and the rather furtive nature of your subsequent encounters, I am inclined to regard her as being quite the reverse of an inspirational influence in any man's life. She seems to be playing the role of temptress in rather gaudy fashion, since it is obvious that she precipitated the first kiss by virtually thrusting herself under your nose.

Judging from her performance, I think you have reason to weigh very carefully this woman's worth against the worth, to your character and psychic and social being, of your religion. The latter is not calculated to fail you, so long as you do not fail it, but I am not so sure the same could be said for the woman. I am inclined to believe, indeed, that she might fail you pretty grievously. She has betrayed her fiance's trust, has been disloyal to him, in soliciting your lovemaking and in admitting that she could never be happy if married to him. Such treachery, coupled with her marital failure and her sly, selfish insistence that you relinquish your religion for her, doesn't give one much to hope for from her. There is a lack of self respect about such performance which implies an equal lack of respect for moral and social law and order, and for the inalienable right of others.

It could be, of course, that she is a rather rudderless sort of person, who has grown up without the benefits of sound social and moral training; that she is, potentially, a finer person than she presents herself as being; but in that case, if she is to be hauled back to the main track, it must be under the firm leadership of a personality who quietly refuses to yield his creed and code as a matter of expediency or for sensual gratification. I should say, indeed, that for you to permit her to pull you off your course would be the equivalent of a person's permitting himself to be blindfolded and led by the blind.

In short, cut out this furtive dalliance. Stand by your own beliefs—if you have any. If the girl knows she cannot be happy with the other man, after having known you, let her break the engagement. Thereafter, come out in the open and see what can be done about your supposed love for each other. If she cannot accept your religious belief, and if you would feel yourself traitor to your innermost convictions in forswearing it, summon the courage to dismiss marriage as an unworkable proposition.
M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Mrs. Rush Seeks Home, School Unity

Parents and Teachers Told to Show Child How 'to Live'

By Christine Sadler

MORE important even than the training which enables boys and girls to make a living is the training which shows them how "to live a life," declares Mrs. Ola Day Rush, director of home economics for the District schools, and chairman of home education for the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The home must be spotlighted and its educational influence integrated with that exerted by the schools if the training in living is to be complete, Mrs. Rush says:

"Young people need to feel a sense of security in home life and to value home ties," she asserts.

It was her belief in the child-parent-school triangle that led her to accept the chairmanship of the home education committee following her elevation to the home economics directorship last February—after 13 years as head of the home economics department at McKinley High School.

Must Get Close to Home

"Through this committee work I will be able to come in closer contact with the parent and to further plans for home projects which we hope to develop under provisions of the George Deene act. Educators are placing renewed emphasis on the home as an educational center. To be good teachers, we must get as close to the home as possible," she declares.

The home education and home-making committees of the P.-T. A. have been combined this year to make the group Mrs. Rush heads. The committee members are developing a comprehensive list of "live at home programs" which will make for family co-operation and understanding.

Mother-daughter projects for home improvement hold a high place on the proposed programs. Other projects include groups for discussion of selected radio hours, study groups in child development, leisure time activities and family recreational programs. A parent and a teacher will serve as co-chairmen to develop plans for P.-T. A. Mothers will be encouraged to join teachers, in order that the projects be made as practical as it is possible to make them.

Harris & Ewing.
MRS. OLA DAY RUSH

Learning Through Doing

"Our program will be one of learning through doing. Reading, story telling, games and frolics for all members of the family can become important factors for deeper satisfaction in home life. We will aim toward both satisfaction and the understanding which brings satisfaction," Mrs. Rush says.

Mrs. Rush is a native of Pennsylvania and a graduate of Cornell University. She came to Washington when she married and taught "straight" subjects for five years before entering the field of home economics. She is active in affairs of the District Home Economics Association.

WASHINGTON'S HOME NEWSPAPER

Ensign Weinel, Miss Robins Wed Before Many Out-of-Town Guests

Bride's Sister-in-Law Is Only Attendant In Ceremony at Fort Belvoir Chapel; Couple Will Motor to San Diego

A wedding of wide interest to members of the service corps was that yesterday afternoon at 4:30 of Miss Elizabeth Billingslea Robins, daughter of the commandant of Fort Belvoir, Col. Thomas Matthews Robins, and Mrs. Robins, to Ensign August Frederick Weinel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Weinel, of Columbia, Ill.

The chapel at the Army post was banked with cedar and white lilies on the altar were flanked by tall seven-branch caldlelabra. The Rev. ZeBarney Phillips of Epiphany Church in Washington, officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of ivory velvet made with a square neck and draped bodice, and a tiered skirt with a long train. A full length old Spanish lace veil completed her costume and she carried an ivory satin prayer book.

Mrs. Thomas M. Robins, jr., who served as matron of honor and only attendant for her sister-in-law, wore a frock of ivory satin like the bride's, and a turban of matching satin. She carried a large sheaf of ferns.

Ensign Lederer Is Best Man

Ensign William J. Lederer was best man, and ushers were Lieut. R. B. Lynch and Ensigns Joseph H. Patterson and J. H. Swiner.

A small reception at the Officers' Club followed. Mrs. Robins had chosen a black velvet gown with a jacket of white metal cloth and white draped turban, and the bridegroom's mother was gowned in wood violet crepe. The bridal party received in front of the fireplace, banked with palms and white lilies.

When she lefton her wedding trip, the bride wore a blue tweed suit with matching topcoat and hat, trimmed with Dubonnet suede. The couple will motor to San Diego, where Ensign Weinel is stationed.

Many Guests From Other Cities

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding were the bridegroom's parents; his sisters, the Misses Marion and Ellyn Weinel; Mr. and Mrs. George S. Schmidt, Philip Small, George S. Schmidt 3d, and Miss Josephine Schmidt of York, Pa., Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Milo P. Fox of Fort Dupont, Mrs. Seymour Owens of Annapolis, Miss Virginia Reifsnider of Westminster, Md., Thomas M. Robins, jr., of Westport, Wash., and Mrs. Sarah Hubbard and Mrs. Harriet Kisner of Portland, Ore.

The bride was graduated from the Sarah Dix Hamlin School in San Francisco and attended Oregon State College and the University of Oregon. She is a member of the Portland, Oregon, Junior League.

A graduate of the United States Naval Academy, Ensign Weinel completed his studies earlier this month at the Submarine School at New London, Conn. He is now assigned to the U. S. S. Pollack.

The bride's mother, the former Eleanor Reifsnider, is a great granddaughter of Commodore Andrew Hull Foote and is a granddaughter of Mrs. Donald McNeil Fairfax, wife of Admr. Fairfax. The bride's uncle is Capt. Lawrence Fairfax Reifsnider, U. S. N., in command of the U. S. S. Memphis.

Luncheon Today Will Honor Francis B. Sayre

Hausserman, Louis Domoratzky, Carl B. Robbins and Charles M. Moser, Dr. Frank K. Waring, Dr. Ben D. Dorfman, Joaquin M. Elizade, Antonio de las Alas, Benito Razon, Jose S. Reyes, and Amador Buenaseda.

Mrs. Keefer Holds Luncheon Today For Sister-in-Law

Mrs. Frank Royer Keefer, wife of Gen. Keefer, retired, will entertain at luncheon today for her sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Terrell, wife of Col. Terrell, at the Club of Colonial Dames, 1300 New Hampshire avenue.

Among those invited are Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, Mrs. John K. Herr, Mrs. William S. Pearson, Mrs. John W. Joyes, Mrs. Everard Todd, Mrs. W. P. Willett, Mrs. David McCoach, Mrs. James Gavin Field, Mrs. Joseph S. Wall, Mrs. Harold Tittman, Mrs. Richard Jordan, Mrs. Joseph Gaston, Mrs. George W. Cocheu, Mrs. Willis Crittenberger, Mrs. E. G. Weld, Mrs. George W. McIlver, Mrs. John L. Homer, and Miss Florence Eleanor Smith.

Observing an Old Navy Tradition

Harris & Ewing.

Ensign August Frederick Weinel, U. S. N., and Mrs. Weinel as the latter cut her wedding cake with her husband's sword at the reception which followed their wedding yesterday at Fort Belvoir. Mrs. Weinel is the former Miss Elizabeth B. Robins and is the daughter of Col. Thomas Robins and Mrs. Robins, of Fort Belvoir. Ensign Weinel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Weinel, of Columbia, Ill.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

A DEMOCRATIC musical event which always draws certain prominent members of Capital society is the opening concert tonight at the Library of Congress of chamber music under the auspices of the Whittall oFundation. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Truxtun eBale, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe are some of those who can be counted on to attend.

* * * *

A WEALTHY, limelight shunning widow from Worchester, Mass., Mrs. Matthew John Whitall came to Washington several years ago and lives quietly at the Shoreham. A special pavilion is being built to house the valuable collection of Stradivarius instruments which she presented to the Library of Congress.

A CERTAIN YOUNG LADY here has decided that the State Department is incorruptible. She offered several young men there $50 to tell her in advance of the official release whether two friends of hers had passed recent foreign service exams, having bet them she'd learn the results before they did. There was no sale . . . Now that the marks are out, among those rejoicing at success is Ogden Hammond, jr. He is the son of a former Ambassador to Spain and is a brother-in-law of Count Roberti, of the Italian Embassy.

ODDS AND ENDS: Mrs. Willard Reed Mary Cowles) is in town on a flying visit, literally and figuratively, from Chicago. Her husband will be transferred to New York in the spring, and they have leased the guest house on the Jericho, Long Island, estate of James Alley, former general counsel of the R. F. C. . . . Mr. and Mrs. George Howe will return today from New York, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Balcolm at the Carlyle. Mrs. Balcolm, formerly Millicent Rogers von Salm Ramos, spent some time in Washington last month after having returned to this country after several years in Austria . . . It must be fun to have Charles Michelson for an uncle. The publicity chairman of the Democratic National Committee is arranging an interview with the President for his niece, Mrs. John Bitter. The wife of the conductor of the Jacksonville, Fla., Symphony Orchestra, she is here for a few days as the guest of Mrs. Osgood Nichols. . . . Mrs. George T. Pettingill has asked friends in on Monday afternoon to meet her sister, Mrs. Ernest Wagner, of New York and Southamption.

The pralines served yesterday by Mme. Witold Wankowicz at her tea were made by Marie, a daughter of the house, who learned the recipe on a trip to New Orleans last summer. They were pronounced a great success.

Several women with artistic talent were gathered at the party yesterday to meet Mme. Anna de Romer, artist sister-in-law of the hostess. We saw Mrs. Harry Woodring, Mrs. Francis Sayre, and Mrs. Dean Acheson.

Others present included Mrs. Higgins Chapin, Miss Mary Randolph, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, wearing a sable jacket over her frock; Commander and Mme. Pierre Benech, Mme. Poradzenski, wife of the Chancellor of the Polish Embassy; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke and Capt. Hugh Waddel.

"Journey's End," the unusual home of Dr. Karl Resenberg, was the setting for a cocktail party yesterday when the diplomate entertained in honor of the retiring First Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau Herbert Scholz. This house was built by a traveling author whose wife wanted him to stay at home. So to lure him into giving up his trips to foreign lands, she designed every room according to the architecture of a different country. Evidently even this did not satisfy the writer, however, as he has rented his house for the past few years.

'Cosmopals' Entertained Tonight at Dinner

The "Cosmopals," wives and daughters of members of the Cosmopolitan Club, will be entertained tonight at the club's "ladies' night." There will be a dinner at the Mayflower followed by dancing and a floor show.

Mrs. J. L. B. Murray, wife of Dr. Murray, president of the Cosmopolitan Club, is chairman of the women's committee, assisting Harry H. Baker, general chairman. Others on her committee are Mrs. Edmund O. Carl, Mrs. Anthony J. Scullen, Mrs. Michael M. Doyle, Mrs. Fred J. Rice, Mrs. Edwin H. Silver, Mrs. William L. King, Mrs. Arthur W. Defenderfer, Mrs. A. Hamilton Wilson, Mrs. J. Rozier Biggs, Mrs. Charles B. Dulcan, Mrs. Al Lee, Mrs. Edwin Hahn, Mrs. A. F. Lansdale, Mrs. J. Edward Randels and Mrs. Lewis A. Payne.

Birth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jay Kimmel, of Mohican Hills, Md., announce the birth of a daughter on November 18. The child will be christened Mary Dean in honor of her aunt and grandfather. Mrs. Kimmel formerly was Miss Helen Ryan Stevens.

Beginning its fifteenth season, the Friday Evening Dancing Club will have its first meeting this year tomorrow evening at the Willard.

There will be many dinners beforehand. Among those who will entertain are Mrs. Fred Britten, Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin and Admiral and Mrs. Charles E. Riggs. The latter will have as guests of honor the new surgeon general of the Navy, Admiral Ross McIntire and Mrs. McIntire; Bradford Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. James Green and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Mills.

Maj. and Mrs. Parker West, who will attend, will entertain December 1 in honor of the retiring Dominican Minister and Senora de Pastoriza, and on December 2 will give a dinner for the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. 3Mehmet Munir Ertegun.

The club will meet on a Saturday when it dances on New Year's Eve. There will be a Dutch treat dinner before the dance.

Miss Hoskinson Luncheon Guest

Miss Nancy Lee Hoskinson, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilleary G. Hoskinson, was guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday at the Mayflower by her sister, Mrs. James Stephen Clifford, of Philadelphia. She will be presented formally to Capital society at a tea her parents will give Saturday at their residence, 68 Observatory Circle.

The guest of honor wore a smart frock of brown crepe with a chartreuse panel in the skirt and a medium-sized brown hat with streamers of the same shade of brown. Mrs. Clifford had chosen a black wool costume and a black suede hta trimmed with a red feather.

White chrysanthemums and snapdragons were used on the oval-shaped table where Miss Hoskinson and her sister debutantes were seated. Mrs. Clifford sat with her mother, Mrs. Hoskinson, Mrs. Robert V. Fleming, Mrs. John Lewis Smith and Mrs. John Eldridge Parker.

The other guests were the Misses Betty Fischer, Jacqueline Meredith, Betty Meyers, Sylvia Alexander, Doris Becker, Julie Cahill, Claire Cotter, Margaret Cotter, Jane Eustis, Elise Hill, Ashby Proctor, Barbara Henning and Mary Dora Thompson.

Emil Hurjas Entertain At Dinner for 12

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja entertained at a dinner for 12 last night at their residence on California street. They will entertain again at dinner next Tuesday, the guests of honor to be the retiring Minister of Finland and Mme. Jarnefelt.

Siam Envoy to Receive

The Siamese Minister and Mme. Rajamaitri have issued invitations to a reception on Saturday, Siam's Constitution Day, from 5 to 7 o'clock at the Legation.

Mrs. Lola Gingrich Entertains Tomorrow

Mrs. Lola K. Gingrich will entertain at a buffet supper tomorrow evening in honor of Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson and Mrs. E. Barger Miller, of Tulsa, Okla. The party will be held at her residence, 2807 Twenty-seventh street.

Poet Robert Frost To Visit Daughter

Robert Frost, New England poet, this week-end will visit his daughter, Miss Lesley Frost, a member of the faculty of the King-Smith School. Mr. and Mrs. August King-Smith and Miss Frost have issued invitations to a gathering in honor of Mr. Frost on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, at the King-Smith Playhouse.

With Shirley Povich

Never a Surprise

Charles Town Race Track, W. Va., Dec. 7.—This is the little track which in the five brief years of its existence has already acquired an amazing past. The chances are that when you hear a tall tale of racing, it happened at Charles Town. Here there are no surprises. On the day that the sun sets behind the hills to the east, Charles Town patrons will put it down simply as another form reversal and wonder what the stewards are going to do about it.

POVICH.

They started to run horses at Charles Town back in 1933 even before the track had been completely blasted out of the mountains. In fact, the steeds at one point ran through a tunnel of rock, that excluded them from the view of the customers for several seconds. What happened beyond the big pile of stone when the field was lost to sight could be only conjectural as far as the patrons were concerned.

There was the time when two nags went into the tunnel neck and neck and leading the rest of the field by eight lengths. Emerging from the rock pile, the pair was still in the lead and running like fury, still neck and neck. But they were riderless. The jockeys had been unhorsed in a bit of a free-for-all.

They still talk up here of a horse called Fluttering. At the witching hour the natives put their ears to the ground and vow that they hear the hoof beats of Fluttering as he gallops into the dawn. Fluttering is a legend at Charles Town, a relic of the last race of the last day of the meeting in 1935.

That day Fluttering was one of the field of eight horses that went to the post but Fluttering was very much a-flutter. He waited not for the starter's bell, but threw his jockey and galloped from the stall gates and ran away. Lead riders did not have the speed to match him, and the starter, his patience exhausted, sent the field away with Fluttering still loose on the track.

Where Is Fluttering?

Counter clockwise the field raced, but by the time Fluttering had wheeled and was off in a mad gallop in the opposite direction. Twice he passed through the field and at the mutuel payoff he was still a loose horse. Patrons cought the train, the meeting ended, press writers folded their typewriters and Fluttering was still on the track, galloping into the gloaming. The report that Fluttering finally was caught has never been actually verified.

It was here, too, that a horse named Sweep Vestal ran a race. That would not be pertinent, except that Sweep Vestal won with everybody looking out the window, in race track parlance. Not a wager was made on her to win. A $2 ticket would have fetched the entire pool of $2,500. In absence of win bets on Vestal, backers of the rose that finished second were paid off at their steed's win price.

Charles Town patrons were given something of a jolt on another day, too. As the field rounded the first turn, an unidentified horse was laying third and moving up on the leader. The customers eyed their programs in vain in an attempt to identify the red silks. Finally, at the far turn, the stranger dropped out of it, came back to to the paddock at a walk. There it was discovered that the lead pony, rider and all, had broken with the field.

There is a fellow working in the mutuel windows here—a former turf writer who cought on as a mutuel clerk after an unsuccessful attempt to keep up with the production of his native Kentucky distilleries. He's happy in his new job, asks nothing more, but his turf-writing friends in the press box are a bit piqued.

A Guy Named Joe

Said one: "I was sorry to see Joe lose out finally as a turf writer. Especially after I saved his job for him so many times by writing his stuff. And then he lost out anyway. Almost makes me feel like I was a failure."

But, getting back to the Charles Town track. It has not only a past, but a future. It bids fair to eclipse as a financial venture every track in Maryland. Charles Town owners make as much as $100,000 each season. The track, blessed by the most liberal racing laws in the country, is out from under the heavy taxation which confronts Maryland courses.

Bowie needs a betting total of $150,000 each day to meet expenses. Havre de Grace, Pimlico and Laurel require even more. But here at Charles Town the track is out from under its nut on the day that the betting reaches $33,000. And its average daily wagering is $60,000.

Some day the Government is going to build a boulevard on the course of the old B & O. Canal, with its beginning in Washington and Charles Town in its path. Then Charles Town will be but an hour away from the Capital. Charles Town will expand to a full-fledged mile track, and will become one of the most profitable racing enterprises in these United States.

Honest.

Heart Attack Fatal To Track Executive

New Orleans, Dec. 7 (AP).—Joseph Cattarinich, of Montreal, part owner of the New Orleans and Collinsville and Aurora (Ill.) race tracks, died in a hospital here today. He had undergone an operation on his eye and died of a heart attack while under the anaesthetic.

Born in Montreal 57 years ago Cattarinich early became one of the most prominent sports figures in Canada as a Lacrosse and hockey player. For years after he retired from active play he organized lacrosse and hockey teams. For a time he was a partner in ownership of the Royal Canadians, which several times were world's champions.

Hoyas Play Terrors in Cage Debut

Quintets Meet Tonight In Tech Gym; Game Scheduled at 8:30; 2 Sophomores Start

A well-balanced Georgetown University basketball team, composed of two seniors, a junior and a pair of sophomores makes its first start for Elmer Ripley tonight, meeting Western Maryland at Tech gym at 8:30 o'clock.

Back under the direction of Ripley, one of the country's smartest court coaches, Georgetown has high hopes for a truly successful season, something that has escaped it for quite a number of years.

Headed by Capt. Joe Murphy and Ed Kurtyka, senior forwards, Ripley has at his command a large squad of unusual promise. Despite the loss of Mike Petroskey, Tommy Nolan, Johnny Frank, Harry Bassin and Mario Gregario by graduation, Georgetown is able to launch the season with four lettermen, Francis Daly and Johnny Schmitt, in addition to Murphy and Kurtyka.

Schmitt, an exceptionally fleet guard, will be used in the regular line-up, paired with Irving Rizzi, a sophomore. Another soph, Johnny McGowan, star of the undefeated freshman five, will be at center.

Daly, former star athlete at Tech High School, is sure to see some action at center and Peter Leber, a sophomore, probably will alternate at one of the guards. George Pajak, Bill Evans, Joe Schneid and John Redmond also have shown up well in recent practice and will play if the regulars amass a safe lead.

Western Maryland will shoot a veteran team against the Hoyas in an effort to prevent the beating that it annually takes from the locals. Capt. John Tomichek and Joe Drugash, a pair of fine guards, will lead the Green Terrors. Their starting line-up will be completed with Bob Stropp at center and Emil Edmond and Don Honeman at forwards.

A preliminary between the Georgetown freshman and Devitt Prep will precede the main game, starting at 8 o'clock.

Norwalk High to Play Jacksonville Stars

Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 7 (AP).—The football team of Little Norwalk High, with a season's record of eight victories, two ties and a defeat, accepted an invitation today to play in Jacksonville, Fla., January 2 against an all-star eleven made up of players from the three Jacksonville schools.

New Britain High, the State titleholder, is drilled for its game on December 31 in Baton Rouge, La., against a Louisville, Ky., team in a contest billed for the "national championship."

Redskins Passed Up In Selection of 1938 All-Pro Grid Team

Parker, Danowski, Hinkle and White Compose United Press Backfield; Baugh, Leemans Make Second Eleven

By George Kirksey,
United Press Staff Writer.

New York, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Here's the "dream team" of 1938—the United Press All-American professional eleven—with a backfield composed of Ace Parker, Whizzer White, Ed Danowski and Clark Hinkle behind a rough and ready line averaging nearly 215 pounds.

Parker, Brooklyn's brilliant quarterback, is named by the United Press as the year's most valuable all-round player. Playing on a mediocre team he accounted for 1,118 yards with his running and passing besides doing a neat job of kicking. He gained 253 yards in 93 plays, and completed 63 out of 148 passes for 865 yards.

White, Pittsburgh's $15,000 beauty, was one of the two freshmen to make the team. He led the National League in ground gained, making 567 yards in 152 attempts. Although his team had only one pass receiver of any consequence he completed 29 out of 73 passes.

Danowski, spearhead of the New York Giants' attack, enjoyed his greatest season in professional ball. He accounted for more than 1,000 yards, completing 70 out of 129 passes with his Dead-Eye-Dick throwing and gaining 215 yards in 48 attempts. He was a considerably improved defensive player and got off only a couple of bad kicks all season.

Hinkle Is Tops

Green Bay's old war horse, Clark Hinkle, completing his eighth season in the pro league, again proved himself the peer of fullbacks. He led the league in scoring with 58 points and ripped off 299 yards in 114 attempts. His kicks averaged nearly 42 yards. At backing up a line Hinkle is in a class by himself.

Another eight-year veteran who made the team for the fifth straight year was Mel Hein, New York Giants' rangy center. Hein's defensive work against passes and his teeth-rattling tackles behind the line featured the Giants' superb defense.

The guard positions were the toughest spots to fill because there were numerous players at that spot of equal ability. Danny Fortmann, Chicago Bears, and Byron Gentry, Pittsburgh, were the choices. Fortmann is a speedy agile type of guard and Gentry, a smashing 220-pounder, who, like his teammate Whizzer White, made the club as a freshman.

Widseth Is Named

Ed Widseth, New York Giants, in his second year in the pro league, proved to be the loop's greatest tackle. He was a tower of strength in the Giants' great line, which rose to its peak in holding Green Bay and Washington to a field goal in the two final games. Joe Stydahr, Chicago Bears' 240-pound strong boy, was named as Widseth's running mate.

Bill Hewitt, Philadelphia Eagles, and Don Hutson, Green Bay, were awarded the end berths. Hewitt, playing his seventh season, again proved to be a tough defensive customer and a ball hawk. Hutson was the Loop's foremost pass-catcher, snaring 32 passes for 548 yards, and he finished second to Hinkle in scoring with 57 points.

The New York Giants, Eastern division champions, with three players, placed the largest number of men on the first team. The Green Bay Packers, Western champions, Chicago Bears and Pittsburgh Pirates each landed two men while the Brooklyn Dodgers and Philadelphia Eagles got one each.

Joe yArchibald To Meet Rodak For Title Dec. 29

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Al Weill, manager of Joey Archibald, announced tonight he had signed for his fighter to meet Leo Rodak in the coliseum at Chicago, December 29 for the world's featherweight championship.

Archibald already is recognized as the titleholder by the New York Commission and the National Boxing Association agreed recently to recognize the winner of a bout between the two.

Weill said the 15-round test was being staged under the promotion fo Jim Mullen.

He also said he had been agreeable to a rematch of Archibald with Pete Scalzo, who knocked him out in an overweight bout Monday night, but that Pete Reilly, Scalzo's manager, had refused.

George M. Weiss 'Doing Very Well'

New Orleans, Dec. 7 (AP).—George M. Weiss, vice president of the Newark, N. J., club of the International League and head of the New York Yankees' farm system, taken to a hospital yesterday with pneumonia, was "doing very well" today. His wife arrived from Newark by airplane this morning and went immediately to the hospital (Hotel Dieu).

Dr. Joseph C. Menendez said "Mr. Weiss' condition is satisfactory. His temperature was 104 all day yesterday and is down to 102 today. He is resting comfortably." Weiss was here for the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Wright Is Victor in Ring Event

Wins Over Pulzone In Feature; 2,200 Fans See Third Night of Show

By Jack Munhall.

Carroll Wright, unattached, made the first defense of his senior 135-pound Golden Gloves championship a successful one last night, outpointing Marion Pulzone, one of his chief rivals, in the feature of a 14-bout program before a capacity house at Turner's Arena.

Billed as a brawl between two terrific punchers, the fight failed to live up to expectations. The puzzling crouch employed by the stocky Pulzone seemed to upset the smooth-working Wright and he never was able to demonstrate his smashing right hand with any degree of efficiency.

A sharp left jab and greater boxing skill and experience, however, enabled Wright to gain a clear-cut verdict. Pulzone's chief menacing gestures were bull-like rushes which carried him inside but failed to gain him any advantage, for Wright always succeeded in tying him up.

Three knockouts, one of the technical variety, enlivened the card for some 2,200 fans who were fortunate in procuring tickets before the fire department stopped the sale at 12 minutes to 9.

Stoneman Is Victor

In the opening bout on the program, Billy Stoneman, National Boxing Club, easily outpointed Billy Miller, Merrick Boys Club. Though it was billed as a 112-pound fight, Stoneman was 4 inches taller and looked fully 5 pounds heavier than his outclassed foe.

Billy Cobert, Washington Boys Club, decisioned Dan Pilkington in a slow, dull affair. Cobert tried to mix it up but received little co-operation from his opponent who simply stood around, a mock smile playing on his mustachioed lips.

Joe Lewis, Colmar Manor's hard-hitting 126-pounder, registered the first knockout of the evening when he stopped Bernard Daley, Fort Myer, after 55 seconds of the first round. Lewis, a miniature replica of the heavyweight champion in the way he throws a terrific lefthook, floored Daley twice before putting him down for keeps with a short right cross which exploded squarely on his jaw.

Swann Is Beaten

Stanley Stephenson, National Guard 126-pounder, won an unanimous decision over Ken Swann, Merrick Boys Club, after the latter was saved by the bell from a second-round knockout.

Stephenson had his opponent on the verge of a knockout throughout the final round but Swann's superior boxing skill saved him time and again. Once the staggering Swann was backed in a corner but he twice ducked wild righthand swings, either of which would have torn his head off.

Mike O'Brien, National Guard 135-pound colorbearer, won a loudly booed decision over Howard Blafkin, unattached. Blafkin, who laughed incessantly, was the better boxer, landed the cleaner punches and appeared to have won the fight.

FRED McLEOD

Pair Shoot 75s, Lead Field by One Shot In Augusta Event

By the Associated Press.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 7.—Jock Hutchison, of Golf, Ill., defending titleholder, and Fred McLeod, of Washington, D. C., National Open champion in 1908, set the pace today with three-over-par 75s in the first round of the 36-hole $2,000 medal play seniors' golf championship at the Augusta National course.

Hutchison, competing in Class C for players from 50 to 54 years old, put together a 39 and a par 36 for his 75 while McLeod, playing in Class B for players 55 to 59 years of age, was out in 38 and back in 37.

Close behind the two leaders was Frank Bellwood, of Garden City, Long Island, another Class B player, with a 76. Tied at 79s were David Ogilvie, of Augusta; John Inglis, of Elmsford, N. Y., both Class B players, and Jack Campbell, of Jenkintown, Pa., of Class A for players over 60.

Bracketed at 80 were Tom Bonner, of Elmira, N. Y.; Otto Hackbarth, of Cincinnati, Ohio; James West, of Cedarhurst, N. Y., and E. W. Harbert, of Battle Creek, Mich., all in Class C.

Seven other oldsters followed with 81s with the scores ranging on up from there.

The tournament will be concluded with an 18-hole round tomorrow. The championships of each of the three divisions will share in the prize money.

Brewers Sign Smith To Coaching Position

Milwaukee, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Milwaukee American Association Baseball Club announced today signing Richard (Red) Smith, who has been managing Brewer Farm clubs for three years, to a contract as a coach to aid Manager Mickey Heath in 1939. Smith also is assistant coach of the Green Bay Packer professional football team.

Jones, Wade Mentor Picks Trojans to Win

Boston, Dec. 7 (AP).—Ed Robinson, who coached both the coaches in this year's Rose Bowl football classic, today picked Southern California to beat Duke University by two touchdowns.

Robinson coached Wallace Wade, mentor at Duke, while the latter was at Brown, and coached Howard Jones when the Trojan coach was a student at Exeter.

Two Clubs Hold Up The Deal

Giants Eager to Get Hard Hitting First Baseman By Maneuver

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, Dec. 7.—The New York Giants, who have so far snatched the limelight at the annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, appeared tonight to be on the verge of another deal or two.

Rumors flew thick and fast once more today, midway of the gathering at which much of the winter trading is done, but the Giants-three-player swap with the Cubs remained to date the lone major transaction.

William H. (Memphis Bill) Terry, however, wants to add a hard-hitting first baseman to his Giant's string.

The Giants were definitely ready to buy eke Bonura, Italian first-sacker, if Washington can obtain waivers on him from the seven other American League Clubs. It was understood two clubs were opposing waivers and thus holding up the deal. Two National League Clubs were also seeking Bonura.

Bonura to Giants? Unlikely, Says Griff

Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington baseball club, declared last night that there was little possibility that First Baseman Zeke Bonura would be traded to the New York Giants.

"Certain American League teams would not permit Bonura to leave the league," said Griffith. "All clubs must waive on him before a National League team can claim Bonura."

Admitting that waivers had been asked on Bonura, the Nats' owner reiterated that he had not placed his first baseman on the trading block. "What I have said about the rest of my team, applies to Bonura," said Griffith. "I will trade any Washington player if I can make an advantageous deal. If I were offered sufficient pitching talent for Bonura, I would consider a trade for him."

Reports that two American League clubs have refused to waive on Bonura are indicated as meaning that he has been claimed by the Chicago White Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics, the only two teams which are not well fortified at first base.

Gallaudet Opens Cage Saturday

The Gallaudet cagers after several weeks of practice under the coaching of Blair Smith, a graduate of the University of Maryland and a candidate for the masters degree at Gallaudet, are prepared to meet the Gallaudet alumni at Kendall Green Saturday evening.

A squad of 35 men answered the call to practice and of this number several have great possibilities. However, for the good of the varsity men, over half of the candidates will be dismissed and it is the intention of Coach Smith to form intramural teams from which a good extramural group can be picked.

Three veterans have been lost through graduation but with the large selection now on hand, it is hoped to replace the loss. The tentative choice for Saturday's game will be Phillips center, Doering and Ludivico forwards, Breedlove and Hanson guards. Pitzer and Duick will be among the "vets" to see action.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the minor leagues opened officially today, taking somewhat of a background behind the innumerable huddles that took place around hotels. The first round of legislative doings brought before the group the annual report of Judge William G. Bramham, president of the association, and the appointment of committees.

Groups of league officials went over the list of 35 amendments affecting the various circuits as well as the major-minor laws which will come before the convention for action tomorrow. Majority of the proposals will seek uniformity, but there were two that might pack dynamite.

One amendment will strive to clear up the question of major league teams signing or recommending sandlot and other young player prospects to minor league teams. In the discussion of this legislation the opinion prevailed that most clubs were favorable to strike out the provision that prevents such recommendation.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball's organized leagues, had a private session today at which he called a dozen or more clubs on the carpet for what was reported as an investigation of certain player contracts that had been haidled "haphazardly." Landis, it was understood, would review the hearing proceedings later and render his decisions.

While major league clubs searched for bargains in rebuilding for the 1939 campaign, the delegates from clubs representing an association of 37 leagues unloosed a flood of minor league transactions.

The Philadelphia Phillies sold Outfielder Phil Weintraub to Minneapolis and the Boston Bees disposed of Bob Reis to St. Paul, of the American Association. The Little Rock Club of the Southern Association obtained Clyde (Bucky) Crouse, catcher-manager of Baltimore last season.

Out of Giant quarters came a definite report that Frankie Frisch, the former St. Louis Cardinal manager, would not join the New York club as coach. Frisch has been mentioned prominently as the next New Orleans manager.

Giant officials announced late today that Mike Haslin, an infielder, who was with Jersey City and the New York club last season, had been sent to San Diego in a deal in which the Giants obtained Pitcher Emanuel Salvo, who won 19 and lost 6 games in the Pacific Coast League in 1938.

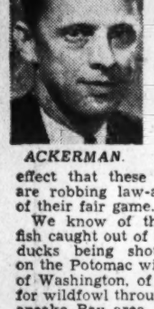
Royal Business Wins by a Neck in Charles Town Feature

Bill Ackerman

On Fishing



ACKERMAN.

Every summer, we have complaints of anglers making large catches of fish, only to throw them on the dock to lay until they stink to the high heavens, and someone kicks them overboard for self-protection. At the same time complaints that commercial men were seining when the law prohibited such a practice. In the fall, a week or two before the opening of hunting seasons, came complaints from those who have knowledge of game law violations, to the effect that these illegal hunters are robbing law-abiding hunters of their fair game.

We know of these seiners, of fish caught out of season, of wood ducks being shot almost daily on the Potomac within a few miles of Washington, of baited grounds for wildfowl throughout the Chesapeake Bay area, and of hunters shooting as many as four and five deer, only to let the carcasses lay upon the ground when they couldn't give them away, so they could shoot another, of game and game birds for sale here in the city of Washington.

It is equally true that fish and game violations have occurred every year since the conservationists, in a desperate effort to save game and fish from extinction, formulated regulations for the protection of the various species. That violators will continue to break the laws, that squirrel hunters, if they are game hogs, will continue to bag turkeys or other game at the same time, that fish will continue to be wasted, is almost a foregone conclusion, unless sportsmen themselves do something about it.

The law-abiding hunter isn't being cheated by his conservation commission when the open seasons are run concurrently to discourage the practice of shooting other game while in the woods during the early squirrel season, but he is being cheated by the game hog, who would rob and cheat him no matter what the open season would be.

Many sportsmen feel that control of fishing practices and hunting lies solely in the hands of the conservation commissions, while those who fish illegally, as well as those who do the illegal hunting, obviously labor under the impression that they are getting away with something when the conservation boat or the game portector fails to catch them in their illegal activities.

Those who fish and hunt illegally not only are cheating themselves of future good fishing and hunting, but they are also cheating the law-abiding angler and hunter. It seems very apparent that if we are ever to have better fishing and hunting the setting of a good example is as insufficient as the policing of fish and game only by the conservation commissions; that sportsmen's clubs must co-operate. In Pennsylvania and West Virginia this is being done with excellent results.

The idea is advanced that any real sportsman who knows of illegal hunting or fishing should take it upon himself to warn those who break the laws, because it is not only the rules and regulations of conservation which are being sinned against, but more important, the hunters and anglers themselves. Conservation could make a great stride forward if such action became general, but whether it ever will is more than we can say, for man has never been inclined to become his brother's keeper. Rather it would seem to call for the concerted action of organizations.

We think the lot of the angler has improved vastly, although for many years prior to 1935 he had taken a back seat in the vehicle of progress as far as his sport was concerned. And it was his own fault, for his thoughts never semed to turn to organization, and without it, legislative wants are rarely filled. The opposition, commercial and well organized, always got all the gravy, and the poor angler was compelled to pick on the bones.

Those days, however, appear to be gone forever, anglers are showing an ability to join forces for the good of their sport. To some extent, here in Washington, and the Maryland communities around the District Line, in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Florida. As a result of local efforts, we believe that the next few years will produce legislative activity here and in surrounding States unprecedented in the annals of the sport in this section. Not a bit too soon, either, for our wildlife resources are needing help in a big way, from the indiscriminate commercial take of fish that wastes many times the amount that reaches the market, from the fish and game hogs, and from the ill-advised beginner who doesn't understand his small take, if wasted, grows to real proportions when multiplied by the numbers of his kind.

Fortunately this section, as far as marine resources are concerned, still has a good foundation upon to which build, and it won't take many years if organized forces in Maryland and Virginia get together for a conservative take, unpolluted streams over the entire Potomac watershed and conservation commissions that are completely divorced from politics.

Such a bill will go before the Maryland Legislature this winter, but those interested in its passage will have to get together if they hope for favorable results this year. The black bass law, that will put Maryland on the same sporting status as most other States, seems to stand an excellent chance of passage this year.

Cornell Meets Toronto

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Cornell's Big Red basketball team will swing into action against Toronto in the Drill hall, December 10, showing a new style of play taught them by their new head mentor, Blair Gullion, who comes fresh from Tennessee, where he coached Southeastern Conference champions.

Filly Beats Ocean Roll In Thriller

Johnston Entry Pays $8.40; Lou Machado Boots Winner Home; Gelding Was Favorite

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 7.—In a thrilling battle to the wire that had the Seabiscuit-War Admiral race beaten for stretch action, Capt. Ewart Johnston's Royal Business defeated John A. Manfuso's Ocean Roll by a neck in the feature event on today's program. The little filly, a daughter of Sun Meadow, came with a rush on the outside and Jockey Lou Machado carried her up to the wire with a bid that Jockey Johnny Shanks and Ocean Roll could not resist.

Last Saturday, when the weights were in favor of Ocean Roll, the gelding defeated the filly. However, the crowd of 4,500 believed that Ocean Roll could repeat and made him the favorite. As a result, the Johnston entry of Royal Business and Grumpy paid an $8.40 mutuel.

Ocean Roll, from his outside post position, was hustled to the front at the first turn. Cornwallis attempted to run with the Washington-owned horse but was shaken off. In the meantime, Royal Business was far back. Approaching the stretch, Ocean Roll had what appeared to be a safe lead. However, Machado brought up Royal Business on the outside with her victory rush.

Mrs. Kenneth Gilpin's Tedmelia, after many dull races, came through with a good effort in the first race and brought her backers a $15.60 mutuel. She came from behind and forced Last Chase, the favorite, into second money. Rise and Shine was third.

Daily double players with the "8 and 4" combination of Geodesian, winner of the second race, and Doctor C. N., winner of the third race, cashed a $178.40 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TEDMELIA, $15.60, $4.30, $3.60; LAST CHASE, $2.80, $2.40; RISE AND SHINE, $4.40.

TEDMELIA, slow to begin, saved ground on inside, rallied sharply in midstretch and was up in concluding strides. LAST CHASE came to inside of FOGGY MORN to take command, but could not resist winner. RISE AND SHINE raced FOGGY MORN into defeat, but weakened. FOGGY MORN set good pace to stretch and faltered. CAT'S CRADLE could not keep up. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:07½. Off 2:11½. Winner, Mrs. M. E. Clemons' b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GEODESIAN, $19.40, $6.40, $3.40; GIN FRITTERS, $4.40, $2.80; TANGANYIKA, $2.60.

GEODESIAN, kept out of trouble on outside going to first turn, improved position gradually, came through on inside entering stretch and held sway thereafter under good handling. GIN FRITTERS was first to begin, drew out, swerved into GEODESIAN in midstretch when weakening and Vessell's claim of foul against winner was not allowed. TANGANYIKA was poorly handled. VENDOR'S LIEN followed close to pace to stretch and stopped.

THIRD RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place same. Went to post 2:38. Off 2:38½. Winner, J. Stillman's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DOCTOR C. N., $9.40, $5.80, $4.60; ORIENTAL MISS, $7.20, $5.00; THIS WAY, $7.00.

DOCTOR C. N. taken back when in close quarters soon after break, went to contention boldly, took command and drew out steadily while winning easily. ORIENTAL MISS shook off WINSOME LASSIE to get to front, could not resist winner, but was best of others. THIS WAY closed some ground. ENVIOUS could not threaten. WINSOME LASSIE stumbled and lost rider entering stretch.

Daily Double, Geodesian and Doctor C. N., Paid $178.40.

FOURTH RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:05. Off 3:06. Winner, R. H. Leith's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE SWAGMAN, $7.20, $4.00, $3.60; HAIR TRIGGER, $10.20, $5.80; PETEE LAD, $3.40.

THE SWAGMAN, first away, was steadied along close to lead, moved up with good courage on outside to circle horses, took command and drew out to win easily. HAIR TRIGGER shook off PETEE LAD to get to front and closed gamely, under drive. PETEE LAD raced on inside to backstretch and was listlessly handled thereafter. KALEIDA was away sluggishly. BENTAUR had little chance after being away poorly.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $700; handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30½. Off 3:31. Winner, E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL BUSINESS (entry), $8.40, $2.40, $2.20; OCEAN ROLL, $2.40, $2.20; TEDDY'S STAR, $2.20.

ROYAL BUSINESS, allowed to race on own courage to backstretch, came wide for racing room while bettering position entering stretch and under energetic handling, was up in concluding strides. OCEAN ROLL, first away, went to front under hustling tactics while shaking off CORNWALLIS, opened a good lead, but weakened in closing sixteenth. TEDDY'S STAR went evenly, closed gamely. CORNWALLIS was closest to pace to stretch and faltered suddenly. FRENCH TRAP and GRUMPY were outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:04½. Winner, Mrs. M. N. Two-dollar mutuels paid—INACTIVE, $9.60, $5.00, $3.40; TWO ACES, $8.40, $4.00; CHIEF EVERGREEN, $3.40.

INACTIVE shook off FREESTONE to take good lead and won with speed in reserve. TWO ACES, squeezed back at break, was hard ridden thereafter, came to outside while improving position, was up in stretch, but tired in final drive. CHIEF EVERGREEN moved up menacingly and then weakened in stretch. SCHLEY NURSE had speed in spots. DIAN, slow to begin, came around horses to get to serious contention and then faltered suddenly. PARRISH ROACH had some early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:33½. Off 4:34½. Winner, E. G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TROSTAR, $4.40, $3.20, $3.00; PICK OUT, $6.20, $4.20; GOODY GOODY, $6.00.

TROSTAR, hard ridden to hold forward position in early stages, was rated while close up on inside, came through on rail entering stretch and drew clear. PICK OUT was miserably handled, closed gamely and probably was best. GOODY GOODY closed ground from slow beginning. CARL'S CHOICE was used up setting pace. VINNY BOY closed resolutely. STEEL DUST weakened after getting to CARL'S CHOICE.

Golf Group Plans Tea Monday for Mrs. R. W. Payne

Mrs. Ralph W. Payne, who completed her third term as president of the Women's District Golf Association last week, will be honored at a tea next Monday at the Army and Navy Club at 4 p. m.

Women's golf committee chairmen at each club are asked to call Mrs. L. E. Harris, Woodmont, chairman of the event, at Woodley 6245 not later than Friday, and give the number that will attend.

Dube Meets Taylor In Semi-Final

Johnny Dube, a fair-to-middlin' New York lightweight, and Bucky Taylor, ditto, of Baltimore, will meet in the eight-round semifinal of the Gevinson-Galiano card at Turner's Arena Monday night.

Dube's last appearance here was against Ray ngram, the backsliding Washington pug, when he defeated him in an unimpressive bout. Taylor has shown here several times, leaving no particular impression.

Gevinson, the best prospect the town has had in years before he was overmatched by the local firm, kept busy yesterday at his training quarters at the National Guard Armory.

Joe Savoldi Is Back at The Arena

His Opponent Will Be 'Golden Terror,' in Feature Bout of Mat Program

The Golden Terror, an alleged wrestler who wraps himself in an orange sheet and whose sole usefulness in the game is his "nuisance value," has been brought in to headline tonight's weekly rassle-dazzle at the growl garage.

His opponent is to be Joe Savoldi, who was some shakes as a football player at Notre Dame but who has been earning a good, if not exactly dignified living lately as a wrestler of sorts.

The identity of the Golden Terror has remained a mystery to Washington's mat fans, although we have not been advised of any great clamor on the part of the local citizenry to find out who the culprit is. Some are afraid it may turn out to be Ferdinand the Bull. At that, Ferdy would probably be a better wrestler.

The Terror and Savoldi met here last on Thanksgiving night. Savoldi won. Just how many times they have met since in foreign parts is not known—the wrestling trust being clever enough to keep the news hidden.

A revenge motive is attributed to the Terror tonight. In addition, there may be news of another of those "ringside riots" which the Terror is ordered to put on. Joseph Q. Turner, the purveyor of mat flesh locally, the "requested additional bluecoats," according to his office. Joe still believes in the mat game.

Nick Campofreda meets Najo Singh, the barefooted Hindu who may turn out to be a Mexican at the last minute. Hank Mattheny opposes Haron Krupskamp, of Hungary and points east.

The first exhibition will go on at 8:30.

The Reader's Right

A Duke University student feels that the university hasn't done right by its student body, because the boys have been ordered back from their Christmas holidays on January 3, and therefore will not be able to see their team in the Rose Bowl game. And, to make matters worse, he points out, most of the returning students will be traveling on January 2 and won't even be able to hear the details broadcast.

VIDMER.

Link Fogarty, former captain of the Brown team, recognizes a trend to frown on all the Bowl games that are springing up across the country, but rises in defense of one postseason contest that has become an annual affair. He specifically refers to the East-West game played in San Francisco for the benefit of the Shriners Grippled Childrens Hospital.

"As you no doubt already know," he writes, "the entire proceeds of the game, except for the actual expenses involved in assembling the coaches and players, go toward the care of the unfortunate children at the hospital. Before the game the players are taken on a tour through the hospital and this trip is sufficient to convince all of them that they are playing for a worthy cause. I know how it impressed me and I am sure I express the sentiments of all the boys who have played in the East-West games."

Flying Fantasy

"While my classmate and his instructor were doing climbing turns one morning, they noticed a hawk duplicating their stunts," writes this correspondent. "When the instructor gave the hand signal for a loop, the hawk was tipped off and he looped too. Next came a roll, and taking his cue, the hawk also went into a roll. They finally finished up with a spin, and the hawk came spinning down beautifully, but as the plane leveled off the hawk, unschooled in how to come out of a spin, went crashing into a tree."

Women's Angle

The chairman of the Big Brother Association of Philadelphia takes time off to add his tribute to a great football player, and a fine boy. "Our annual football banquets have been attracting an imposing array of coaches and players for several years," he writes. "But the most idolized hero this year was Sid Luckman. He would have left a lasting impression on all of us simply as a great football player, but he proved to be so much more. We found ourselves in the presence of a modest, almost shy, young man of gentle bearing and much personal charm.

"We thought it most considerate of him to accept our invitation at all, since none of us had known him personally, and he had only the dya before finished a long, tiring season and had suffered a painful injury the preceding Saturday. Certainly he could readily hvae declined. However, our appeal was on the ground that his coming would mean very much to hundreds of underprivileged boys—and so he came."

"Have you ever followed prep school football? Watched week after week a small school playing bigger, heavier teams? My 15-year old has played 60-minute ball for two years on the first team and for the parents there is no sitting in the grandstand, aloof and proud. We stand on the sidelines and follow the play, and it is not pleasant to have your only son knocked out at your feet . . . hear him groan and watch breathlessly while the coach feels his neck, pumps his legs, throws water in his face until he is able to stagger to his feet and trot back to his position. That night he will probably have to be sent to the doctor for a few stitches in his lip, and you thank heaven it wasn't a tooth.

"Yet we foolish mothers smile. We love the game. And if I said lightly: 'I might as well go and see it as sit at home and wring my hands,' my husband would reply: 'Don't you want the boy to play?' and then I would have to say, 'Oh, yes, it's fine exercise, though it does give me an odd feeling in my stomach. But of course that's silly.' And I would feel maternal and apologetic.

"But now all is changed. My husband (a prep school flash and All American Saturday evening end), finally has admitted that he, too, has stomach qualms . . . that it takes something out of you watching your boy . . . now we are in complete accord; we qualm together."

Tinsley Sets Record For 98-Yard Run On Pass; Hinkle's 58 Leads Scorers

Three new individual National Football League records were established and two tied as all five of the 1937 titleholders were displaced in 1938, according to final statistics announced today. Ed Danowski, New York Giants and former Fordham ace, established new passing efficiency marks for a single season and improved his lifetime record, in recapturing the forward-passing leadership he held in 1935.

Gaynell Tinsley, former L. S. U. end, now with the Chicago Cardinals, shared in breaking the record for the longest gain on a forward pass with a 98-yard gain on a pass from Dougal Russell, and also tied the mark for number of passes caught with 41. Don Hutson, Green Bay Packers end, tied his own mark for most touchdowns in one season, with nine.

The forward passing and ground gaining titles were not decided until the final week of play in the closest race in league history for leadership in these departments. Danowski recaptured his title from Sammy Baugh, Washington. He completed 70 out of 129 for an efficiency mark of 54.2 per cent, breaking his own efficiency mark of 50.4 per cent made in 1935. He also improved his lifetime National League efficiency mark from 48.3 per cent to 49.8 per cent, having completed 255 passes out of 512 thrown in five seasons.

Baugh Completed 63

Baugh, who played two less games than Danowski, completed 63 passes, the same number as Ace Parker, Brooklyn, but had an efficiency of 49.2 per cent as compared with 42.5 per cent for Parker. Parker's 865 yards gained on the throwing end of passes was the highest of the season. Jack Robbins, recruit back from Arkansas, with the Chicago Cardinals, completed 52 passes, although he missed four games and finished fourth in the passing department.

Whizzer White, Colorado U. Rhodes scholar All-America, playing his first and last season of major league football, was the only recruit to capture a title in 1938. He gained 567 yards in 152 attempts to take the ground gaining championship held last year by Cliff Battles, Washington, who retired to coach at Columbia University this season.

Tuffy Leemans, league leader in this department in 1936, came fast in the last four games to take second with 463 yards in 121 attempts, 8 yards more than gained by Bill Sheperd, Detroit halfback, who finished third with 455 yards in 100 attempts. Cecil Isbell, Green Bay Packers recruit from Purdue, finished fourth with 445 yards in 85 attempts, an average of 5.2 yards, the best in the league. Isbell's total was just 1 yard more than that of Ace Gutowsky, of Detroit, who finished fifth with 444 yards in 131 attempts.

Hinkle Scores 58 Points

Andy Farkas, recruit back from Detroit U. with Washington, tied Jack Manders for fifth with 37 points. Farkas scored six touchdowns and an extra point.

Scotland Beats Hungary 3-1 in Soccer Match

Glasgow, Scotland, Dec. 7 (AP).—Although playing only ten men throughout the second half, Scotland defeated Hungary, 3-1, in an international soccer match played before 20,000 spectators at Ibrox Park today.

Ramblers Victors

Northeast Ramblers courtmen defeated the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Junior Varsity, 31 to 20, yesterday on the Roosevelt Court. Jim Downs was high for the winners with 19 points.

Mrs. Moody Spurned $100,000 Pro Offer

HELEN WILLS MOODY

Queen Helen Would Play International Tennis Again if U. S. L. T. A. Officials Wanted Her to Represent Country

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Dec. 7.—Helen Wills Moody, having turned down a promoter's offer of "approximately $100,000" to turn professional, today hinted she would gladly start out on another international tennis campaign—if the United States wants her.

Queen Helen, on the tag end of a lecture tour that took her to 25 cities, unpacked her racquets for the first time in nearly tree months and divided a snappy two-set match with a Los Angeles tennis instructor, Bruce Ansley.

Afterwards, she said:

"I don't expect to play any more competitive tennis but if the U. S. L. T. A. officials needed me and I had opportunities to whip my game into condition, I would likely accept an invitation to represent the United States again in international competition."

Two months ago, she said, an Eastern promoter approached her with a professional playing offer "approximately $100,000.55 but but the 33-year-old star preferred to maintain her amateur status.

She said she did not care to divoulge the promoter's identity but it was not the one who signed J. Donald Budge to a $75,000 contract.

Her lectures are on the subject "Make Life a Game" and she shows films of her own tennis career to her audiences. She leaves tonight for her home in San Francisco.

Bernie Bierman Completes Team

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP).— Bernie Bierman, Minnesota football coach, has completed selection of the ten Midwest players to compete with the Eastern All-Stars against the Western All-Stars in the annual post-season game at San Francisco January 2.

Bierman and Andy Kerr of Colgate will coach the Eastern squad, practice beginning December 19 at Dyche stadium, Northwestern University.

Krieger, Simmons Bout Jan. 2 Is Sanctioned

Milwaukee, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Wisconsin Boxing Commission today sanctioned a ten-round match between Solly Krieger, New York, world middleweight champion, and Marty Simmons, Saginaw, Mich., here January 2. The bout will over the middleweight limit, but to a decision.

Dr. H. M. Parshall's Trotters Again Best in Country

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 7 (AP).—Dr. Hugh M. Parshall, 40-year-old harness horse owner-trainer-driver of Urbana, stood out today for the tenth straight year as the Nation's pacing and trotting victory king.

Parshall's red, white and blue silks flashed across the line in front 49 times during 1938—the greatest number of first places racked up by any driver on the hoof-torn ovals.

Back in 1929 "Doc" romped in with 55 victories to lead the country, and no one has caught him since. In his decade of supremacy the Urbana star has chalked up 688 victories, his best year being in 1930 when he earned 76 first places. His toughest season was in 1935, but even then his 46 victories put him ahead of the pack.

That title of "doctor" is a mystery to many turf fans, but Parshall got it when he was graduated by Indiana Veterinary College at Indianapolis in 1921 as a full-fledged "vet."

Easton Will Retain Eastern Shore Franchise

Baltimore, Dec. 7 (AP).—Easton will remain in the Eastern Shore League, its franchise in the eight-member Maryland-Delaware baseball loop having been obtained by the Easton Athletic Association, owners of the ball park there.

The assoication bid for the franchise soon after Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, turned it back to the league antd barred Manager Doc Jacobs and the Brooklyn Dodgers, with whom he had a working agreement, from operating a club in the league for three years, because of Jacobs' "hidden sale" of the franchise to the Dodgers.

Johnny Vander Meer's Operation Successful

Cincinnati, Dec. 7 (AP).—Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati's double no-hit, no-run hurling star, was in "fine condition" in Christ Hospital today, after his third toncillectomy.

Dr. William Mithoefer, who performed the operation yesterday, said the young southpaw would remain in the hospital for two more days and would remain here until early next week for observation.

Best Blair '5' in Years Is Prospect

Coach Bride's Club Seeks County, Other Honors as Veterans Dot School Squad

Coach Crescent J. "Cres" Bride, starting his ninth year as court coach at Montgomery-Blair High in Silver Spring, has his eyes on the mythical Montgomery County championship and other local honors as his rangy band of veterans from the nearby suburban school prepare for the season's opener with Richard Montgomery High of Rockville a week from Friday.

Facing one of the most difficult schedules in the school's history, including Maryland and Catholic U. freshman, Roosevelt, Western and St. John's; two out-of-State opponents, Charles Town, W. Va., and Waynesboro, Pa., and a pair of tilts with arch-rival Bethesda, Bride is fortunaté in having a veteran squad.

The first team will average over 6 feet, one of the tallest scholastic clubs in the vicinity, with Johnny Norris, center, looming as the individual star, from a scoring and defensive angle. Other lettermen include McKay, Mason, Tabbutt and Ballard, potential first stringers, in addition to Bacon, Fitzpatrick and Workman.

The most valuable of the newcomers appears to be Sophomore Ford Kelley, pot-shot artist, who may gain a starting berth. Jimmy Donnelly is the main loss through graduation.

Bethesda's crack combinations of the past few years have marred the county record of the Blairites, although only winning by a total of 4 points in the two games last season. The Silver Springers, who held a monopoly on the county crowns during Bride's first few years at the school, are out to break the jinx and with the best prospects in five years, look hopefully to the 22-game card.

The schedule:

December 16, Rockville, home; 19, Catholic U. frosh, away; 20, Sherwood, home; 22, alumni, home; January 6, Western, home; 9, St. John's, away; 11, Roosevelt, home; 13, Mount Rainier, away; 16, Georgetown Prep, away; 18, Landon, home; 20, Devitt, home; 27, Bethesda, home; February 3, Mount Rainier, home; 9, St. John's, home; 10, Landon, away; 14, Maryland U. frosh, away; 17, Charlestown, W. Va., home; 21, Georgetown Prep, home; 24, Bethesda, away; 28, Anacostia, away; March 1, Sherwood, away; 3, Waynesboro, Pa., home.

Olympic Trial Dates Changed

Milwaukee, Dec. 7 (AP).—Grover Petersen, chairman of the Olympic Skating Committee and president of the Wisconsin Sating Association, announced today change of the dates of the Olympic trials to January 18 to 26 at Fowler Lake, Oconomowoc, Wis.

The trials originally were scheduled to start four days later.

As a result of the shift, the annual Great Lakes skating meet, also scheduled at Fowler Lake, will be held January 28-29, Petersen said.

The national ice skating meet will be staged at La Crosse, Wis., February 4-5.

Ace Parker Will Play In Va. Benefit Game

Portsmouth, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—Ace Parker, fresh from a sensationally successful season with the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional Football League, arrived home here late yesterday and today agreed to play with the Portsmouth Cubs here Sunday against the Richmond arrows in a benefit game for the Portsmouth Star Alias Santa fund game.

Parker will start at the quarterback position, same post he plays with the Dodgers, and indicated he would play most of the game.

Lackey High Soccer Team Wins Title

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 7.—The soccer team of Lackey High School, Charles County, has been awarded championship title for the Western Shore of Maryland, the first time this honor has come to Charles County.

Episcopal High Faces 16-Game Court Card

Maroons Face Six Prep School League Foes; Virginia, Maryland Frosh Listed G. W. Banquet Postponed a Week

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Va., Dec. 7.—A total of 16 games have been carded for the Episcopal High School quintet for the coming season, according to the schedule released today by Athletic Director Bickerton W. "Bick" Cardwell. Landon Prep, of Washington, inaugurates the 1939 card, meeting the Maroons here on January 12.

The Maroons will play six games in competition for the Virginia prep school championship, for which they finished as runner-up to St. Christopher's School, of Richmond, last year. State rivals included on the schedule are Staunton Military Academy of Fort Defiance, Virginia Episcopal School of Lynchburg, Randolph-Macon Academy of Front Royal, Woodberry Forest of Orange and St. Christopher's.

Two college freshmen fives are on the schedule, both the Virginia and Maryland University yearlings being scheduled to appear here.

The Maroon quint will be tutored by Billy Ravenel, former Duke University courtman, and Red Massie, of Hampden-Sydney College. Both are newcomers to the varsity coaching staff.

January 12, Landon Prep, here; 14, St. Paul's Prep, here; 15, St. Albans, here; 20, Eastern High, there; 25, University of Virginia Freshmen, here; 28, Gilman Country School, here.

February 2, Staunton Military Academy, here; 4, Virginia Episcopal School, at Lynchburg; 8, Washington and Lee High, here; 11, St. Christopher's School, at Richmond; 15, Roosevelt High, here; 18, Augusta Military Academy, at Charlottesville; 22, University of Maryland Freshmen, here; 25, Randolph-Macon Academy, here.

March 1, Tome Prep, here; 4, Woodberry Forest School, at Orange.

George Washington High School's annual football banquet, sponsored annually by the Pep Club, school booster organization, has been postponed from next Friday night until Friday evening, December 16, it was announced today by Principal Henry T. Moncure. The inability of several speakers to attend until a later date was held responsible for the postponement.

The principal feature of the banquet will be the presentation of varsity letters to 20 members of the squad, and minor awards to members of the junior varsity and 125-pound team.

Keyser Party Bags Four Deer on Hunt

Keyser, W. Va., Dec. 7.—A party composed of local men returned from a three-day camping and hunting trip in the Middle Ridge section of Mineral County. Four deer, ranging from 150 to 200 pounds, were bagged by W. B. Kesner, Edgar McDonald, Claude Hickle and Elwood Ferrebee.

"Ted" Taylor, South End merchant and one of the many Keyser men to bag a deer this season, has one of the best heads for mounting that has been seen this year. The deer is a six-point buck with the tw oantlers almost perfectly equal in length of points and where they branch from the antlers.

178 Deer Are Killed In Preston County

Special Dispatch to The Post

Kingwood, W. Va., Dec. 7.—All-time deer season records were broken this year in Preston County, with District Game Protector Ola T. Taft reporting a total of 178 animals killed and the final figure expected to pass the 200 mark.

First conviction of the season was made when game protectors arrested Ronald Rhinehart, 25, of Erwin, and found a doe in his home. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $100 and costs by a Preston County magistrate.

Game protectors were forced to kill two deer hung on a barbed-wire fence in Preston County, another broke its neck when it ran into a fence and another was killed when struck by an automobile.

Iowa Eleven Books S. Dakota for Opener

Iowa City, Iowa, Dec. 7 (AP).—University of Iowa athletic officials announced today they had signed the University of South Dakota for the opening game of the 1939 football season, September 30.

'2-Ton' Tony Weighs 227

Galento Pronounced In Good Shape for Fight Tonight

By the Associated Press.

Although he weighed eight pounds less than normal, Galento was pronounced in perfect condition by Dr. E. V. Masten, physician for the Missouri State Boxing Commission. Dr. Masten said he never would have suspected from the examination that the fighter recently had been ill with pneumonia.

The squatty battler, who trains, publicly at least, on beer, showed his further disregard for union rules by going out and running 2½ miles this morning. Boxers customarily take things easy the day of a fight.

The match tonight may make or break Galento as a national attraction. Thomas, although only a few years removed from amateur ranks, has a good record and has defeated such men as Isidro Gastanaga, Eddie Simms and others.

Midget Halfback Leads Gainers

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 7.—A 125-pound halfback, Bobby Kershner, was the leading ground-gainer in the mediocer season of the Martinsburg High School football team. Amassing 479 yards, and averaging 5½ yards in 87 tries.

High scoring honors went to Calvin Ramsburg, hard-charging fullback, who accounted for 53 of his teams 75 points. Ramsburg was second in yardage gained, with 270 yards in 83 attempts.

Leftguard Capt. Ernest Alther, offensive and defensive star and the team's punter, made the most tackles during the season, 44 as compared with 35 for Ramsburg his nearest competitor. Alther was kept out of the final game of the season with Handley High School of Winchester, Va., because of an infected leg.

Veterans Turkey Shoot Will Be Held Sunday

The next of a series of turkey shoots sponsored by the H. L. Edmonds Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be held at Camp Simms Sunday, beginning at 10:30 a. m. and lasting until 3:30 p. m.

Contestants are limited to the use of 12-auge Shot guns, but are permitted to use their own fire arms provided the ammunition used is purchased on the grounds.

3 Episcopal Players Get On All-State

Barrett, Bradfield and Todd Win Places; Blandford Named Captain of Team

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 7.—The all-State preparatory school football team named today for the News Leader by Virginia prep coaches is more representative this season than ever before in the history of the selection.

Episcopal High, of Alexandria, the Old Dominion champion in the preparatory division, and Woodberry Forest each placed three players on the team. Virginia Episcopal, of Lynchburg; St. Christopher's and McGuire's, of Richmond, each put two gridders on the selection.

Twelve players were recognized due to a tie between Cliff Peeler, 170, of V. E. S., and Thomas Todd, 175, of E. H. S., for one of the end posts. Wilson Funkhouser, 156, of St. Christopher's, lacked only one vote of being named to a wing berth unanimously.

Blandford Unanimous

Fullback Mason Blandford, 180, of Lynchburg, polled every possible vote and was honored as the all-stars' captain. Blandford won a position on the all-State eleven in 1936, but failed to repeat in 1937.

Repeaters, William Morris, 197, of Woodberry Forest, and Charlie Barrett, 180, of Alexandria, were awarded the tackle positions, while Early Gentry, 165, of McGuire's, and Billy Noyes, 165, of Woodberry, were recognized as the outstanding guards. Andrew Christain, 157, of St. Christopher's, nosed out Bill Suhling, 170, of Alexandria, for center.

In addition to Blandford, in the backfield there are Quarterback Harriss Covington, 141, of Woodberry; Halfback Tony Miller, 169, of McGuire's, and Edmund Bradfield, 165, of Alexandria.

Picked By Coaches

The All-Staters were picked by Coaches Hal Costolo, V. E. S.; Hickerton Cardwell, E. H. S.; Leonard Dick, Woodberry; Hugh Brenaman, St. Christopher's, and Berth Douglass, McGuire's.

All-State team:

Ends—Wilson Funkhouser, 156, St. Christopher's; Cliff Peeler, 170, V. E. S., and Thomas Todd, 176, E. H. S. (tie).

Tackles — William Morris, 197, Woodberry, and Charlie Barrett, 180, E. H. S.

Guards—Early Gentry, 165, McGuire's, and Billy Noyes, 165, Woodberry.

Control of Laurel May Go to Winn

Vice President of Track Expected to Gain Controlling Interest

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Dec. 7.—The Baltimore Sun said today Matt Winn, vice president and director of the Maryland State Fair, Inc., which operates the Laurel race track is expected to announce shortly he has secured the controlling interest in the corporation from the Butler family.

Winn has been interested in the Laurel track for many years, and was a close associate and adviser to the late Jim Butler, principal owner and directing head of the Laurel plant.

Winn, a Kentuckian, was proposed for president of the State Fair, Inc., after Butler's death, but the State race commissioners ruled that presidents of the four Maryland tracks should live in the State.

The Sun said:

"At the time Winn announces he has secured controlling interest he is expected to announce the new president and the fact that Frank Brady will continue in active management."

Brady has operated the track for two years since the death of Cy Cummings, president of the State Fair, Inc.

McLeod, Daddio to Play On All-East Team

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 7 (AP). Andy Kerr, Colgate college football coach, announced today that Bob McLeod, Dartmouth back, and Bill Daddio, University of Pittsburgh end, have accepted invitations to play against an all-West team on the Pacific Coast January 2.

Arlington Hall Girls Work For Horse Show Saturday

By Hotspur.

Yesterday, at the Arlington Hall School for Girls we saw Fritz Kleeman, master of equitation, putting the girls of the Students' Riding Club through their paces in preparation for the student's own show to be held Saturday afternoon at 200 o'clock, in the Arlington Hall riding arena.

classes in which 80 girls will participate. There will also be an exhibition drill by 16 girls mounted on the school's good horses.

The program is divided into six

This show will serve as a tune-up for the two teams which will represent Arlington Hall in the student's team jumping contest which is one of the feature events of the first winter horse show to be held at Fort Myer, December 14, and those that follow during the 1938-39 winter season.

Last year the Arlington Hall girls were beaten by the boys of the Pennsylvania Military Academy for the prize trophy emblematic of student team jumping supremacy, but this year the girls declare it will be a different story even though the school lost by graduation all but one of the riders on last year's teams.

We asked Fritz Kleeman what he had to say about his girls chances during the winter's student team jumping events. He replied, "we have had to develop two new teams of riders and they are all very promising. How good they are I will let you judge if you will stick around and watch them."

We stuck around and were well repaid for the time spent. Never have we seen a more enthusiastic group of youngsters or any that tried harder or looked better in the saddle. It is indeed a thrilling sight to see these 16 and 17-year-old girls taking spirited jumpers over 5-foot fences, and when we say 5-foot fences we mean just that for we used the old measuring stick to prove them as high as they seemed to be. The Pennsylvania boys will do well to look to their laurels for the girls will give them a hot battle for first honors.

The first team of the Arlington Hall School will be captained by Sally Steward who will ride Royal Barton; Eli Leh is to be up on King Rock; Virginia Smith rides Gone With the Wind; Shirley Stimpson will ride the gallant old campaigner Kismet who is 32 years old, just twice the age of his rider.

The second team will be captained by Mary Alice Krumpp riding Wise Money; Golin Holden on Colonel, Louise Golding on Main Spring and Betty Johnson on Hard Times. The alternates for the teams are Florence Hamerick and Graham Latimer.

Lieut. Col. J. L. Phillips will judge Saturday's show.

Prince Georges Hears Tawes Ask Vigilance

Comptroller-Elect Speaks; 'Water Wagon' On Way to Marlboro

J. Millard Tawes, Democratic comptroller-elect of Maryland, declared last night that the liberty to engage in "honest and profitable business" was imperilled today as never before.

Speaking at the installation of a chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, national political science honorary at the University of Maryland, Tawes said eternal vigilance was necessary to preserve our liberty, changed in form but not in spirit.

The student chapter of the political science honorary was installed by Dr. J. W. Manning, national secretary-treasurer. Dr. Laurence V. Howard, head of the political science department at the university, presided at the meeting, attended by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, faculty members and students.

"Water Wagon" on Way

A pumping truck will be brought to Upper Marlboro, Md., today to relieve a water shortage believed to have been caused by the drilling of a deep well by the WPA preparatory to installing a municipal water system.

Judge T. Van Clagett, president of the board of commissioners, said the "water wagon" would be furnished by J. Spence Howard, contractor. It will be used to fill the cisterns of those residents whose wells have gone dry.

Yesterday's water shortage was the first in the historic Prince Georges county seat in the past three-quarters of a century. The town's water supply comes from dozens of artesian wells.

The town's new theater was without heat because there was not water to flow through the heating pipes. Vincent Talbot, custodian, was having difficulty in keeping the heating pipes in the courthouse filled with water.

College Park Bids Opened

Bids were opened at College Park yesterday on two buildings in the University of Maryland's $2,500,000 State and PWA construction program.

James Stewart & Co., of New York, submitted low bid of $204,000 on the new Home Economics Building for the College Park campus.

Low bid on additions to the nurses' home, dentistry and pharmacy buildings in Baltimore was turned in by John McShane, Inc., of Baltimore, whose offer was $124,500.

The bids will be submitted to the New York office of the PWA for approval.

Four of the 12 buildings included in the program are under contract. Contracts will be let for the remaining eight in the next two weeks, university officials said.

ROTC Inspection Today

The University of Maryland ROTC unit will undergo its annual fall inspection today. Col. F. G. Kellond, inspecting office of the Third Corps Area, will review the regiment at 1:20 p. m.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, will give a luncheon for Col. Kellond, deans of the colleges and military staff officers.

Corn Prices Advance With Argentine Rise

Export Sales Are Small U. S. and Danube Area Only Sources of Supply

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Jumps of 2½ cents overnight in Argentine prices led to a cent a bushel upturn of the Chicago corn market today. Profit-taking later cut the gains here.

Leading traders said soaring of Argentine quotations indicated the United States and the Danube region had become the only available immediate sources of corn supplies.

More than 10 cents bulge in the price of Argentine corn has resulted during the past ten days. Tending, however, to check advances here was the fact that only a few loads of United States corn appeared to have been taken today for export.

At the close, Chicago corn futures were ¼-⅝ higher compared with yesterday's finish, December 49-49⅛, May 51 ⅞-¾. Simultaneously, wheat was unchanged to ¼ cent lower, December 64 ¼-⅜, May 66 ⅞-67, oats varying from ⅛ decline to ⅜ advance, rye unchanged to ⅛ up, and provisions showing 2 cents to 12 cents climb.

Pullman Co. Reports $185,622 in October

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Pullman Co., sleeping car company affiliate of Pullman, Inc., today reported October transportation operations resulted in a net income after reserve of $185,622 compared with $17,179 in October, 1937.

Net after reserve for the 10 months totaled $720,348 compared with $3,607,896 the corresponding period last year. Earnings for the 1938 periods reflect a charge of $200,000 a month representing reserve for amortization of air-conditioning investment. The figures do not include earnings of manufacturing subsidiaries of Pullman, Inc.

Cotton Futures Close Higher

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Cotton moved irregularly today as the trade awaited tomorrow's Government cotton crop report and Saturday's referendum of growers. March recovered from 8.23 to 8.28 and closed at 8.27, with final quotations 1 to 3 points net higher.

The market opened 1 to 3 points higher in sympathy with higher overseas markets and on moderate trade buying and covering. Scattered realizing and Southern selling soon appeared, however, and prices sagged several points below the previous final quotations. A minor recovery developed on limited demand. Cotton exchange members, on the average, looked for a crop of 12,070,000 bales.

Steel Output To Increase, Review States

Rail and Automotive Requirements Result In Heavier Buying

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 7.—Steel makers are favored by enlarged buying programs in railroad material and equipment, construction steel, tin plate and automotive requirements, the Iron Age reported today in its weekly trade summary.

"Year-end caution in steel buying," it said, "does not obscure an improved outlook for business in the first quarter."

It noted 50,000 tons of steel will be needed for freight cars now pending before rail equipment manufacturers. Year-end orders for rails also are appearing, it added.

The trade publication reported November output of steel ingots at 3,572,220 gross tons, was the largest monthly total since September, 1937, and represented an increase of 14.6 per cent over that of October. Pig iron output increased to 2,269,093 gross tons compared with 2,052,284 in October. Pig iron prices, it forecast, probably would be reaffirmed this week.

"Several bolt and nut manufacturers," it said, "have temporarily withdrawn prices on all headed and threaded items with the explanation that quotations are below manufacturing costs. New prices on a higher level will be out soon.

"With the Lake Superior ore carrying season at an end, the 1938 movement was 19,263,011 gross tons, the lowest since 1932."

Smythe Issues Guide On Obsolete Securities

New York, Dec. 7.—Announcement is made by R. M. Smythe, Inc., the obsolete security specialists, that their latest publication, "Smythe's Valuable Extinct Securities Guide, 1939 Edition," is ready for distribution today.

The publishers point out that the guide enumerates about 5,500 obsolete or supposedly worthless and non-current securities which nevertheless have a definite value for one reason or another. These values comprise liquidating dividends, foreclosure payments, reorganization or exchange rights, cash surrender values and nuisance or litigation values. The booklet has been designed to serve as a ready reference guide for the use of brokers, dealers, attorneys, investment counselors, bankers and anyone who is charged with the responsibility of passing judgment on the status and value of securities.

Incomes Rise To Top Point For This Year

Six Months' Gain Based on Output 11.4% Under Year Ago

New York, Dec. 7.—The national income produced in the United States expanded in October for the sixth consecutive month and reached $5,622,000,000, the highest figure this year, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute today. This compares with a revised figure of $5,593,000,000 in September and with the 1939 low of $4,154,000,000 last April. The national income in October, however, was still below the level of a year ago. In October last year, it amounted to $6,345,000,000. The decrease from a year ago, however, was only 11.4 per cent, or the smallest decrease this year. Last April, when the national income was at the 1938 bottom, it was 30.2 per cent below last year's level. In the first ten months, the national income totaled $45,895,000,000 this year as against $59,761,000,000 last year, a decrease of 23.2 per cent.

The rise in the national income from September to October was accounted for entirely by a sharp increase in the quantity of goods produced since prices dropped to the lowest level reached in the downward movement which began in May, 1937. The index of the quantity of goods produced, on the basis of 1929 as 100, rose from 93.4 in September to 100.0 in October. The index in October was nearly as high as in the same month last year and as in the same month two years ago.

October Production

Consequently, with the exception of the two previous Octobers, production in October this year was larger than in any previous month since 1929. Shipments of agricultural products in October were the largest since the corresponding month in 1929 and nearly made up for the failure of mine and factory output to reach peaks attained at various times since 1929.

In the field of mining, bituminous coal production rose in October to the highest volume this year. Petroleum output in October was larger than in September and was only slightly below the 1938 high reached last March.

In the field of manufacturing, automobile output in October showed a sharp spurt after reaching the low for this year in September. Steel production in October attained the highest level this year, while cotton mill activity, after a set-back in September, increased in October to the highest rate in 1938 with the exception of August. Building contracts jumped in October to the largest monthly volume since May, 1939, thus assuring the manufacturing industry with good support for several months from this important source of buying.

Copper Cartel Orders Cut in Production

London, Dec. 7 (AP).—The International Copper Committee today ordered production cut to 100 per cent of basic tonnages by January 1. A restriction to 105 per cent will be made effective December 15. At present the quota is 110 per cent, effective January 1, with output on an unrestricted basis until that time.

In October, the copper cartel removed all restrictions on output, then established the 110 per cent base as of January 1. The cartel regulates production abroad, but not in the United Etates.

Am. Snuff Dividend

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Directors of American Snuff Co. today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents, common stock, both payable January 3, 1939, to holders of record December 15.

Intl. Tel. & Tel. Corp. Reports Shanghai Gain

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Telephone operating companies of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation in eight countries reported today a gain of 58,833 telephones for the first 10 months of 1938, compared with a gain of 48,671 in the comparable 1937 period.

The Shanghai Telephone Co., among the largest gainers the company said, has not only recovered the loss due to recent hostilities but now has a record number of telephones in use.

RFC Loan Allowed Boston & Maine Road

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized the Boston & Maine Railroad yesterday to borrow $1,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for repairing damage done by floods and hurricanes in September.

Two of the three members of the ICC division which handles finance cases approved the application.

Second National Votes 2% Dividend

The board of directors of The Second National Bank yesterday today declared a semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent on its outstanding capital stock to stockholders of record as of December 20.

Dr. Munroe, World-Famous Chemist, Dies

Inventor of Smokeless Powder for Navy; Held Many Distinctions

Dr. Charles Edward Munroe, world renowned chemist, patriot and inventor of explosives, died yesterday in his home at Forest Glen, Md. He was 89.

Sole surviving charter member of the American Chemical Society, inventor of the firsttype of smokeless dowder adopted by the United States Navy for use in large guns, and holder of numerous other distinctions, Dr. Munroe passed away peacefully, with his wife and children at the bedside.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night, though it was definite that they will be held tomorrow. Interment will be in Philadelphia.

Served in Many Fields

Many fields of enterprise claimed Dr. Munroe's industry. For 12 years he taught chemistry at the Naval Academy. Twenty-five years he was dean of the graduate school at George Washington University.

In 1872 he established at Harvard University the first course in chemical technology, a forward step which he regarded as one of the most useful acts of his career. Serving concurrently or at different times, he was chairman of the committee on explosives investigations of the National Research Council, chief explosives chemist of the U. S. Bureau of Mines and consultant to the Forest Service on the same subject.

Dr. Munroe was born of Revolutionary stock at Cambridge, Mass., on May 24, 1849. He was graduated summa cum laude from Harvard in 1871 and immediately joined the faculty of his alma mater.

Naval Academy Professor

In 1874 he left Harvard to become professor of chemistry at the Naval Academy, remaining at Annapolis until 1886. During the following six years he was stationed at the U. S. Naval Torpedo Station at Newport, R. I., and it was in this period that he invented smokeless powder, to the envy—if not consternation—of foreign powers whose foremost chemists had been seeking the formula for years.

Nearly a half century later he confided that, during his research, he feared fellow laboratory workers more than he did the explosives with which they were working. Accordingly, he preferred to handle himself as much of the ticklish labor as possible.

"I was always afraid and for that reason I was always careful," he said in an interview in July, 1936.

Praised by President

In his annual message to Congress, December 6, 1892, President Benjamin Harrison cited the development of smokeless powder as one of the most noteworthy achievements of his administration.

From 1892 until 1918 he was head professor of chemistry at the Corcoran Scientific School and its dean during the first six years. In 1893 he founded and became dean of the school of graduate studies at George Washington University, retiring in 1918 as dean emeritus.

A list of his activities and accomplishments would include his consultanship on the engineering board which planned the defense of Washington in the Spanish-American War, technical services to the Geological Survey, Civil Service Commission, American Railway Association and numerous other public and private agencies, authorship of more than 100 books and papers on chemistry and high explosives and his participation in the Jamestown Exposition of 1907.

Held Foreign Honors

On June 20, 1933, he and Mrs. Munroe celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. She is the former Mary Louise Barker, daughter of the late Prof. George Frederick Barker, of the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Munroe was appointed a commandant, Order of Medjidpe, by the Sultan of Turkey in 1901 and held numerous other foreign decorations. He was a member of many scientific, professional and scholarly societies. He was a past president of the Cosmos Club and a member of the Alfalfa Club.

Besides his wife, he is survived by five children, Mrs. Dorothy Munroe Rouzer, of Washington; Treadway Barker Munroe, Chicago; Mrs. Winifred Munroe Mathews, Paoli, Pa.; Russell Barker Munroe, of Forest Glen, and Mrs. Charlotte Munroe Dolph, Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Fairfax Boy, 5, Killed by Father's Rifle in Accident

Fields was near his rear porch preparing for rifle practice with his brother-in-law, William Batchelor, of Suitland, Md. His son, one of four small children, walked in front of the gun just as it was discharged when Fields threw back the ejector to free a jammed cartridge.

Two Officers, Fugitive Slain In North Carolina

Burlington, N. C., Dec. 7 (AP).—Two officers and an escaped convict were shot to death in a gun battle at a filling station here today.

The dead: Sheriff M. P. Robertson, of Alamance County; Policeman S. E. Vaughan, of Burlington, and Roy Huffman, an escaped convict from an Anson County prison camp.

Another man in the building, who ran when the shooting started, was also identified by the deputy as a prison fugitive.

Mt. Rainier Doctor Appeals German Prison Sentence

Dr. Oscar Lavine, 32, of Mount Rainier, Md., and Dr. Michael George Albert, of New York, American physicians given jail sentences and fined in Vienna for violation of German currency laws, have given notice of appeal, the State Department here was advised yesterday.

Dr. Albert was convicted Tuesday of attempted "professional violation of foreign exchange regulations" and sentenced to a year in the penitentiary and fined 60,000 marks (about $24,000). Dr. Lavine, who performed the autopsy in the Corina Lorring murder investigation three years ago, was given a six-month sentence and an equal fine on a charge of attempted "nonprofessional violation."

The State Department has been asked to intercede in the physicians' behalf by Dr. Lavine's three brothers, Dr. Harold H., Leonard and Isadore Lavine, an attorney. All live in Mount Rainier.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., Dec. 7.—G. A. W. Stouffer, bank cashier, was elected president of the Chambersburg school board at the annual reorganization meeting. He succeeds Milton G. McDowell, R. C. Prather was elected vice president.

The Franklin County School Board, meeting here in the office of County Superintendent R. G. Mowry, elected Mason Riggs, of Shippensburg, D. D. 3, president, and John W. Fitz, vice president. Edgar Snoke is the retiring president.

Dr. H. A. Porter Heads Charlottesville Pastors

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 7.—Dr. Henry Alford Porter, pastor of the First Baptist Church, has been elected president of the Charlottesville Ministerial Association for the ensuing year. Other officers chosen at tthe December meeting, held in the social room of the First Methodist Church, were: Vice president, the Rev. Dwight Moody Chalmers, of the Presbyterian Church; secretary, the Rev. William H. Laird, rector of St. Paul's Memorial Church at the University of Virginia.

The new officers will be formally installed at a joint meeting and banquet of city and rural ministers, to be held here on the first Monday in January.

'Slot' Drive Renewed In Hagerstown Area

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Dec. 7.—Police began a new campaign against pinball machines today after some of the outlawed machines began making their appearance in remote rural establishments. One proprietor of a place where an outlawed machine was found was fined $25 and another proprietor has been summoned to appear for trial. All of the outlawed machines were removed from the county following a grand jury investigation last summer.

Trolley Track Removal Sought in Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Dec. 7.—The Potomac Edison Co. has been asked by the city to remove trolley tracks from the streets leading to the south end, so that the streets can be repaved. At a conference last night, officials of the company informed Mayor W. Lee Elgin that it planned to appear before the Public Service Commission to seek permission to abandon the Funkstown trolley, which would pave the way for removing the tracks.

Md. Farmers Hit Baltimore Marts

Their protest was given by Dr. Thomas B. Symons, addressing the sixty-sixth annual convention of the State Grange.

Symons expressed regret that despite what he termed huge expenditure on other types of public improvements no steps had been taken toward improving the markets.

He suggested also in his address to grange members that the "basic and surplus" plan of dairy associations be applied to other farm products. He advocated that system rather than acreage curtailment in controling surplus production of wheat, corn, cotton and tobacco.

W. & M. College To Get Erroneous 'John Smith'

Richmond, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—The portrait of poor Peter John Potemkin, the Russian statesman whose alias of "John Smith" was wished upon him 15 years ago by a group of prominent Virginians, will come down from the wall in the Governor's office and go to the college of William and Mary.

Gov. Price granted a request today of Dr. John Stewart Bryan, president of the College of William and Mary, for the portrait. The picture will be only lent to the college, however, and will remain the property of the State, the Governor pointed out.

For a decade and a half old Peter John stared down from the wall in the office of Virginia's first executive. His was a place of honor on the wall, but an honor unintended. For the philanthropic Virginians thought their gift to the State was a portrait of Capt. John Smith, hero of the Jamestown colony.

C. I. O. Pioneering In Maryland Area, Convention Told

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 7.—More than 150 delegates to the second annual convention of the Maryland and District of Columbia industrial union council began a three-day session late today at the State armory.

John T. Jones, president for the State body of the Congress of Industrial Organization, presenting his annual report, said:

"We have just passed through the first year of our history . . . What has been done and what has been attempted must be viewed in the light of pioneer work—in the light of the fact we were charting a new course for organized labor in Maryland and the District of Columbia."

Jones reported gains had been made in organizing workers in the clothing industry, textiles plants, maritime workers, mine workers, rubber factories and Federal offices.

Tularemia Fatal To Va. Woman, 67; Sister Gravely Ill

Woodstock, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—Mrs. Mary C. Dellinger, 67, of Conicville, near here, died this afternoon of a disease diagnosed by her physician, Dr. J. H. Moorman, as tularemia.

Dr. Moorman said the victim's sister, Miss Polly Dodson, 69, who lives in the same house, is critically ill of the same disease.

Tularemia, commonly known as rabbit disease, is contracted by handling diseased animals. Dr. Moorman said his diagnosis of the illness had been corroborated by Dr. R. C. Fravel, of Woodstock.

Colored 'Tramp' Assaults and Robs Farmville Woman

Farmville, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—A colored "tramp" criminally attacked and robbed a white woman in her small store here today, Police Chief E. D. Lipscomb said. The attacker escaped, and police of southside Virginia were given the alarm.

The assailant, Lipscomb said, broke the woman's arm in the attack and robbed her of "between $15 and $20." The victim was in the hospital tonight and was said to be in a "highly nervous condition."

Lipscomb said the criminal was not a Farmville resident, but had been "hanging around" Farmville tobacco warehouses for odd jobs.

Mrs. Emma M. Reynolds

Waynesboro, Pa., Dec. 7.—Mrs. Emma M. Reynold, 67, died in a Philadelphia hospital Monday afternoon following a long illness. Funeral services will be held at her home here on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Reynolds is survived by her husband, F. M. Reynolds; a son, Dr. Kenneth Reynolds, and a daughter, Mrs. G. S. Nicodemus, all of Waynesboro.

Dr. Martin G. Fox

Thurmont, Md., Dec. 7. — Dr. Martin G. Fox, a native of Indianapolis, Ind., who resided here the last two years, was buried in Thurmont with services conducted by the Knights Templar, of which he was a member. He was a 32nd degree Mason.

Clarence E. Creeger

Thurmont, Md., Dec. 7.—Funeral services were held yesterday from St. John's Lutheran Church for Clarence E. Creeger, 66. For 40 years he was engaged in business at Thurmont. For the last 25 years he was associated in the furniture and undertaking business. His wife, Mrs. Mary Loy Creeger, survives.

Thugs Calmly Eat Sandwiches While Robbing Store

Millersville, Md., Dec. 7 (AP).—Two men took time out to eat sandwiches in robbing a general store on the Crain highway today.

Mrs. John Welsh reported two young men entered her store and ordered sandwiches. Then one pointed a pistol at her while the other ransacked the store and living quarters, taking $140 in cash.

Abingdon Burley Market Opens

Burley tobacco growers opened their 1937-39 auction season at the Abingdon burley market today. An estimated offering of more than 1,250,000 pounds of leaf was on the floor at five Abingdon warehouses for the opening sales.

Richmond's sun-cured market opened Tuesday with sales for the first day aggregating 31,494 pounds. Prices averaged $12.21 per hundred pounds.

2 Killed, 4 Hurt In Boiler Blast At Va. Sawmill

Gloucester, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—Two men were killed and four others injured in a boiler explosion which demolished a small sawmill near New Upton, Va., today.

E. F. Bristow, 54, operator of the mill, and his colored fireman, Ernest Ward, 35, were killed in the blast which threw parts of the boiler a mile.

Posey Page, one of a dozen colored workmen who were helping to put the plant into operation after a suspension of some months, said Bristow released steam after the gauge reached 80 degrees "to clean out the boiler" and then let in cold water. The explosion followed.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF TWO-STORY AND CELLAR BRICK DWELLING, SIX ROOMS AND BATH, FURNACE HEAT, NO. 612 LAMONT STREET, N.W., WITH METAL GARAGE IN REAR.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6080, folio 150, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned surviving trustee will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on TUESDAY, THE TWENTIETH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1938, AT FOUR-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Lot 48 in Square 3041, in the subdivision of part of a tract of land known as "Pleasant Plains," made by Leon Tobriner and Michael J. Colbert, Trustees, of Columbia, as per plat recorded in Liber County 24 at folio 29 in the Surveyor's Office of the District of Columbia.

TERMS OF SALE: One-fourth of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, represented by promissory notes of purchaser payable in one, two and three years, with interest at 6 per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash at option of purchaser. A deposit of $200.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise trustee reserves the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustee may avail himself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE IMPROVED REAL ESTATE IN GEORGETOWN, D. C.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6812, folio 87 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustee will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on TUESDAY, THE TWENTIETH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1938, AT FOUR-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and being lot 16 in Block 19 in Walbridge's subdivision known as "Ingleside," as per plat of said Martin's subdivision recorded in Liber No. 153, folio 153, of the records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Subject to covenants of record. Note—At the date hereof the above described land is designated on the records in the Assessor of the District of Columbia, for taxation purposes as lot 46 in Square 2599. Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, her heirs and assigns within a period of sixty days from the date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: Subject to any and all liens created by conditional bills of sale for heating and other equipment, if any, and overdue water rentals. All other assessments and taxes to be adjusted to date of transfer of title. One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustee may avail himself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

"When faced with necessity we can sometimes accomplish the impossible," says Maureen O'Brien, West Coast contract authority and writer. Mrs. O'Brien, however, was referring to the play of the bridge hand shown in today's box.

Declarer, having embarked on a grand slam voyage, found himself faced with two discards when he needed three. But study of the situation revealed a way for him to develop the third by ruffing out a suit and utilizing an unimportant looking eight spot.

West opened the king of clubs, declarer won with the ace and paused to consider his plight. He had two discards in the ace of spades and a high heart, but the third discard he needed for his last losing club was nowhere in sight. He must develop another trick in hearts to accomplish his objective.

The Best Plan

There were three ways he could go about doing this. He could hope the heart queen would fall, rather feeble since there were six cards of the suit outstanding. He could finesse for it against West, at best a 50-50 chance, or he could trump a heart or two in an attempt to drop the queen. This was the best opportunity, since it eliminated the risks of the other two plans.

The opposing hearts would probably be divided 4-2 with the queen in the long hand, in which case declarer needed three entries to the dummy to ruff the two hearts and return to take the discards.

Today's Hand

North, South vulnerable.

North dealer.

North: ♠ A 7 4 3 ♡ A K J 8 7 3 ◇ 8 ♣ 8 4

West: ♠ J 9 8 6 ♡ 6 4 ◇ 6 3 ♣ K Q J 7 5

East: ♠ Q 10 5 2 ♡ Q 10 9 2 ◇ 7 5 4 ♣ 6 3

South: ♠ K ♡ 5 ◇ A K Q J 10 9 2 ♣ A 10 9 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	7 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: ♣ K.

Here is where the eight-spot of diamonds became important. The heart ace and the spade ace (by overtaking the king) would provide two entries and the insignificant diamond eight the third. Declarer would not need the king of spades if he could develop the hearts, for he would then have enough discards.

After this consideration, declarer led a heart to dummy's ace. He returned a low heart and ruffed high, saving the deuce of diamonds to nex[illegible] where he played another heart and trumped high. He drew trumps, played the spade king and overtook with dummy's ace, and the king, jack and eight of hearts provided the three necessary discards.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

HELEN LIPSMAN

CERTAINLY, no one can judge better of the efficiency of a Federal employe than the employe's own boss. And when Miss Helen Lipsman, of the Farm Credit Administration, was nominated for the title of "Miss Civil Service" by her superior it gave us the feeling that here was a girl in the running, indeed. Her sponsor is R. C. Dorsey, FCA radio and press editor. The nominee is a native of Nebraska and has been in the service approximately a year, serving as secretary to the radio and press editor. We take pleasure in presenting her photograph.

SIDELIGHTS on the vast Agriculture Department as picked from the report by the director of personnel for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1938.

During the years 1936 and 1937 under the new sick leave act, the average sick leave taken by employes in Washington was less than in any year of the eight previous consecutive years. The average sick leave used in 1936 was 6.9 days, and in 1937 6.6, as compared with an average of 7.5 days for the eight preceding years. "Due to the cumulative provision of the sick leave law greater protection is afforded the employes against prolonged illness, and it seems that employes are using less sick leave for minor illnesses in order to save their leave in the event of a serious illness.

The year's work resulted in 1,044 separate personnel actions, in part as follows: Appointment terminated with prejudice, 76; resignations accepted with prejudice, 57; reprimand by Secretary, 11; reprimand by chief of bureau, 104; suspension without pay pending investigation, 77, and reduction in grade and/or salary, and transfer, 4.

THE United States Travel Bureau still gets an occasional request for them to sponsor another West Indies cruise, such as was so successfully run last July. After the Puerto Rico and St. Thomas cruise an average of ten requests for a repeat came every day for some time. And the question is still being asked if a second cruise will be undertaken. We have a notion it will, but the whole thing is indeterminate. In the meanwhile the new bureau is playing an increasingly important part in stimulating American travel. And the bureau chief, Nelson A. Loomis, is doing a good job. In the few off moments he finds after busy days relaxation comes in painting landscapes—at which, incidentally, he is a little better than good!

THE next Congress, embroiled as it will be in national defense and reorganization (maybe), also will find an item called "the average clause" on its desks. The Congressmen have no idea how much interest lies in that technically sounding phrase.

As one employe organ puts it: "For a number of years the annual appropriation laws for the various departments and agencies included the so-called average clause, which arbitrarily prevents a great number of employes from receiving promotions to which they are entitled. Furthermore, such restriction upon promotion within grade defeats the very purpose of the classification act which provides salary steps within grade. By reason of this rider, administrative officers are prohibited by law from granting increases in salary within grade if such appropriation for personnel services exceed the average of compensation rates specified for each grade." The American Federation of Government Employes is making the fight.

OFFICERS of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard who came from Missouri will be guests of honor at a dance to be given by the Missouri State Society Wednesday evening at the Shoreham Hotel. Guests of honor will include the Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry Woodring; the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison; Gen. and Mrs. Malin Craig; Admiral and Mrs. William D. Leahy, and Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri and his staff. Officers of the society are Orville Zimmerman, president; Harry S. Truman, Richard M. Duncan, Col. Carl L. Ristine and Mrs. Charles P. Keyser, vice presidents; W. W. Badgley, treasurer; Craig L. Reddish, secretary, and Arthur W. Brown, tyler.

Red Cross Board Named

Waynesboro, Pa., Dec. 7.—Directors of the Waynesboro Chapter of the American Red Cross were named at an annual election held Monday, as follows: C. A. Adams, Mrs. W. F. Barkdoll, Mrs. J. G. Barton, Mrs. D. N. Benedict, J. G. Benedict, Mrs. J. G. Corbett, Mrs. S. Dreyfuss, Ezra Frick, Mrs. D. W. Good, S. D. Hockman, Dr. P. D. Hoover, Glenn A. Lehman, F. E. Martin, Mrs. Albert Mountford, Mrs. S. F. Newman, Mrs. S. S. Snively, J. H. Stoner, R. E. Stouffer, J. W. Warhime and A. C. Wertsch.

Bob Burns Says—

I use' to think that a picture actor was bothered more than anybody else because it looks like everybody that can play an instrument, sing or make funny faces expects the actor to get 'em in the movies, but now I'm beginnin' to believe that a picture actor ain't got no troubles at all.

The other day I was made Mayor of Canoga Park and the first day I drove through town, I stuck out my hand to make a left-hand turn and 14 office seekers wrung it before the light changed.

Bedtime Story

Outside and Inside

As great as lies 'twixt lose and win.
—Paddy the Beaver.

There is but one letter difference between the two words but what a difference in meaning! Sometimes those who are out want to get in, and sometimes those who are in want to get out. Sometimes there is danger outside, and sometimes the danger is inside. Always there is a difference, usually a very great difference, between the inside and outside.

Outside the house of Paddy the Beaver was Buster Bear trying to break in and in a great rage because he couldn't. He wanted to get inside to catch Paddy or Mrs. Paddy for his last good meal before going to sleep for the winter. Through tiny air spaces in the roof of that house the warm Beaver scent came up to him and filled him with such desire that he just didn't use his common sense. No, sir, he didn't use his common sense. If he had he would have realized at once that trying to break into that house was a waste of time. If he succeeded he would gain nothing; those Beavers wouldn't be there.

He didn't think of this. So he tried to tear his way into that house and when he found he couldn't he lost his temper and made a sorry spectacle of himself to the delight of some of the Green Forest folk who were looking on.

How very different it was inside that house. Of course it was dark in there for there were no windows. Paddy and Mrs. Paddy were sleeping when Buster came out across the ice. They were awakened by a noise overhead. Buster Bear was trying to pull a stick out of the roof. Then, losing his temper, he struck the roof a heavy blow. Not knowing who was doing this Paddy and Mrs. Paddy were frightened. One behind the other they plunged into the water-filled tunnel the outer entrance to which was in the bottom of the pond a short distance from the house. The pond was covered with clear ice and Buster caught a glimpse of them and foolishly tried to catch them and of course couldn't. He didn't even frighten them for by this time they were over their first fright. There was one small hole in the ice. There was a spring just there and the water had not frozen. They swam to this, filled their lungs with fresh air, took a hasty look to see who was at their house and then swam back there.

"We are perfectly safe in here," said Paddy. "That black nuisance will have a job to tear a hole in the roof big enough for him to get in. I wonder what he thinks we will be doing meanwhile. Does he think we'll just lie here and wait for him?"

"If he does break through he will ruin our house," complained Mrs. Paddy.

"You mean he will make us some extra work, that's all, we can patch it," replied Paddy.

"I don't like it. I wish he would go away," replied Mrs. Paddy.

"He will, my dear. Don't worry. He'll go away when he is sure that he can't get in," said Paddy.

"I wish I could see what he is doing," said Mrs. Paddy.

"I can hear and that is enough for me," Paddy replied. "I don't need to see him to know just what he is doing. He better be careful or he will wear his claws out."

"What are you chuckling about? I don't see anything amusing," said Mrs. Paddy.

"I do," replied Paddy. "It always is amusing when someone loses his temper and does a lot of things that you know are useless and that he would know were useless if he did a little thinking himself. No one ever worked harder for nothing than Buster Bear is working this very minute," Paddy chuckled again. "We certainly have the right idea about building houses," he said.

"We certainly have," agreed Mrs. Paddy.

A few minutes later Buster Bear quit. He realized that he couldn't break in and how foolish he was to try. And for the first time he heard Blacky the Crow and Sammy Jay and their friends and realized that they were jeering him. Abruptly, and with a deep rumbly, grumbly growl in his throat Buster shuffled off among the trees.
